A CLOSE, HARD MAN.

A land, close man was Solomon Bay, Nuthing of value he gave away; He hearded and saved, He junched and shaved, And the more he had the more he craved.

The hard-excused dollar he fried to gain, Brought hum little fort care and pain; For little he spent, And all he lent,

He made it bring hard Iwenty per cent, such was the life of Solomon Ray, the years went by and his four grew gray; His cheeks grew thin, And his soul willing Grew hard as the shallar he worked to win.

But he died one day, as all men must, For life is fleeting and men but dust; The bens were gay That laid him away. And that was the end of Solomon Ray.

They quarreled now who had little cared For Sidomon Ray while his life was spaced, His lands were sold, And his hard-carged gold.

All word to the lawyers, I am told. Yet men will elecat and joinels and save, Not only their treasures beyond the grave. All their gold some day

It is said indeed that a true, genuing repentance is so little esteemed in this corr day and age of the world. There are but few that have Estand experienced a godly sorrow for their sis, which worketh repentance. The Trouble estiere are lost few that are willing to examine tier sutal condition and make an effort to ditall forgiveness by acknowledging that they are summers. Yet this is the first step, for how can we be troubled about our sais unless we have come to a knowledge of them? Now ! trifle with the least of God's commands, I know we would lead better lives. If a man obtains a true knowledge of God, and comes to a true repentance, he is sorry for his sins and his heart is converted and full of godly sorrow. Such a heart is a sacrifice well pleasing in the sight of God. A new spirit pervades the whole being.

Repentance and conversion do not only consist in outward motions of the body, but also in the power of the Spirit that is in us and urges us to the sacrificing of the flesh to the glory of God, and to open a door to Christ. The prophet says in one place, that some are converted, but not in truth, "they are like a deceitful bow."

Many boast of having repented, but their works do not show it. James says that faith must have works, in order to save. With deep regret we see that the contrary is two often the case, in this our day, for we don't hear or see much else, but avarice and rascality,-lying midcheating, jealousy, hatred, anger, quarreling, cumity and vain talking,-of such like the world is full. Some live as though there was no God in heaven, and no Christ had died for

Now it becomes us to ask, Are, we as brethren and sisters, free from all these evil deeds? If not, we are not justified before God. We must have other virtues, such as charity, peace, knowledge of the truth, justice, meckness, humility, kindness, holiness, modesty, temperance, godliness and all other good virtues,-whosoever has such virtues, is converted by repentance and faith in God. In such a one the incage of God is found, and he is a partaker of the divine nature. It seems according to the Scriptures that if we have experienced all this, we may fall back into the sleep of sin. Paul tells all such, to "arise that Christ may give them

He said, "It is clearly demonstrated in this Scripture what the apostle meant, and I will read it as he means it. "And he hath not given us the spirit of fear; but he hath given us the spirit of love; and he hath given us the spirit of power; and he hath given us the spirit of a sound mind." "Now," he says, "I have only supplied the ellipsis with words which already existed in both the minds of the apostle and every other reader of this text." I asked him, at the close of the meeting, to supply the ellip sis in the formula for Christian baptism. All the answer he gave me is, "you are a Dunkard preacher and I know it." LEMUEL HILLERY.

Now brethren that are not thus, why should they seek to be put to a work which they are not qualified for, and in which they can give no example. "Oh," says one. THE BROAD AND NARROW WAY.

BY N. C. DALE.

(ARRIST points out two ways. The one is Debrood and the other is narrow; the one is filled with muny travelers; the other has but few. Christ came to save us from our sins. He taught us the way of salvation-showed us the narrow way. He warned us of the dangers and trials which beset life's pathway.

Our life is very fitly represented as a journey. And it is a very short one, too. To some it is only a few weeks or a few months, and the longest, just a few years. But a happy thought is, that those whose fullgrinings is short, whose journey is ended in youth, that Jesus has purchased a home to which he takes them, and in which they can dwell happuly throughout all the ceaseless ages of eternity.

Obedience to parents as the first commandment with promise. This is where the first step on the broad rosel is taken. Children disobey their parents. Children, it you have Chrisfran joirents, thank God for it. Disobedience, through unbelief, was the sin of our first parents, the cause of their being east out of that beautiful garden, the Garden of Eden. COME TO JESUS.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

COME to Jesus, take His yake. It is easy, thus He spoke; Come and seek His glorious love, And a home with Him above.

Come and ask Him to forgive All your sins and let you live, Come and offer Him your all, And aboy His heavenly call.

Come and bring to Him your sin, Knock and He will let you in. Seek and you will surely find Love that is both true and kind.

Come without a wavering doubt. And begin the heavenly route; Come and don't neglect to pray Unto God both night and day,

Come and do not turn aside In the ways of sin and pride; Come and tread the narrow way Leading on to endless day.

Come to Him and be content-Let your life for Him be spent; Their when idl your days are preced, You with Him may dwell at last,

Come to Jesos, sinner do. And in Him your minds renew: Receive Jesus, di how kind!-Sinner, seek and you shall find.

Hear IIm knocking at your heact; Will you ack now make the short Togarocore and wan the prize Of a home beyond the skies?

Come, why do you longer wait? Some for you 'twill be too late; Oh, then come for life's the time To refrain from sin and crime,

Come, prepare to reign on high Where there's neither pain nor sigh, Then when earthdy days are o'er, You'll be idest forevermore,

A WEEK'S COMPANIONSHIP WITH THE ROCKIES.

BY J. C. 19 STORIOURG.

T was on the morning of the 19th of September, and although the weath er was very inelement, chilly and rainy nothing danned conflittle party of six brethren, J. R. Mason, H. H. Folck, W. A. Moor and friends, H. Searcy, and Charley Crawford, from consummating their previously arranged Idan of a short respite from the busy cares and labors of life for a whirl up into the mountains for a general recreation, hunting, trout ing, botanizing and geologizing, modern Jehn (Searcy), to whose equestrianship, was entrusted the lines than controlled the spirited four in famil, signalled the waiting passengers to take sears in the chariot.

A minute more and the sharp crack of the "Othello's Coil" sent us merrily along over the fertile soil towards the perpetual snow-capped peaks only forty or fifty miles westward. Not over a bur ren, desolate prairie of twenty year ago when yast herds of wild game, fortllalo, elk, deer and antelope, swarmed over the tistic taste of the proprietor and his arcountry undisturbed in their morning's dent admiration for the beautiful in ma meal of waving grass, and the anolder | ture. On a nearer approach and upon a red man reassed at will, forsouth to wake closer discrimination, we find to be, not on the echoes by the wonderful eries of what is strictly an arboreta, but a prohelpless women and children of the poor fusion of botanical growth in a multifrontiermen; mingled with their own plicity of variety; from the tall, slender figreer shricks and fiendishly, numderous, jecttonwood, some hundreds or more, arly howls, while bathing their glittering ranged in rows on the West and North Idades and merciless tomaliawks in the as a protection for the more tender vari-

Passacreage of golden grain in full ripened of the same luxuriant returns, together with the green ricks of newly mown hay, all pointing upwards, high, as though to direct the thoughts of the people to the abode of him who hath in a temporal manner, so richly blessed.

The "dugout" and sod house has given place for the new and more comfortable frame, brick, or stone dwelling. Two miles from Longmont, we, round the corner of brother T. A. Turner's field of Fall wheat, Southward less than a himdred yards, we joss on the left, his new ly erected house, a well-planned, spacious frame with wall fillings of brick, making it substantial and warm. Close by we ford the rushing St. Vrain, to the head waters of which, far up in the mountains, our imaginations are carried in anxious expectation of the good time we will have trenting.

Forty reds further, and we has the upper farm and snug, little, white, frame cottage, of brother J. R. Mason. Though now occupied by a tenant, it was his old residence before the completion of his newly constructed grout in the flourish ing village of Longmont. But space prohibits a notice of the beautiful farms and homes by the way, and so we skip along; again heading Westward making a few minutes halt at the lacyhood's home of brother J. R., to promise the loan of that all-important and indispensable acquisition to the culinary depart ment, on a trip of this kind the " Patele Oran" which mother Mason (new Hager) so freely grants.

The next point is, Pella post office, turning to the North, we re-cross the St. Vrain which is here spanned by a good formidable modern bridge. Immediately on the left is the widely known and hospitable home of brother Isaac, Run yan, a well-to-defarmer and stock grow er, new living in a somewhat semi-retir. ed life. This is one of the oldest locations in the valley, brother and sister Runyan having resided here for almost a score of years, have experienced the bitter with the sweet, the former quality, principally, during the "won hav" times, when the old California road, along which so many tragical scenes were enacted, pass-Not until high noon, however, did the ed in close preximity to their door. NUMBER VI.

X/111LE officiating in our business interest, we received a message to attend the solemn scenes of another funeral occasion. To assist in the service and witness an aged father lowered in the tomb. On the morrow we wended our way to the scene of death, some fourteen miles distant. Soon after our arrival we met brother E. Beagle whom we assisted in the service. While beholding the corpse of this aged father, being ninety-nine years and ten months old. we thought of the many trials he had undergone, of the sufferings and privations that are incidental to life. He outlived the time allotted to man; "The days of our years are three score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be four-score years, yet is their strength, labor and sorrow; for it is soon ent off, and we fly away." Psa, 90; 40, So with father Ransbottom, his days were many, yet in looking back, oh how short his time compared with eternity! It was soon cut off. His trials were many. In later years he possessed none of this world's goods, and he lived with his children; some of whom treated him not with that respect that is due from children t parents, which greatly increased his trials. How many aged parents are shunned by their children. The life of man, the true adage says, " is twice a child, and once a man," and this latter, help less period, is what many aged dread, Many are not cared for as they should be, and hence life is a landen.

To-day we met at the Gardner school house for divine service, at 10:30, A, M The service was introduced after the usual manner by singing and prayer Brother W. C. Teeter then deliberated to us on the great love of God. "Bu God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us." Epl, 2 4. The following thoughts were elicit. ed from the text:

1. The love of God, which is great from its antiquity, and amazing from the essential dignity and glory of Christ

2. The glorious results of the sacri. fice of Christ, being the gift of Gol for the redemption of the world, and he was prompted to offer this sacrifice by his great love that he had for a lost and ruined world; "for God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3: 16. Another minister made a few remarks and selected as a closing song of praise, the 13th hyun. Then went to prayer, dismissed and took the parting hand.

On the 20th inst., we held a remnion at mother Bosserman's, guests, consist. ing of children and grandchildren. Hav. ing previously provided ourselves with provision, each family started for the pa. ternal roof, in honor to our aged mother, The occasion was one of Ideasantness and much enjoyed by all. After partaking of our meal, we made a bestowal of gifts to our dear mother, to further show our love and esteem for the one who has stood over us as a watchful sentinel and as an angel of love and mercy. We then Legan to think of the parting hour, and it was then proposed that we have a season of devotion around the home altar which was seconded by many, and desir. ed by all. The 724th hymn was selected and read and some remarks. appropriate to the occasion, were made by the one officiating, and this company of parents and children joined in this song of praise and devoutly knelt in prayer. This was a meeting long to be remembered by all. While there, we thought of the sainted dead of the house held, who could not be with us in person. the memory of whom we hold stered, And also of the possibility of never meeting on this earth again, as one of our dear brothers and his companion will seem leave for the far West. But then this thought consided as and a bapby thought indeed, that this large family of father's, thirteen in all, (parents and elever children) together with their wives and husbands, all are members of the church -the pillar and ground of truth. Then what if some are dead. and more may soon follow, or if we are separated here on earth, if we are faithful to Christ, our Great Head! Oh, glorious thought! a grand rennion will be ours with all the redeemed in the eternal world, where the parting hour never more will come. Then the great necessity of being prepared. How many households make no profession of Jesus How many members of families are yet out of Christ! Can they expect a reus-Father Ransbottom died at the resistion in the heavenly world? They who spring into death: that like as Christ raised up from the dead by the gloof the Father, even so we also should rik in newness of life." Rom. 6: 3, 4. Then have we great consolation, that ifter death we will be raised and be remited in glory.

" Happy the home, when God is there, And love fills every breast,"

Saturday evening we went to the Old burch for divine service. Had a fair Brother W. C. Teeter addressd as on the goodness of God, based up-Rom. 2: 4, and elicited from the text 5 follows:

The goodness of God.

In the creation of man.

In the plan of redemption.

2. That the goodness of God should gad us to repentance. That the sinner hould not spurn with contempt that poolness, but because of the goodness paulfested, he should love and honor God in all his appointments. On Lord's day we're assembled at the same place for worship, and found our large church filled to its capacity. The funeral of the late brother Daniel King which had been deferred, was attended to to-day. The speaker arose anniest that solemn assoully and read the 30th Psalm, and lased his remarks upon the 4th paragraph, " Lord make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am, and deliberated upon it from the follow ing deductions.

- 1. The end of human existence.
- g. The brevity of life.

3. The frailty of man.

Death is not the total extinction of wing. It is a change of state, from time to eternity. The future existence and immortality of the soul is taught, both by reason and from the Scriptures. And that he shall live forever, is a cheering thought to the Christian. The word preached was attentively listened to by the auditors, and we believe good intpressions were made. Brother W. C. Tecter made a few aditional remarks, and closed the exercise, and this solemn asembly dispersed to their homes.

In the eye we attended the meeting in the town half to listen to a sermon on the Saldorth question by elder Canright, a Seventh Day-Adventist. They are ceating some stir among our citizens, and seem to base salvation on the sev-8, T, B.

THE PLYMOTH ORATOR,

Henry Ward Beecher. We went to hear him on Sunday morning as every other visitor does. The house was crowded to overflowing when we arrived a few minutes after 11 Λ , M_{\odot} , and we thought ourselves fortunate to get good standing room.

The great preacher in due time and order, took his text and preached in his characteristic style. He uses no note or manuscript, but talks in a plain way about the business of Christianity. He is intensely practical in his remarks and excoriates sin with an unfeeling hand. The great fault with which he is afflict ed, is his love of popularity. The there fore and wherefore has adopted the the atrical style of speaking, half humorous, half in earnest style. When he "comes down" on sin, the house usually "comes ${ m down}^n$ (in ${ m modern}$ parlance) ${
m too}, -\Lambda$ point" (rhetorical) with him is to say, something humorous, and a responsive laugh is his reward. I took notes of his sermon, intending to send, them to you for publication, but as there was nothing in it of special interest to your read ers, I will let this notice suffice. However, in his discourse, he referred to certain Christians, who thought it was neeessury to deny themselves of worldly enjoyments, as asceries. He denounced the dea as false, and maintained that comtastes were given to us by the Lord and, consequently it could be no sin to grate ify them. I thought, "poor soul," he of Christianity. In the evening we interviewed

Where the famous Dr. Talmage holds forth the Word of Life. This great temple is built in the form of an amphitheatre, and will seat about 7,000 persons. It is illuminated by nearly 500 gas jets, and the architecture is very imposing. The service was similar to that in any other city congregation, with the exception that a trumpeter, elevated on a platform, with a silver trumper, aided the great congregation in praising the Lord in sacred song.

A WORD TO YOUNG CONVERTS.

BY P. HEYDER.

DELOVED brethren and sisters, you have set out on a journey to a betmurshy valleys, sometimes across sandy deserts where everything is parched. Alone you must wander, making the soul weary, for which cause many travelers have turned back, which was to them an eternal loss. Then press onward, for by and by you will come to an oasis—a fertile spot, where vegetation is seen all around; where the birds are chanting their sweetest music in praise to their Creator in all things; where you can sit by the shaded brooks and drink of the waters of life from the everlasting springs as clear as crystal, giving the weary saint a slight foretaste of that beautiful country he is traveling to.

But these delightful spots are ony resting places; your journey must be renewed; the blessings will only be realized fully at the journey's end. You will often get into places that will be beset with thieves and robbers, who are continually infesting this highway of holiness, have ever tried to persuade travelers back, or if unsuccessful in this, to make war upon them. Their weapons, though deadly, can be overcome by those given in the holy Scriptures, viz., the graces of God, who are given to all that are willing to move forward,

In those sacred truths, you will also learn that distinguished personages have traveled this great thoroughfare, though narrow it may seem to be. The great King of glory, his prophets, apostles, evangelists and others have gone over it, marked it out and hallowed it by their blood; the difficulties you have to overcome, they overcame. So the road is passable, for those who are weak will be borne up as upon angels wings, and the fiery darts of the wicked will fall harmless at their feet. What a good High Priest the Christian warrior has, heasks him not to do all the fighting, but aids him, and does the hardest himself. Just as the farmer with his crops, he may labor hard in preparing the soil, but what is that to be compared to what the Lord does toward bringing forth a erop? He asks man to do a small part towards it; the balance he will do. So in your journey towards the heavenly Canani, it may seem hard, but the hardest work is not yours to do. Think or the great army of saints who have preceded you —all of whom landed safely knew little, either of the letter or spirit at their journey's end, passed through the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem, bisined the immunerable company of angels, " and just men made perfect," where they are before the throne of the great Jehovah, singing praises to him forever, and as their courage is a stimulant for you to press forward, so try and help others by yours, strengthening the armies of the Lord and weakening those of the prince of darkness.

> Let us help each other to that best of places, that beautiful land, the glory of which, "eye hath not seen, car beard, neither entered into the heart of man, the joys prepared for the people of God."

SECRETARY'S REPORT OF THE GOSPEL TRACT ASSOCIATION

IT is now a little more than two years since the organization of the Gospel Tract Association, which fills an important position in 'sounding out" the Gospel to those unacquainted with the both and practice of the Brethren, The press is a powerful mesons, either for good or evil. That the enemy knows how to utilize the press to disseminate error, is apparent to all The triends and advocates of Truth, feeling that the enemy should not monopolize this noble and of printing, and use it wholly for biese purposes have, in many instances, made it subserve the interests of the Cospel of liberty. Good books and pamphlets have been published by the millions and placed in the hands of the reading public. The results, God alone knows. The Gospel Tract Association aims to fill a useful cosition in the missionary field. Men who will read and compare with the Bible, may often be reached by fracts and pamphlets.

The amount contributed to the work, though small, has been judiciously applied, and we have cause to believe that much good has been done We hope that this well-begun work will be continued, and that those who have been highly blessed with an abundance of the earth's goods. will seek a blessing by giving to the work. The Board of Directors will look after the interests of the Association, and see that all donations are properly applied. Following is a statement of the maneral condition of the Association:

Distributing Fund. Amount Distributed in Pamphlets, 11, 148,17 Amount new Appropriated. Balance of Dist. Fined on Land,

The amount donated for printing pamphlets has been used as designed, and there is on hand pamphlets to the amount donated. All sums of $5.00 and over go into Printing Fund. All sums imder $5,00 are placed in the Distributing Fund.

The field of usefulness, and to labor in, is very large. We have had abundant evidence that constally carried on by means of books and tracts. Will those who can, come and help in the good work? A lew thousand dollars this spent may bring many souls to the knowledge of the fruth as we now enjoy it. Come then and place your gifts in the hands of the Association. and thus help to teach others. The pamphlets can be sent out much cheaper in this way than if left to individuals,

In addition to the thousands of pages already sent out by the Association, a large number of | pamphilets have been sent out by private donations - Let the good work go on - Let there be monted efforts in the labor of free fracts. Sent. donations to this office.

Says one, "Whatever a man thinks is right, that is right to him." Then if a man thinks Infidelity is right, it is right to him. "U, no;" you reply, "that cannot be; Infidelity is wrong," Yes, but you said, "Whatever a man thinks is right, that is right to him;" now if a man thinks Infidelity is right, then it is right according to your uninspired declaration. Suppose a man should think that Mohammedanism is right, would that make the doctrine of Mohammed right? Is the religion of Christ right, because a man thinks it is right? It is right whether a man thinks so or not. It is right because God is in it, because it came out from Him; He is the Anthor of it.

Another says, I joined the Universalist church because I consider its doctrine the nearest the Truth," Before you could compare Universile st doctring with the Truth, you had to know. what the Troth was, and if you knew what the Truth was, why did you not accept it? Here comes another who says, "I joined the Dunkard church because I believe its doctring the nearest right." How could you tell it is "nearest" right, unless you know what is privisely inplif! If you know what is precisely right, why not accept it, and not something marly right? A man will be blessed for joining the church of Jesus Christ, the one kody, which oleys the Teuth, walks in the one may, but the man who joins a church because he believes its doctrine the "nearest right," has no pramise of eternal salvation, no well-grounded hope of reigning with Christ.

Here comes a third person who declares be joined the Methodist church because he thinks it is nearer the right than any other. He you do not know the right may, how do you know the Methodist doctrine is nearer than any other? If you do know the right way, why not most it, and nath are it, and be safe beyond all doubts? It is no credit to a man to be walking in a way that is much right, not quite right, when he ordeses that he knows what is precisely right. If he knows the right way, he noght to have the tropesty and rearrings to topour transl nulls in d_{s} . A shrewd - wise man will not take a dollar that is nearly genuine. A fourth man declars, "I joined the latheran church because I think it is nearer the Bible duction that any other." Well, yes; how do you know it is nearer the Bible doctrine, unless you know what the Bilde doctrine is? If you know what the Bilde doctrine is, why not ac cept it, and not something mearly like it, or like it? If the Latheran doctone is like the Bilde doctrine, why not accept the Bilds doctrine instead of an imitation? The unitation, the likeness of a horse is not the horse. THE NEGROES' MISSIONARY MEETING.

MIERE are those who often speak disrespectfully of the negroes, and ridicule their religious zeal; but, with a little application, the whites might learn something from them. The one below is a lesson to the point:

At a missionary meeting among the negroes n West India, it is related the following resolutions were adopted;

Resolved, That we will all give something. Resolved, That we will all give according to

Resolved, That we will all give willingly.

At the close of the meeting, a leading negrotook his seat at the table with pen and ink to put down what each came to contribute. Many advanced to the table and handed in their contributions, some more, some less. Among the contributors was an old negro who was very rich, almost as rich as the rest combined. He threw down a small silver coin. "Take dat back again," said the chairman of the meeting; "dat may be "cording to de first resolution, but not according to de second." The old man accordingly took it up, much enraged. One after inother came forward, and all giving more than himself, he was ashamed and again threw in a paces of money on the table, saying, "Dar, take dat." It was a valuable piece of gold, but it was given so ill-temperedly that the chairman inswered, "No, sir; that won't do. Dat may be cording to ile first and second resolutions, but not cording to de third." The old man was obliged to take it up again. Still angry with himself, he sat a long time, and nearly all were gone, and then be advanced to the table, with a smile on his countenance, and laid a large sum on the table. "Dar, now, berry well," said the presiding officer, "dat will do; dat am cording to all de rizolntions."

This narrative contains in a nut-shell the whole formula of benevolence. The first duty is to give; the second is to give necording to your ability; the third, which is equal to that, is to give willingly.

FROM R. H. MILLER.

HAVE just returned from Cervo Gordo, Ill., where I went on the first of Dec., to dedicate the new church built in Cerra Gorda. Bros. John Metzger, built it with his own means, exrept a part of the basement, and a little work. Thus is a noble example of liberality, and love for the climeh.

del. One of the brethren opened the meeting. as is common with us; I then fined to preach on the following:

- 1. God has hulf a church on earth, embracing all the truth and righteonsness there is for | instinct for acquiring pecuniary control of the man's sanctification and happiness. To that Press, are ideserved in all free countries, and church the Christian should look in all his work | have recently called forth compilets, and even for the good of man. In the cause of temperance the Christian should carry his work into the church; in his charifies, go to the church; in his life-work take all into the church; turn order has been singularly rapid - too rapid, it over to God, in his name and by his authority govern all your life. You need no other organization, secret society or human system to di-Aide your time, strength, talent, means, ridding
- 2. How the Unristian should conduct himself in the Lord's house. That it is a place of ly matters, to talk of tarning, &c., but a soleion, Methodism, Quakerism, Universalism, Luthers sacred place for singing praise; worship in Rospelism, a plea to make on the Bible, the Bi- head, for thus you should pray or prophesy,
 - II The house should not be desecrated by worldly anaisements; bever allow church festi-_{ea}t. Christmas, trees, and like amusements to be held here to gratify various of tashion. Let everything said and done in this church, be to the glory of God. This church was foult for me Bretheen as all of our chorches, where the point leaching of God's Word as to be carried old in the promitive parity.
 - 4. This is a plane chinch, suited to the wants The last census shows that there are about of man, and the combition of society; in it we Tomora place posple in its always mod to sworslope God. That phoroness of dress, taught in become part to sys-the Word of God, will make this church a suitable place for the rich and the poor to meet in one common brotherhood, where pride, fashion and wealth do not destroy the peace and prosperity of God's people.

- 5. Let this church be the home of your affections, around this altar with. God's children come, and bow in prayer; come and sing, come and hear the Word of Life; come with your influence and council to help build the cause and save sonls.
- 6. To those outside as well as in the church, this was built for God and should be kept clean. We hope you will remember this point and not come in to chew and spit tobacco, making the thour, if possible, worse than a pig pen; we talk plain on this point, because we don't want it forgotten.

About in this way, probably not just in this order, we preached, then closed by prayer. thanking God for the pleasant place we had to meet in worship, asking him to bless the labors of the Brethren to keep, the church, pure and holy. That the primitive taith and practice of the Gospel may ever be the established order of this church, that the Holy Ghost may reign in their hearts, rule over their lives, and be their Comforter when the powers of earth have failed.

So this meeting ended, and they call it, dedicating a church, and I do not know that there will be any fault found, unless it be to the name dedication, and before that is done, we hope the subject will be looked at from a Scriptural stand-point.

The house being in Cerro Gordo, so near the railroad, the Brethren give an invitation to our ministers to stop and preach for them when they can do so, as there are about sixty members living in and near town, a congregation may be raised easily.

THE DREADED JEWS.

PHE Limitan Spectator, in substance says, that" the dread which the Jews are awakening in Eastern Europe almost equals the dread felt for them in Western Europe six hundred years ago, and is based on the same grounds. They display a wonderful talent for accumulation with which thristians cannot compete, and which tends to make of them an ascendant caste. Has gravely assected as the Romanian Parliament that the true difficulty in the way of allowing them the equal rights which were secured by the Treaty of Berlin, is the certainty entertained by Boumanians and Servians that they would gradually oust the peasantry till Some of your readers will wonder how althey possessed the whole land. In Hungary it church is deficated. Well, I cannot fell what is asserted, even in Renter's telegrams, that others say or do, but I will tell them how we they have purchased so many estates as to make an afteration in the Constitution needful and in Germany, liferature is full of the success of the dews in ousting the ancient families.

> Their remarkable success in politics, and their books, penetrated with a most energetic hate. Considering that a limited years ago the Jews were a desposed caste, their lose into a dreaded some imagine, for Them to be perfectly safe in their new position.

The explanation of their sucress is, we presume, that their peculiac capacity, exactly suits the conditions of modern life, and their best defense would be this—that in the country where they are most perfectly free, France, they are least hated or distrusted."

Likely other people could be equally successbil were they to apply themselves with as much diligence. A true liew is not ashamed to be a Jew Let Christians also learn to be Christians. and not like Christians, and many of them will get along much better. It is acting like the world, that causes so many probesing Christians to degenerate. All this might be explained were it necessary.

MARING PROSELYTES.

The scribes and Pharisees' teaching consisted of the annice and cummin of the law, while judgment, and mercy, and faith were ignored: hence a proselyte to such a religion was only adding an idol to idols already possessed; hence two-fold more a child of hell than themselves. T. D. LYON.

FOR MY YOUNG FRIENDS.

BY MARY J. STEES.

My Dear Young Friends:-

Do you ever have evening reveries? Have tumn, when all alone, watched the setting of the sun, and observed closely the changes of nature? If you have, -and I know you havedid they not tell you, that life is short and time is fleeting?

The trees that a few days ago were clothed in green, are now stripped of their vesture. The beautiful green carpet that covered the earth is mow quite sear. Only a few fragments of the luxuriant stems that furnished the nation with its produce, are left for us to behold as we scare the steps of nature. And what does all this mean? What does it tell us? Young friends, does it not tell us that we, too, are changing? and ere long must quit this arena of life? Yes, thus it tells us, and this is why I write this even-

Just one year ago to-day I met here (in the school-room) with nearly lifty pupils. This evening, after they had all departed, and I was left alone, I seated myself near a western window for a few moments' rest before. I left the school-room. The ticking of the clock, the quietude, and the changes of instare in my view algrand, as I looked from the window, underne think of the sad change that has taken place here, since one year ago. (Nov. 49, 1877). One of my oldest papals, from the effects of diphthering is no longer adde to be with its. Five younger ones, two since our last vacationhave left us to join that glorious school which is singing around the throne in heaven. 'Tis sad to write of them, but I know they are happier than For those with whom I am permitted again to meet. They were sweet little children and I loved to meet them. I miss their smiling thees, and sweet little bisses. Alt I did not think when last we parted, that ere we met again, some of as would cross the River of Life Dear young friends, you who attend school, has a ever occurred to you, that some day sooner or later, you must part with your school-mates and teachers, never again to meet them here? O. I. entreat you to be kind to them? As your disuld love and exteem your parents, so love and estrem your teacher. As you should love and frost your brothers and sisters, so freat your Ischool-mides. Treat them with such respect, N incover to year goery in regard to Lake j (but should you be the first to goal this stage of life, that they may do ply feel your absence; that when they think of you, gone they may t the powers of earth and hell had combined by hand and generous point foward all. DEATH

\EAR render, the day is not far distant when understand it all, as came to pass soon after, in | friends surround you, yet every effort of theirs in your behalf will be in vain. Death will conquer you. Your eyes will close to all earthly sights; your ears grow deaf, even to the tenderest whispers of love; your lips will be sealed and your throbbing heart will cease to heat. You will be laid in your coffin and borne to the grave, and weeping triends will turn away and leave you to the solitude and silence of your narrow home.

Deathless spirit, reading these brief lines, remember you are reading your own experience; for you are mortal, and it well becomes you to stop, if only for a moment, and ask yourself the solemn questions, "Am I ready to endure this momentous ordeal? Am I ready for the hour of dissolution, and the darkness of the grave? Whether prepared or not, the hour is very near when death will claim you for his own. Already his shadow darkens your pathway, and the fatal dart is poised with unerring aim in the hands of the destroyer. There is then

"No room for mirth or trifling here, For worldly hope or worldly fear; If life so soon is gone; Nothing is worth a thought beneath,

But how you may escape the death That never, never dies!

How make your own election sure; And when you fail on earth, secure A mansion in the skies."

You may live, with God's help, so that death even shall not be fenred; and though you fall before the king of terrors, you shall conquer, and go shouting home to glory, victorious through Jesus Christ our Lord.

NOT AS IT ONCE WAS.

BY ASA BEARSS.

WHEN I look back and view, in my early days, my state of existence, and call to mind the dangerous course I was pursuing, it causes a deep slandder and a painful emotion. excited by the then dangerous precipies I was just standing on, by times I was wholly unconeerned of that course that would lead me down to everlasting ruin, and in the future be banished from the presence of so benevolent and merciful a Being, who has borne, in patience, with many a faithless rebel like myself, and did not out me off as a comberer of the ground, but still extended His mercy stall longer, and longer, under the powerful teachings of His Holy Spirit. Truly, we can say, "The long-suffering of God wanted as in the days of Noah," when we were in prison and by the Huly Lamb of God, preaching to us in our lanely and lost state of imprisconnent, and daily teaching as to come out; but could find no pardon fill the attermest farflying was paid, and when once delivered from bondage and filled with the love of Jesus that makes as wise unto salvation, we can say our feelings and desires are not as they once were. What a bright change! Behold a new creature in Christ | ried, and had other sons besides. Jesus Christ, the ast. And what is the effect? It brought all. In Malion, the sub-governor entered the church the annual nature of man and r the subjection iduring services, and stopped them "because the of the sportful law. It brought the "wolt to singing was heard outside." CORRESPONDENCE.

From Elk Lick and Salisbury, Pa.

E will try to give a few thoughts concerning our congregation, locality, etc. Our ongregation is called the Elk Lick, with a membership of about two hundred, many of whom are quite young, with some few aged and raliant soldiers of the cross. Our meetinghouse is erected in Salisbury, on a street for nerly known as Jerusalem, and latterly Union, either of which we think a good place to loegge a church. We have out of the two hundred, a membership of fifty-seven in this place. We have another place of worship in Addison, where about forty members reside, at which place we have preaching every third Sunday.-Yo minister nearer than eight or nine miles. All our ministers live in Salisbury, except elder Keles, who lives about three-fourths of a mile Northeast of here. During this last year, we lost nineteen members by deaths and removals. Our new church, which is now completed, is a two story, Idain edifice, 40x70; the room on the second floor being 40x00, for general serrices, and the first floor has a Sunday-schoolnoon, kitchen, dining room and pantry.

We propose having the dedication sermon preached by older James Quinter, on Sunday Morning, Dec. 29th. There are, also, other ministering brethren expected from abroad .- $W_{e,expect}$ to continue the meeting for several days thereafter.

Our post-office is Elk Lick, the surrounding township the same name; so if any of our Brethren or triends wish to communicate with any of our Brethren, please observe the distincion. Our branch R. R. so long in contemplation, is now crompleted, and connects with all day passenger trains on the main line; so that the chtors at banark need not excuse themglyes the next visit to Meyersdale for a convenience to come to our place, as there is provision made for ministers to ride at half fare, which is fifteen cents.

We have preaching every Subbath morning or evening, Sabbath-school every Sabbath, social prayer. Wednesday evening, each week .-If any of our brethren pass through our coun-Irv, to them and all who desire, we extend a general invitation to stop with us, and preach the unsearchable riches of God's Word.

() N the evening of the 21st of Nov., brother John Wise commenced a series of meetings in our meeting-house, in the West, end of our congregation, and continued until the evening of the 26th, during which time he held forth the Word of Life with power. The immediate result of his labors was, two young persons came forward and were received into the church by haptism. We believe that others were seriously impressed relative to their son's salvation. And while brother John united surners to the lamb of God, he did not fail to instruct and exhort the members to love and farthfulness in their Christian duties.

On Thursday Nov. 28th, (which was Thanksgiving day), we commenced a series of meetings in our meeting-house, in the eastern part of our congregation, at 10 o'clock. The first meeting was conducted by the resident ministers, but in the evening of the same day brother Wiscame among us, and commenced to hold forth the Word with his usual zeal and power, and thus continued up to the evening of the 2rd of Dec. There were no other applicants at the list meeting, but we think the members were edited and foult up in faith and love. We had an embency of this fact on the 3rd, which day the members met in conneil, to attend to the general business of the church, at which meet-Ing the church was well represented, and the business that was brought before the meeting. was pleasantly adjusted, and we hope to the subslaction of all. Y request, I shall try and give you some D church news from this part of Michigan. I was at a Communion meeting in Eaton Co. and there formed the acquaintance of Bro. O F. Yount, of Ohio. I masted on him to cone and pay us a visit, as we live sixty-five miles from any church; our little flock consisting of twenty-six members, and some living a considerable distance away, and I am the only minister. Brather Yount came and helped us; he commenced Monday evening, Nov. 11th. On Wednesday might three came forward, and on Thursday they were baptized. Thursday, he said would be the last night, but the interest seemed good; he then concluded to stay over Sunday. Bight here some of our Brethren's joy was turned to moorning; our deacon, brother David Baker was attending meeting and copying himself, when on Thursday evening the news came, that his little how was very sick. After meeting he started home; had fourteen miles to go, and he was forly minutes too late to see his loy alive. He died with the diphtheria. On Saturday brother Yound preached the funeral, to a very interesting erowd of people. Back to some meeting at leane again. Sanday night, two more came out. Met on Monday, and had meeting, two more were will ing to greateng, and were baggized. Menday hight three more were willing to follow the exsample of the Lord. From Daniel S. Replogle.

Dear Brethven:-

WILL try and pen you a few thoughts. that came to my mind while I was reading the last number of the Bustunes at Work, dated Nov. 28th. I have been a reader of this paper for almost two years, and am happy to say that I have read many good sermons and admonitions, which I shall try, in my weakness, to treasure up, and especially do I approve of brother Moore's numbers, which he calls "A Few Observations." These, I think, are admonitions and warnings in the right direction, in this, our day; for we see every day more and and more of these evils, namely pride in our church, and we are glad to see and read, that our editors are taking a stand against it, and are trying to carry it out by their example,-It is sud that pride goes before a fall, and I fear sometimes, that pride is tolerated a little too unich in our church, and it is time to keep this evil down. I fear sometimes our ministers do not preach enough about what God demands of his followers. God is a God of order, and if the courch loses its order, where will we be? I say let our trethren who start out to work in their fields of labor, take the order of the church right along with them, and preach it opeand carry it out themselves. It will help a great deal in keeping up the Aucient Landmarks of the church. I think the church should be very careful in sending out missionaries, to see that such brethren are sent out that have fully complied with the Gospet order of the church in dress, as well as other, things, God's people are to be a peculiar people—a separate people from the world, and if our ministers go out to preach, and dress like the world and look like the world, I cannot Idame their converts if they do the same; because they will say, "If the preacher can do so and so, I can loo." This is the way they will reason this matter. I might quote much Scripture in defense of non-conformity, but I can not in my weakness, do the subject justice; so I will leave it, and cite all. Bible readers, to examine for themselves, and see what God demands of all His clubben.

I will close, by wishing you much success with your valuable paper. May it be a power for good, and be a means of bringing many into the charch, to the fively epistles, read and known of all men, is my prayer.

From the English Prairie Church.

 $\bigcap_{i=1}^{N} N_i$ the 8th our meeting was held in the English Prairie church. The attendance was large. Services were spened by singing and prayer. Uncle and brother Peter Long chose tor his subject Philippians 2; 9, 10. The name of desas should be, and is very great. What Christian has not read the life and death, of desus, without a tear, not thinking that his name is exalted and sweet? The adversary is great, he goeth about "Seeking whom he may deyour," But the name of desus is more evalted, it reaches beyond the contines of this world. Why should we be ashamed to name the name of desus, when it is above every other mame?

Brother Borger, from Ohio, closed with welltimed, and pointed remarks; that daily mortals are passing from the stage of action, and beov unspeakaldy happy are those that have named the name of Jesus. It is Gol's will, that all should be saved. The does not want one soul to be lost. There are two roads we are all to choose, one or the other; would that all would name the name of lesus, that the portals of leaven can be reached. Meeting closed with grayer, and singing the 250th hyum.

We again met in the evening for worship-Brother Truly addressed the congregation, from the same suigect. The said, the subject is in charstible. The many of Jesus is so exalted, and told us why his name is exalted and necessary that it should be.

Dear Brethren:--

MO-DAY is Sunday, and as I am seated before my English book (the Brethren's Hymn Book), my mind is carried back far beyoud the briny deep, and has concentrated itself solely upon the blessed Redeemer and his cross. How lonely passes the time away; I have nobody here with whom I can sing and pray,nobody here to talk with about the blessed hopes of a brighter day, -all is left behind in America. If it was not for the hope, would not my lot be hard? But I am thinking now of that beautiful hymn:

> " How oft I've seen the flowing tears, And heard you tell your hopes and fears; Your hearts with love have seem'd to hame. Which makes me hope, we'll meet again,"

Oh yes, beloved brethren and sisters, will that not be a happy day, when we all shall meet again, where parting is no more? O, how do I pray, that I may be one of the happy ones, that are gathered around God's duzzling throne in heaven, where we shall sing praises, forevermore. Rev. 7: 9, 10. Now beloved brothren, is it not possible, that I could get a paper from you once in a while; it would be as halsam to the open wounds of my heart. I have paid for the paper till January, and if I can make it possible about exchanging money, then will I gladly send the money for your paper for the next year. But let me not wait much longer, as I want to hear of the success the Brethren are having in America. Here the people are too proud and wicked to follow the meek and lowly Lamb. Now beloved, he thousand times kissed with the holy kiss from your brother in Christ, G. MENTE. Nov. 14th, 1878.

Report of Meetings near Fredericksburg, Chickesaw Co., Iowa,

YN Sunday, New 17th, brieffirm Joseph Ogg 🚺 and William Higes, of Minn., commencat a series of meetings, at the above named place, and continued until Wednesday evening, Nov. 20th.

On Friday evening I commenced and continsed till the evening of the 27th, making in all durteen meetings. The turnout was large and order was good. The result was, four haptized and many more near the kingdom.

Brother Hipes is said to have delivered a convincing discourse on the Lord's Supper, whilst brother Ogg caused quite a commotion in the Freemason camp. The numstering brethren having broken the ree, I had comparatively easy work. The people being mostly single immersionists. I delivered a discourse on trine immersion. Some of the people scened to be astonished, that so much could be said in favor of trine immersion; although the half was not told. There are now fifteen members in Chick saw Co., with a very good prospect for more, but no preacher.

The Stein and Ray Debate seems to be doing a good work at the above named place. Also the Brethren's pamphlets. Send them on brethren, and if we can't send preachers in the presence of men, we can leave those silent messongers of the pen and press prenched to the people in such places as the above, and much good can be done in that way,

Our Series of meetings-A Glorious Season-A Noble Effort-A Few Crumbs of the Seed Sown.

[Promous Special Correspondent.]

BROTHER D. B. Gibson, of Perrin, Mo., came to us on the 2nd of the and mencel a series of meetings the same evening, and continued till the 12th. The order, attendance and attention were most excellent during the whole time of these meetings. The preaching was good-touching and inviting, and was much appreciated by both saint and sinner .-The result is, that fourteen precious souls, were made willing to put on Christ in baptism, to walk in newness of life. This was, indeed, a feast of fat things to us. The greatest revival that this church has realized since its organization, ten years ago. The church has been much revived.

The church at Falls city, has had a glorious senson; fathers and mothers have been made to weep for joy, as they witnessed their children coming to the Savior, taking the necessary steps to have their names written in the great church book of eternal life. Not only Brethren's children, but others, also, have been made to feel the power of God's work, and become willing to obey the Gospel.

The church and ministers seemed to work so Immoniously together, that it was enough, of itself, to infuse new life and energy into the most indifferent in the cause. Brother Gibson's effort was far from being anything else than nolde. He labored with all the power and energy given him; and to sociit seemed as if he could not, possibly, long endure to he bor as he did here, although, he seemed to be in a better condition physically at the close than when he came.

Truth was the theme of his first discourse What is truth? John 19: 38, is a question of Pilate. This was answered in a logicid manner. Proof text, John 17, "Thy word is truth."

we went to the water and baptized one sister. On Saturday we commenced preaching again, and preached seven sermons; holding forth the word with such power, that another soul was made willing to come out and serve the Lord, and many more were made to weep, who, we are made to believe, are almost persuaded.— Brethren come over and help us. We now number nine, four brothers and five sisters. Brethren come and preach for us, do not let the good seed that has been sown, be plucked up by some of these "isins". Dear Brethren:—

Af E will drop a few lines concerning our visits among the brothren since here.

On Saturday before the last Sunday in Nova. Bro. Frank Holsinger took me to his home, about five miles from the city, across the state line into Kansas. Brother Holsinger has a fine location, and unrsery business to a considerable extent. His father and mother also reside. with him, and are members of the charch. Sister Holsinger is a daughter of ebler Long. of Maryland. Meeting in school-house at night, also twice on Sunday. There are some eight or ten members in the neighborhood, and a good prospect for more, if they had a resident minister. Who will be imped to come and locate there, and help by the grace of God, to bodd up the church?

On the following Saturday, about 5 o'clock in the morning, we took the train for Centerview, Mo., where we arrived about 8 o'clock .— At the depat we met brother Λ_i Hatchinson. and other brethren. It was indeed a glad meeting with brother Hutchinson and family. after a separation of six years. Owing to a severe snow-storm sefting in, there was no meeling that night. We then had two appointments for the next day at the Brethren's meeting-house. Brother S. S. Mohler and brother J. Crumpacker (my brother-in-law), from Cornelia, Mos, were also in attendance.— Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the affendance was not so large; nevertheless we had a pleasant intercourse with the members and fromboof that locality; and felt that it was good to be there. We returned to the city Monday morning. Saturday following, brother Holsinger again came to my door while if was snowing severely, and said I must go with him as appointments, were made. It is surprisneg how rapidly the church is spreading over this great western country. From emigrations and conversions, congregations, are springing up throughout the land. THOUGHTS AGAINST INFI-DELITY.

BY H. C. LUCAS.

I HAVE for sometime been wondering why some of the able contributors to the colmmus of the Brethren at Work, have not said more in regard and against the increasing tendency to infidelity among the people of this so-called and enligtened age. It is undernably true, that there is a continual strengthening and growing of infidel, atheistic and free-thinking notions among the people in many neighborboods.

The excuses presented by the adversary of souls to the minds of those who do not profess Christianity, are very minnerous, and many of not tell whether the son, was shining or not thom are very querile. LIGHT.

RY LIZZIE B. WYERS.

" And God said, let there be light, and there was light," Gen. 1: 3.

IN the beginning of the erection, when the I earth was without form, and darkness on the face of the deep, how soon did it become necessary to have light, and God saw that it was good, which is also the experience of every living soul upon the face of the earth.

Taking a natural view, what could we accomplish if we had not the great luminary of the day to give us light. How dreary when the sun does not shine for several days, and how we long to see his brilliant rays, cheering all nature and rousing the very soul to new life, and should call forth praise and thanksgiving from every hearl; this it will wherever God's blessings are duly appreciated. As we have the sun to light this world naturally, so God has not left us in darkness spiritually, but has provided us again with the necessary Light, -his Son, of whom John said, "That was the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." Then the question arises, why are so many walking in darkness? "The light shineth in darkness and the darkness comprehendeth it not." Here is where the great trouble comes in. What would be thought of a man building a house without a window, and living to it with the doors closed? He, could That man would be pronounced a manne, but all men are wiser naturally than to put up such a building. How careful to have plenty of windows to give light inside; very commendable too, for God gave the light for us to enpoy it.

I do not think it very wase either to contain these windows so heavily that the light cannot pendrab and give the room a gloomy appearance, especially in the Winter season; let the sum share in all you can, and it will be all the more cheerful as well as healthful. Just so spirstually. The sumer, while he closes, every avcannot know what enjoyment that light affordany more than the man in the dark house, both will be unhealthy, and finally must perish Then open wide the door of your hearts ye in converted, lef the light of God share in your hearts; walk as the children of light in all, the ordinances of the Lord as becometh those professing goddiness, and the reward is sure. No one need have any doubts, who is obedient to the Master acidl things. display among the Brotherhood, as many otherschools have done for their patrons; but the school did not do it all. And, neither will our institutions do it all. And just in the same way they may do much to favor both plainness of dress and plainness of speech, but yet the school will not, and cannot do all that is done.

We have school-houses that are not known by that name, nor are they regarded in that light, and nearly all the training a man or woman gets, is got there. Those places are what we call our nones, by way of attachment, but in truth they are our school-houses. In them are the carliest, deepest, longest and strongest impressions made that are made.

If in these the training from childhood up, has been to favor plainness of attire, Ashland nor any other school, will be disgraced by the vanity of its graduates. But, if the atmosphere breathed in those home schools, we should say, has been such as to feed the desire for display in buildings, homes, carriages, farniture, cookery, clothing, jewelry, artificial ornaments, &c.; you may rest assured that it will take the long term at those schools and that, too, under guard, to plack up the faces which have already been sown. The school may indeed serve as a kind of scapegoat to lay the fault upon; but the poor goat did not commit the sm; it only served as an instrument to lay the sin on, and thus case the conscience of the one who committed it,

In our little observation, we notice that it is not always where the plainest parents live, that the plainest children are reared. Nor do we see that those who were brought up outside of the Lurches' Iraining, are the noist vain. And again, neither do we see that these who lake the most education, make the nost deploy, but we soo the reverse, more gentlemen, modesty and lumility. Neither do we see those who have the least education, done the best variety, but unite fle reverse; by lane as see same, concat, stubborniess, with generally a strong desire to disjuly, something, it if the rice more than their weakness. And in this last, there is scapely ever a fadure,—the wealaness is Jown,

We should also say, frait the teachers an loar homes =-school-houses are those to be blamed for the evil influences at work, as much or more snase in the first they have to deal with the case material schemit is pliable, p'esto, and inthe hards of the first workmen; bot on the soand ease every teacher must work with material that has already been wooked, perhaps more than once, and which may be at times, still unber the first hummer. Now many privileges and blessing have been given as through the year just ended. For all these we must give an account, talents, time, opportunities, Sunday sermons, bountiful barvests. And because we are alive we should be filled with hearty gratitude to God. Our lips, heart. and lives should show forth his praise. Now let us erect an annual stone as a memorial and inscribe upon it, Ebenezer. Let us resolve to live more to God in this year than we did in the past, and let us awake to diligence, zeal and devotedness to the cause of personal religion, and in efforts to glorify God and do good to

We pleasantly talked over the project, believing that the good of the Brotherhood should be kept in view, and that whatever would be done should be in harmony with the principles of truth and according to divine wisdom. Our sincere desire is to labor in such a way as to keep down the spirit of strife and impolly emuof extra labor. 2. It would be a violation of lation. Our brother Lochr, since our last notice of coming in rather faster than our mailing clerks ry. The succession is by no means clear, and the further we trace the line toward the apotolic age the less we are inclined to endortheir claims to legitimate succession,

The early bishops at Rome, like all other bishops of the first century, had charge of their home congregation over which they were duly appointed. Each individual church had charge of its own local affairs, had its own overseen and was in no way subject to the rolings of any man aside from the elders, or overseers of the congregation. Popes and presiding elders were unknown. The apostolic method of church government did not demand such,

As time advanced and corruption increased the bishops in the larger cities began to think of themselves more highly than they ought Their advice was considered superior to that of country bishops, and by degrees they gained the pre-emmence, hence the title "metropolitan ldshop." . From these came the pope, the illes gitimate head of the Roman Catholic church They were not content with the simple method of church government practiced by the first Christians Carnality caused them to look to a higher homan power than that invested in the overseers of a congregation, hence they instituted the supposed higher order, and though the heresy is much talked against by protestants generally, yet there are but few denominations clear of this evil more or less. If they do not worship a pope, they must call somebody else the "head of the church," thus virtually no knowledging that the church has two heads.

THE OLD ORDER.

NUMBER II.

The Will-Christ's Blessings-Looking for a Model-The Legacy-When the Gospel is the Power of God unto Salvation-Death and Resurrection-Pedobaptist and Baptist Orders-The Gospel Order.

Tor where a bestoment is, there must also of pressily be the death of the bestator. For a testanotes of torce after men are dead; otherwise it is or no strength at all while the testator byeth."-

MHE word "Testament" means the Gospel dan of salvation, the one Law for the government of the "one body " of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. The word " Testator" evidently means the Lord and Savior of mankind. The words, Law, Will, Truth, Corenant, and Testiment, are used interchangeably in the Livme tracles. These terms are qualified, contrasted and compared as "old," "new," "first," "second," " better," " perfect," "living," These analitying words show that there has been a change. There can be no new Covenant unless there be first an old Covenant. There can be no sound without a first; nor can any one speak of a "better Covenant" unless there be first a good one. Moses was the mediator of the first Covenant, Christ of the second.

A will may, or may not, have express condilions. This is entirely at the option or wish of the testator. A will in force is supposed to have, (1) a duly qualified testator; (2) a legacy; (3) legal heirs; (4) conditions; (5) an executor or executors: (0) the death of the testator. The Will of Jesus the Christ, is not wanting in any of these particulars. He himself is the duly qualified Testator. The legacy is the forgiveness of sur-, the gift of the Holy Spirit, and the promise of eternal life. "Being justified by his grace, we should be heirs according to the hope of eternal life." Titus 3: 7. The conditions, faith, repentance, buildism, and " justient contimume in well-doing," walking in "all of the commandments and ordinances of God, blame-The church, the "one body," is the exscutor, and is in duty bound to execute the Will o the Bedremer. Hithis be a model, why the pendent on the cross is a model? Not one [ming at Jerusalem." et these can serve as a model for a man to get into Christ non. The Will is in force, and we bust comply with the conditions. It will not do to go into restains over the pointent on the thes, asserting that to be a model for us.

In thus, reasoning we sloped wish to be unders and as teaching that Christ had no Will $rac{h_0}{2}m_0$ his death. He had a Will, his Father's $W_{\rm HI,-}$ to perform, but before his death be had power to deviate at pleasure. be of God, or whether I speak of myself." Here he speaks of the necessity of doing the Father's will, sometime before his death. The will, then, could be done just as fast as it was revealed. To all, the command had been given, "Repent." Men therefore should repent. To all, the command had gone forth, "Believe." Hence all could believe. The confirmal, "Be baptized" was also given, therefore all could do that part of the Will. We have now briefly noticed the add order of things up to the last night of our adorable Jesus in the "upper room" in Jerusalem. The work done there we shall leave for a future chapter.

First, there must be a Gospel, a Word of Truth; second, this Gospel must be preached; third, somebody must hear it; fourth, those hearing, must believe it; and fifth, obey it. When all these transpire, then the Gospel is "The power of Gad unto subrution." Here are five clear and distinct points, all necessary to the work to be accomplished. Now keep these points in view; First, the Gospel was given; second, the apostles believed it; third, they preached it; fourth, the people heard it; fifth, and obeyed it.

Upon what conditions has Jesus bequeathed his legacy? Remission of sins, the gift of the Holy Sparit and the hope of atomil life. Let us note particularly Gad's order-the old order.

A sinner stands condemned before God, not because Adam sinned, not for Adam's acts, nor Adam's gorlt, neither for any other person's guilt, but because of his oun sins, the actual sins which he has committed. The effect of Adam's sin, separation from God, passed upon all men, but from this Christ redeemed all without any conditions. "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." $^{-\alpha}$ For since by man (Adam) came (physical) death, by man (Christ) came also the resurrection of the deal. For as in (tor by) Adam all die, (return to dust) even so in (or by) ('brist shall all be made alive" (redeemed from dust). [1 Cor. 15; 21, 22, [17] shall be raised from the dead, saints, smuers, infants and idiots. The "graft of original sin" is not found in the Bible. How they can find in the last commission, one order for an adult and another for an infant, we fail to perceive. Perhaps they can tell us how they find it, and where to find it.

> Second, Baptist Order. "(1) Preaching; (2) repentance; (3) faith; (4) remission of sins; (5) haptism." Now here we have two orders, differing from each other, both claiming to be drawn from the list great commission of the infullible Teacher, the Captain of our salvation, the Bishop and Shepherd of our souls. From the theories and deductions of uninspired writers we turn, and look towards the third, or Gospel Order. (1) The Gospel in fact; (2) those who heard, believed it; (3) they all received it; (4) the apostles were given power to preach it: (5) they preached it " with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven;" (6) the preachers baptized all penitent believers "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost? (7) they taught them "to observe all things which Jesus had communded them. From this we learn, that the Gospel of Christ, exists; (2) must be preached: (3) must be heard-(Rom. 10: 14-17); (4) to be believed; (5) and obeyed; therefore the Gospel of Christ consists of facts to be believed; commands to be obeyed, and promises to be enjoyed or hoped for. The Gospel Order, then, is, (1) faith; (2) repentance; (3) haptism; (4) remission of sins; (5) the gift of the Holy Chost. For further proof let us turn to Acts 2: 38: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" First in order was peruching by Peter; (2) the hearers believed; "Faith cometh by hearing." (Rom. 10; 47). Their hearts are changed; they are filled with godly sorrow, and want to know what to do. Let the Holy Spirit give the answer: (3)" Repent," and (4) " be bajitized," (5) " for the remission of sins" (6) " and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Thus the Holy Ghost commands a sinner to hear the Gospel, believe it, repent, be buptized, and he shall have the remission of sins, the gift of the Holy Spirit, and the hope of eternal left. This is the divine arrangement, the old inder.

By carefully following the Divine order, the reader will notice that Christ's life, death and resurrection constitute the three leading facts of the New Covenant,—that faith, repentance and baptism to all alien suriers, constitute the three bading communities to them, and that remission of sins, gill of the Holy Ghost, and hope of eternal life, are the three grand promcos to all who comply with the conditions. Is not this the Gospel order? H not, why not?

will work together for good, keeping the peace and harmony of the church in view, As our papers have much to do with the peace and prosperity of the church, it is hoped that they will be conducted in a way that will reflect credit on the cause. So far as we are concerned, individually, we are ready to do anything that will be for the good of the Brotherhood at large. Our object is to do all in our power for the interest of the cause. We have no reason to complain about patronage. Our list is large, with prospects of increasing. We, however, have this much to say at present: Whenever our editorial brethren, throughout the Brotherhood, get ready to consult together with a view of forming some kind of a consolidation so as to have less papers in the church they will find us ready for just such a move. And I am satisfied that every brother and sister will say, amen.

GETTING UP A SENSATION.

THE Buttle Flag wants us to either "proce or withdraw" what we said about Ray's "rough and unbecoming language." We need not prove it. Our readers know the fact of the matter. They read his speeches and know just what he writes. We cannot take it back-what we said is true. That part of the article, referring to My Ray, was written very deliberately. To Mr. Ray's credit we state, that in this written discussion he is not near as rough as he was at the Newtonia debate. He has improved that much. Of course, his cry will be, that we are trying to manufacture prejudice against him. But so far as the manufacturing business is concerned he is far ahead of as; he does that part

Mr. Ray says: "We hope Mr. Moore will prove or withdraw his charges. If he thinks Mr. Stein needs help, let him come to his rescue in a more housialde way."

Bro. Stein is getting along finely. We are well pleased with his defense. He needs no help, if it is his first written debate, and he has tor his opponent the best Baptist debater of the South-west. But Ray is getting uneasy; there is something coming, he has written a book, and that is to come onto the witness, stand to testily against him; and to ward off the Idow and if possible, bessen the shock, he is trying to mise a sensation the wants compledly to sympathize with him. Verily his case is a hard one.

PALESTINE TO BE RESTORED.

The London correspondent of the Lians Mggthry, weites bothad journal as follows: "I ean state as a foct, and not as a mere immor, that a symbolicate is actually in process of consolidation, which less for its sole abject the panelicos of Pigles-Time from the Tarkish Government and its pestogaa paper entitled the Gorgel Preacher, the pron to the dews in some form. The above indicates the very thing we have been expecting for some time. It would seem that the fulfilling of prophecy is at hand, and that the day is not far distant when the times of the Gentiles will be fulfilled, and the Jews permitted to return to their native land.

NOT SO FAST IF YOU PLEASE.

The Brethern at Work has, in violation of its contract, shut out the discussion, and sends it out on a little extra slip."

Is the printing of a matter in a supplement to preserve the debate and prefer it in a supplement. Is Mr Ray alraid to have the debate preserved? It looks very much like it. The tide is turning against him, he feels it, and now wants to ruse a cry of victory for effect. The man would better save his breath till the battle is over. The will need it long before he gets his łackward single immersionist Baptist Church traced back to the apostolic times. The gentleman will have enough to do if he keeps his own side of the question straight.

I MHE law adduded to by the apostle in 1 Time ↓ I: 9, is the moval law. There were two; laws given by Moses, the ceremound law, and the moral law; the object of the latter was to restriction crimes, and to paintsh those who would commit them. This law was not for the rightgons as a restrainer of crimes, or an inflicter of immishment, for such committed no licinspresstors, therefore the law did not be against them. The first passage is our Lord's address to the cut off Christians when ver found. father of the demoniac, who was possessed by all dumb spirit. The disciples could not cast out this devil, and when the father appealed to Jeaus. He addressed to him the language indicated by our querist: "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." The father had said, " If thou caust do anything, have mercy on us and help us." Jesus told him it all depended on himself. I am sufficiently able to effect a cure, I am sufficiently able to do anything, I can furnish the power, if thou canst but exercise sufficient faith to receive it. Why is it that we are not cleansed from all sin, when the apostle tells us that " this is the will of God even our sanctification? " The cleansing power is in Jesus; in Him is the ability to cleanse us from all sin; if we are not pure, the fault is ours; on our part it is lack of desire, or lack of

The second passage alludes to the signs that shall follow those that believe. The word uccompany would better express the meaning than "follow," "these signs shall accompany." These signs were miraculous powers that were conferred upon the spostles and those converted by their immediate ministry. These signs were confined to the apostolic age, and in that age were literally fulfilled. It is a fact, according to this prediction of our herd, that not one of the apostles lost their lives by posson, while Molaummed, who styled himself the apostle of God, lost his life in this way.

THE SWIMD AND GARMENT.

The wholeverse reads thus: "Then said be unto them, but now, he that buth a purse, let him take it, and likewise his script; and he that linth no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one." The fast charge is obscure, and difficult to understand it. We have seen, and heard several explanations, the one we must favor is that of Bishop Pearce. He thinks that the word machairen translated sword, has been inscribil here. In the Bible Unnoctranslation the clause reads thus: "And he whichath none, let ham sell his garment and July a sword." The above is said to be far the most literal rendering. Such being the case, sword stands rather awkwardly in the passage; by substituting our for sword, the construction is fur lietter. The pronominal adjective "mone" would then refer to script in the former clause. Then the meaning of our Savier is plant; The fells His disciples. that now the reabout to send them indo all the world, among inhospitable bribes, prudence would therefore do tate that they make provisjons for their journey, so necessary would it be that they have scrip, or bags to carry provision m, that rather than be without these they had hetter part with their appear garments to proenre them. FOR YOUNG SISTERS.

BY MARY J. STEES.

[N No. 50 of the Bretimen at Work, we read that a brother writes: " We think the BESTURES AT WORK quite a belp to the young members." Yes, it is invariably a help; but am sorry to think that many neglect to adopt it as a help. Possibly you will ask why I think so. I shall tell you by asking a question. Do you read the whole or part of the paper every week? Who can unswer, "I do?" While conversing with young sisters. I frequently have occasion to speak of the paper, and I am inclined to believe that some do not read one article during the week, and more inclined to believe that they neglect to read the Bible. Dear young sisters, we have undertaken a great work. The object of this work is the hope of receiving eternal life. God says, if we leave one command undage, we are in debt for the whale. (From Our Special Correspondent.)

SUMBER VII.

DY request of the Brethren, I went to visit B Rome church, to assist brother Jesse Cal-Preft, in holding a series of meetings at that place. Arrived on the 29th of November, prace. I found that old veteran of the cross at work in the Master's cause and in good spirits. The meetings continued until the close of the week, The interest was growing, and we trust will not lose its effect.

On Saturday we visited our dear sister, Laura Ebersole, who is passing the crucible of affliction. We had a very pleasant interview with that kind family. After sharing their kind hospitalities, we spent the afternoon in conversation about Zion, and the apbuilding of the Muster's cause. The dear sister not being able to attend meeting at the church, she desired a season of devotion at their pleasant home.-Brother Calvert selected some consoling words, the 4th chapter of 2 Cor., after which he offered up a petition in behalf of all present, and especially of the suffering sister. Amidst suffering, it was a season of joy and the power of prayer was greatly appreciated. How many suffering saints on earth, desiring to be unclothed, that they might be clothed upon with that house, which is from heaven. Yes, dear sister, while you are in this tabernacle, suffering as you do, and being burdened, oh continue faithful until God shall call you, then can you be clothed upon, that mortality might be swallow-

On bord's day we went to the Southern part of their district, to dedicate their new church, called Oak Grove. This is a large substantial building, 40×70, and well finished, with a seating capacity of about one thousand. About $\frac{10}{10}\,\mathrm{A},\,\dot{M}_{\rm b}$ the people began to pour in from all points of the compass, until this spacious hailding was densely tacked. Brother Calvert introduced the service, by reading Solomon's dedicatory prayer of the Temple. 1 Kings 8: 99-30. Then suggested as a song of pouse, the 325th hymn, and then went to prayer. For a motto for his discourse, he relected the words, "How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gale of heaven." Gen. 28: 17. The sermon was indeed very interesting, and we trust profstable to all. In listening to his convincing arguments and strong appeals, and of the great responsibilities resting upon the Christian, both in the care of the body and the church, it was enough to minke one feel, how dieadid is the place. In the evening we re-assembled for divine corvices. The andience was entertained in the light of the Gospel, by one of the munsters present, on the mortality of man and his responsibility to God. Here we had the pleasure of meeting brother J. W. Reese, of Partage, and brothren hors and our youthful brother Young, from Green Spring. Next morning returned home, and have since learned that the mosting at Dak Grove church, was a success, and that quite a number were added by haptism. Returning home as brother P. J. Brown arrived, we left Dunkirk for Pleasand Ridge church of Eagle Creek branch, where we consucuced operations in the camp of the Lord. I remained with boother Brown until Wednesday, when brother E. Bosserman, took my place is assisting our old veteran of the ches. On Saturday we exchanged again and l remained in the camp with brother Brown until the close of the meeting on Tuesday. The results were glutions. Six previous souls, were wided to the church by haptism, and the inter-(2 maintested by all m. attendance was good, We return our thanks to the dear people in that youndy, for their kindness shown while in then andst, forest was the rejoicing in the camp when it was seen that the rock was bezhonez to break under the lammer of the Go-pt. or powerfully wielded by brother Brown We have reason to beheve that there was joyat beiven, in beholding the enlargement of the bougdom. II, may the Gospel trumpet be beradded nor clong and lond until the enemy of all be lampled from the land.

Again were we called to visit one of the desires to deport when the Muster calls, and perioded the last once. Among these present trans-dwell with Christ, which is far better. Oh what a world of suffering this is! But cheer thou weary one, after passing through the crucible. There is a home beyond where sorrow, sickness, pain and death can never come .-Praise God for the happy thought. Were this our only home we would soon despair and bow to earth; our dust would mingle with its kindred element, the dust of the earth long before the appointed time. But the glorious thought, there is a house not made with hands eternal in the heavens, awaiting the faithful which animates and cheers the heart and causes us to wait patiently until the Father calls.

To-day our dear brother James and wife took their departure for the far West, to occupy their future home, and the formerly joyons hearts now wore a solemn aspect, and sorrow was depicted upon their countenances; all because the uncertainties of life are such, that in ail probability we never more on earth shall if the Lord permits, return to this place the meet again. But as we are all sailing together in the good old ship Zion, we trust that if the hills and valleys, mountains and streams, that now separate us, will separate us while this life remains, we will meet on the golden shore. where we can reunite and never more take the parting hand. We accompanied them to the train and there amidst the tears and farewell be yet, but still I am conscious, I grow downgreetings of a kind mother and son, brothers and sisters, we saw them board the train and we saw them no more. Such are the changing scenes of life. We are glad that there is a being who is unchangeable, and that is our God. And we greatly rejoice that His laws are fixed, and that where He dwells and where we may dwell is an eternity of perpetual love and holy enjoyment. May God help us to secure that S. T. Bosserman.

I only staid at home three days. Home sweet home; be it ever so humble, there is no place on earth like home. Here I could rest my poor worn down body and weary mind, and enjoy the association of my town loved ones, from whom I am so often and so long separated. This here I could by by the sword of the spirit and rist. There remaineth a rest for the amorale of Hed.

A started for Falls City, Neb., on the 2nd of December. This church has had its dark days of gloom, that hung over it like a portentions cloud, but I am rejoiced to say that peace and formony have been restored to a great extent; and I found the members in as good, if not lestter, working combition than any congregation I have yis fed for a long time. Hence there was co-operation from the beginning of the meeting. God blessed our united efforts, and smits were made to reporce, and many to turn to the Lord. To His name be all the praise,-The congregation was very large. I continued tor eleven days. There were tourteen toutized, and several more applicants.

The undisters here are Christian Forney, older S. C. Stungs, J. Johnston, and brother Inchty. The congregation numbers now about one hundred and thirty members.

I schlom form a closer attachment for a church than I did here. May the Lord keep them in prace and love. They are disposed, I amighad to say, to carry out our distinctive tratures in general appearance and department.

I have had opposers, and bitter and learned ones too, who have tried hard to ensuare me in words, so that I might be brought before the magistrate and imprisoned; but the Lord has stood by me and delivered me from them all.

I am well only I am wet through, having been in the rain several days; but such things a missionary can bear with joy, when the seed be scatters is received by hungry souls. Ushall, middle of January next. Several calls from here and other places far and near have come, which demand my personal attention. I do not see how I ever shall be free from traveling, yet God sees further than I, and I hope to be more and more a willing and, obedient child of the Father. I am not near as small as I can ward; and God grant that to go on until I am nothing, but He all in me.

Dec. 2nd. Found all reasonable well at home, and can say, the one mentioned to be baptized when I left, was received into the church the day appointed.

I have commenced a series of meetings in our new hall this week, and had last night a good attentive congregation of new people, we never saw before. May God bless the work to further increase.

All communications are closed on account of snow.

Our old sister Karew will be blind in a short time, and needs an operation to remove a substance growing over the eyes. She is in the hands of a doctor at present, and we have to nurse her in mir home; so we have to bear burdens of all kinds. Ask God that we may be able to do so and to be faithful until death. C. Hore.

From Croton, N. J.

TIME Brethren here have been building a new house for worship, which according to previous appointments, was dedicated to the service of the Most High, on Dec. 5th, at 10:30, opened by singing the 32nd hymn. Prayer by brother J. P. Hetric, of Parladelphia, Pa,-Preaching by brother James Quinter, of Huntingdon, Pag from Psalms 27: 4: " One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in his temple," thur house was filled to its intmost capacity. with eager listeners, who after being dismissed, repaired to their homes, and to places where bedily hunger could be satisfied, to return again in the evening to hear brother Quinter.

Do the 6th, foother Hetro preached an excellent sermon. In the evening brother Quinter addressed as from I Chron. 28: 4: "For the Lord searched all hearts". This discourse we heard men remark, was the most powerful, one they ever listened to.

On the evening of the 7th was our Lovefeast. Brother Quinter addressed us. We feel that our spiritual strength was increased, and was renewed by might no the inner man-About sixty members communed. The house was filled to everthewing. After services I have now enjoyed about a week's rest, brother Quinter took his baye for the Amwell which I so much needed. Am now again in church. Brother Hetric remained with us unthe field. May God's blessing affend those thigher 420%. The preached several instructive discourses. Although we see no mimediate result of these meetings in the conversion of souls, yet we trust the word preached will be " bread east mon the waters" which will reruch not many days bence; for we believe that there are those that are anno-lapershaded for be And S. I LAST wrote you from Elk Lick, Nov. 41th. I from there I went to Meyer-dale, and held ne reased congregations. I have held there in a box interesting meetings; a lew apple ants seeded in opening agrapromising field for good and haptized two more, making in all thirty at Jone every where. But it is no weet together

On the 26th, started for J. P. Ebersoles, Hancock Co., Ohio. Had a few meetings at the old church. Dec. 1st, dedicated their new church, on Limestone Ridge. It is one among the best buildings in the brotherhood. The andience was very large, and the meeting interesting. Had meeting Monday evening .-Tuesday had a Love-feast at the same place. It was a feast indeed. I then continued the meeting until December 11th, with eleven additions by baptism, and still more felt willing to come. May the good Lord ever bless and care for the lambs of His fold, and save them, Arrived home; found all well. Thanks he to the Lord, and thanks to the brethren and sisters and friends, for their kindness to ore.

WE have reached our new home in Hinois. I will comply with the requests of many who wished to hear from me; as it is my lot to be a kind of a pilgrim in this world, and there are many kind brethren and sisters and friends, that wished me to write to them. I thought I would write one letter for all who take your

I like my home much thus far. The people are very kind to me. I have not seen many of the members of this congregation yet, but what I have seen are very kind. The weather has been cold, and the roads key.

Dearly beloved, I think this world is a world of sorrow and grief. I get so very lonesome. I have none of my friends or relatives to assoends with. The people here are all strangers to me. There is no place on earth like my na tive home,-the land of my friends. Sisters pray for me, that we may all meet in heaven-

Sanatem of news from this county, we will say that we had a very interesting series of meetings at the Maple Grove schoolhouse, commencing Dec. 1st, and ending on the evening of the 10th, conducted by older A. Harper, of Ray Co. We were made to rejoice to have the happy privilege of leading two precums souls into White Choid, and haptized them according to the Master's charge. May they hold fast their profession without wavering, Many more deep impressions were made,

From the Four Mile Church, Ind.

UR church is situated near the beautiful little stream, called Four Mile Creek, from which it took its name. It was organized in the year 1809, by brethren Jacob Miller, John Hart and Bolton; and is said to be the first church of the Brethren ever established in the State of Indiana. When this church was organized, it was then in what was called the Twelve Mile purchase. At that time the Red man, the hunting ground and his wigwam was not very far West of us. The tide of emigration and civilization has driven them westward, and they are no more running over our State; but the wilderness they inhabited has now become one of the garden spots of America; and instead of their wigwams, the Brethren have erected their churches in which to worship the true and living God. In organizing this church, brother Daniel Miller and John Moyer were chosen to the ministry, and Christopher Witter and Joseph Kingrey. were chosen for dencons. The church increased very fast; and there has been quite a number of speakers elected in this church, and moved to different parts of the country.-Among them are brother Daniel Miller, John Moyer, William Moss, John Whiteneck, Hiel Hamilton, John Hunsel and Joseph McCarty Brother Daniel Miller is living in Monroe Co., Iowa, and brother Hamilton is living in Howard Co., Ind. The rest have passed from Jahor to reward. But two speakers have died in this district since its organization. Bultzer Lybrook died about the year 1828, and Abraham Moss died in the year 1860. We have from one handred and lifteen to one hundred and twenty members, with five speakers and six deneous.

Brother S. H. Bushor came to our church November 26th, and stayed until December 10th; and preached twenty-two sermons, which resulted in (wenty-sex additions by haptism, and a general good feeling by all that attended the modings. We must say that we were made to rejoice to see so many of our friends and mighbors come out on the Lord's side. and especially some of our own family. In the list year we have received thirty-two memhers in the church. Hoping the good Lord imiy bestow his grace on us all; that we may be kept in the "Unity of the sparit and the bonds of peace," which has ever characterized our congregation with a very few exceptions. Would to God that all mankind would serve him in all his beachings. Prode and selfishness is a great hardrance to the advancement of the Gospel in its true light among mankind. Avoidant.

DRETHREX Henry Saylor and Jesse Fox. D of Maryland, and Galeen Bollinger, of Medica Co., Olivo, come, and labored with us, from the 7th antil the evening of the 16th. December, in the Upper Contavings rimusch. On the evening of the 12th, brother J. A. S.B., from Blarr Co., and brother William Howe. from Millin Co., Pa, commenced preaching in Lower Communes church, and continued until the evening of the 22nd; and on the evening of the 23of same to latinous meeting-house. Upper Comwago, quite near the dividing line of the two congregations. They confirmed their labors until the evening of the 2 8h. The result of these meeting was, six procesus souls were made willing to coverant with their God, by haptism, three of which were haptized after the evening services were over, and then went on their way rejoicing. We have reason. to helpeve that many solemn, impressions, were number among the audience as the people were quite orderly. To us the meetings were quite enjoyable, as the most were within a radius, of from three and one-half to ten imbs of the place we call home; so myself and family could attend the most of them; and often we were made to feel, if not like, yet similar to a Peter of old, "It was good to be there". On the whole, it was good to be there () November 18th, brother Buckalew, of Clifton Mill, Virginia, came to this congregation, and communiced a series of meetings. which lasted until the 25th. He preached twelve sermons. The brother faithfully abdivered the messages from God to us. in comforting the church, and warning the sinners.

The weather and reads have been very uninvorable for the attendance of our meetings; hence they were not so large as they would have been under the circumstances. But we feel sure that his labor was not in vain. This precious soul came out on the Lord's side and was buried with Christ by Christian Daptism. and rose to walk in newness of life.

But I have not fold it all, these children were not confined in their place all the time of meeting. After their particular part of the service was over, they were dismissed and permitted to go out while the older ones did the singing and heard a discourse especially for them. This was don't the order of holding meetings in the days. of Clement, Chrysustom, Basil, Cyril, These old fathers took a greater interest in the clubdren of their day, than is taken now, and the last idea built is, the feaching of children was right in the church; it was a church work, done in their religious service. Their work, was, far sliesed of the Subbuth-school, arm other words, it was doing all the work of the Sabbath-school in the church. The children were made the first and great feature appearing in their religons service. This is one of the great reasons why the church increased so last in that ages The children were taught younger than now to feel the church was theirs-the church was for them. Now many think the church is for old people, that the young must run off mismwander a produgal till be is starving, and many die and never come back.

The old fathers did all they could to keep them from every sin, and teach, them in every truth. This is the reason these old fathers barfixed some very young. They tell us of baptizing some that were only seven years old, but they were better taught in Scriptural truth than many or our children at twice that age.

Our meeting at Dora reminded us of the meetmgs of the primitive church, when so many of the little boys and girls made the company around the stand. We shall long remember how these little boys and girls gathered around us to shake hands, when our last meeting closed They came from the feeling of their own warm 1) hearts, (they were not told to come), but they knew older ones had no preference over them. 6 and hardly so much as they, hence they came hist to express their regard to one who they knew had great concern for them. If Jesus would take "little children in his arms and ldess them," we, too, should do and say all we can to ldess and save them.

But we want to turn the thoughts of our WE have just whised our meeting at Thore, manustry to the young, because we feel that they in the Antroch church, which had in the rection much neglected in our meetings for one very remarkable tearnie, that is, the conduct beworship. This rigorous winter season is the time to try the souls of the poor, and in another sense. no less the souls of the rich. Scanty food and insufficient raiment, poor shelter, or none at all, test the strongest faith and the most. Job-like judience. Winter also tests the godhness of the rich. If Christ is in them, He will show Huoself in the cold season. If a man's religion can stand the Winter, there is Divinity in it. The Straight Gate demonds, frost-proof, as well as fire-proof. To sit by a warm stove, and nestle in a cozy bed, and be elad with alumdance of heavy apparel, and partake of rich fare three times a day, and have money in the chest, or perhaps invested, while some povertystricken fellow-mortal is shivering in want, or some about his wellering in his blood, next door to us-this turns out the black side of our cloak. The Cross juts the ends of the earth into neighborhood. Luke 10: 29-37. When God became man He made every man our broth-

The illustration of this sublime truth by the church, is God's standing advertisement to the world, written with the blood of Jesus. The preincarnate Savior " was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich." Our treatment of man as faan, is the deepest test Christianity admits of. Tried by this principle, we can see where we stand as individuals, and what is the status of the church. desus died for Cesar and Hered, not because they were monarchs, but because they were hisman. The publican, the harlot, the malefactor, the outcast, the jumper, the leathesome leper, stand on the same level in relation to the Incarnation, as princes and potentiales, Rothschilds and Stewarts. Deprecation of the poor because of their poverity, is unchristian. I have seen a great orator in our own Brotherbood refuse to take a seat in a milerar, because there were colored folks in. This was putling Christ to an open shame. The blood of Jesus flowed as freely and warmly for black as for white. " All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass". The rich, and mighty have no prerogatives as to their induce, no mammities as to the common destinies of that nature. ANOTHER YEAR NEARER HOME.

BY MARTHA BEEGILY.

NOTHER year has possed away, and we are nearer to the tomb. This is a solemn thought, but one that should be considered by each and every one; that we are one year nearer to the tumb, than we were when this year commenced. When we permit our minds to run back over the year which has just closed, we notice many changes. We think of some, who were in the bloom of youth, and in the vigor of manhood, and some more advanced in years; yes, even from old age down to the litde infant on its mother's knee, who were with and among us in the last year, but to-lay, how changed the scene! How many bonnes have been visited and underful by the king of terrors, in the removal of some dear cone that is now sleeping in the silent city of the deal.

But why should we marvel, since it is just the fulfilling of the deepe that went forth long since: "Dust thou art, and untodust shalt them return." Much rather left as wonder why it is that we are yet here. Is it un account of the good that we have done? Most assuredly not, We must acknowledge that we all to a certain extent, have merited God's displeasure, rather than his favor. But we are glad to know and we rejoice in the thought, that God has been merculal units us. He has not dealt with us according to our suis, neither rewarded us ac ording to our mignities. Through his long suffering, and and his mercy, our almost useless aves have been prolonged, as monuments of his amazing love. Since we are aware that "Our days are as the grass, or like the flaver of the field," and that this life is but a journey to the tomb, the thought comes up like this: Shall we survive the present year? It may be before another New Year's day will dawn; it will be said of us, that we, too, have gone to our long home,

The question now arises: Are we ready and waiting for the change? If so, happy are we, "for the bord uphobleth the righteous, be knows their days, and their inheritance shoul be forever," Oh, brethren and sisters, fet us redouble our diligence and trust in the God of our salvation, remembering that our S vior said, "Fear not, little flock, for it is your lather's go d pleasure begive you the language. When these Israelites, who were no longer a nation, had probably the strongest hopes of speedy deliverance from the oppression under which they groaned, and of the restoration to a people, as in ages past, in fulfillment of the words of their prophets, as understood by them. there appeared among them a man of very humble parentage and appearance, who called to these devoted people, asking them to repent, " for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." They probably supposed that if the heavenly kingdom was indeed at hand, it came as a reward for their devetion and zenl; and they were no doubt indignant when they heard this curpenter's Son ask them to repent. They knew the young man, who was born in a stable in one of their villages. Little notice was therefore taken of him as he went about selecting a few persons of like humble parentage and position, and with them traveled ed with tront and feeling not a little throughout the country, declaring to these very religious Israelites that they were hypocrites, and had need of deep repentance. But the humbler of the impenetrable, shutting out what little people felt themselves irresistably drawn light was still lingering in the heavens, after him; and those whom he called, at once obeyed, leaving friends and propide; and calculated to make one feel crty, without even asking whither he was going.

The limited people, who asked not whence he came or whither he was goo ling, but looked to his character and works, were by no means left without enconragement; for he not only preach ed the Gospel to the poor, declaring even fired several shots at it. Anst think those Idesseil, who were poor in spirit, who mourned, who were weak, who however, over rocks and fallen trees hungered and thirsted after righteousness, and who were mereiful, pure in steering clear of any black object that heart and peacemakers, but he also be healed all manner of sickness and all for a fresh mess of tront or to drink un- manner of diseases among the people, der the cover of the evening shades, and continually went about "doing Finally circling the last bend and npc good." Although these devoted men knew how nupopular their Master was among the leading Israelites, and that he made no effort to gain popularity or power they nevertheless hoped that he would restore Israel to be again a kingdom, for this they understood by the prophets, the promised Messiah would do. So sure were they of this, that they even disput, ed among themselves as to whom of them should be the greatest in the new king. dom; and two of them asked for special positions therein. What kingdom did they expect be would establish, whom "the winds and the sea obey," who healed the people of their infirmities and brought the dead to life again! For such a King they might well be willing to endure hardships and abuses. None of the disciples were as ready to fight for the Master as Peter, and on more than one occasion did he show that he ex. proted to be well rewarded for this de. votion.

Could it be possible that the man who repeatedly showed that he knew the thoughts of the people, would tolerate a traitor among his chosen ones? For the sake of gaining a little "filthy luere," one of them betrayed him into the hands of his bitterest enemies. But while he was thus gratifying his lust for gain, he hardly expected that any harm could come to his Master; for he knew his powers, and that on a former oceasion he escaped " through the midst of them" when they had him on the hill intending " to east him down headlong." But in this effect to includge the love of money, the Shepherd was smitten and the sheep were scattered.

Just before this happened, the Master had said to his disciples, "The that both no sword, let him sell his garments and lay one." This probably encouraged Peter to strike the enemy with the sword, and wound a man. Peter decaired, " Land thou knowest all things, that knowest that I have thee, But the Lord's only ready was, " Read my lambs, feed my slie p."

The Masor bed spoken many parables to like disciples; and in one of these, concerning the heavenly kingdom, he said that the King told those servants who were not aware that they ever ministered to his wants, " lansmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Not only on the cross, but all the time he was in the world, the Lord gave his life for his friends. He never did anything for his own gratification; and the only way he could be acceptably loved, was by loving as he did.

Peter now, probably for the first time. understood what was meant by the words, " It is more blessed to give than tareceive:" and that to honor him who, our of love died for others, like love must be shown; for what else could the Lord have meant by telling him to feed the lambs and sheep? With his wanted zeal, he therefore went about doing what he believed the Lord thus required of him.

But he had not yet comprehended the vastness and universality of the Master's limited to the descendants of Jacob, who had the literal Word of God; although he had heard it said of his Master, that he was " the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." was to feed the Master's lambs and sheep; but he was not yet aware that they were not all of the fold of Israel.

In a vision Peter saw in a large vessel, let down from heaven, "all manner of fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild; beasts, and creeping things, and fowls. of the air," accompanied by a voice which said, " Rise Peter, kill and eat." Should a dew, as Peter was, be asked by a heavenly voice, to cat anything that the law had not promised clean? In the reflection of my own experience I feel nervous and my hand trembles while I write. I have trodden the giddy paths of youth. A have seen and felt that, youtful hopes are seldom realized: I have seen the vigorous frames of young men drop suddenly in death; I have observed the blooming cheeks of the roloist young maiden suddenly eclips: ed in the pale palor of death: I have heard and felt the groanings of disap pointments, I know by actual experience that "Man is of few days and full of trouble." I have learned that earth's greatest enjoyments are delusive; its best friendships limited; its ordinary sympathy treacherous. I have walked through the (to the flesh) luxuriant valley of sin; and, with Solomon, can say, " all is vanity and vexation of spirit." I have learned that the enjoyments found in the path of sin, are not substantial, hence say to you, could your hopes of true pleasure, true character and true success love. He still supposed salvation was on that foundation of which Christ is the chief corner-stone. There, amidst the fadings of earth's pleasures, the visitation of its disappointments, the treachery and coldness of its friendship, you will have an anchor on which to lean. When adversity comes, when friends " it is well."

To the tried Christian, I would say I been dazled by the fiery arrows of the enemy when flying all around me in the darkness of spiritual midnight. I have felt the consciousness of my own weakness and tendency to evil. But amidst all this, I can say, that I experienced the help and consolation of heaven.) and loved ones were falling as it were, to the right and to the left, and my ears were greeted with the doleful sound of The tomb, my hear's burden and sorrow were lightened by the cheering promise of the Waster. When almost discouraged by adverse circumstances in life, I have felt, through the medium of God's promises, the rest prepared for the people of God. When pushed by the hand. of treacherous friendship, I have felt and experienced that in Christ 1 had a true Friend, and have found warm, sympathizing hearts among the passers by, In short, I can testify, from actual experience, that the Lord will—indeed—to with us in six troubdes, and not forsake us in the seventh. God-forldd that we should glory in anything, save in the Cross of Christ.

Tried soldier of the Cross, be firm amidst the shouts of the inhabitants of bliss. You will soon be crowned with victory through him who loved us, and gave himself for us,

May God help all to a saving knowl edge of the truth. What we have fell and seen, with confidence, we tell.

A RICH FOOL.

QOME of you have perhaps heard of that rich man, who, when a friend called on him for something for the Christian commission, drew his check at once for $10,000. He took the gentleman to the cupola yonder. The old man said, That land is mine as far as you can. see." He told him to look at the pasture for thirty miles around, and see all those cattle, "Those are all mine," he said. He took him to another point and showed him houses and gardens and stacks stretching away, and said, "These are all mine." He then pointed to the town near by where were large buildings, "These are all mine." The whole of this is mine.

I came to the West'a poor boy, and have earned all this myself." When the got through, the gentleman said, "Well what have you got applyonder?" The old man's countenance fell, and he asked, twhat do you mean?" "What have you got in heaven?" "I haven't got anything there," the old man said, "Is it possible a man of your ability. discredence and prudence, would enter eternity a panper?" the friend said. The children and south of our people have not received the projeor attention religiously, their religious often tion has been greatly neglected, thus leaving cany of them to grow up without a proper knowledge of the feachings of the Puber. Since it is with the youth and using generation that the government of the church must one day be bit, it is highly necessary that they be well trained for the work.

Sour one informed us that at a certain meeting an effort was made to raise needed money to carry on legally appointed missionary work, but that the elders and deacons took a stand against it, and hence nothing could be done. Aust such work as that is what harts the cause. Elders and deacons, instead of opposing the spreading of the Gornel, ought to be ensamples of the flock and do all in their power to help the goodcare along. Whoever heard of the elders and descons, in the apostolic times, opposing mas--ronary work? Their mission was to "preach the Gospel to every creature," and do all in their power to spread the truth. Men who oppose the spreading of the Gispel oppose the very work the apostles lost their lives in trying to do, "We unto me, it I presch not the Gos pel" should be a warming to every Christian.

A HINT TO PREACHERS.

TASHIONABLE young bady was heard to remark; "I do not feel right when I go to our church. When I say our minister do ssed in the laght of teshion I do not leed good. It is an example to as who are younger. And there is his wife, dressed in the finest style; it is a templation for us to dress fine, too, 10, I do wish the minister and his vale would dress phoner. If would be such a great help to us."

We would to God that all fashionaldy attired ministers could be dize what they are doing toward degrading Chostianity. They are leading the church still larther down into rain autil finally it will become no better than the world. Wee be unterthem in the final judge ment, when the dammation of thousands will be traced to the unfaithfulness of nunisters, who, nestead of being the leaders of tashien, should be ensamples to the flock. A corrupted musisby will end in a corrupted charcle, and both go to rain together.

Then their wives should be models in the church. If there is any woman in the world who ought to doss (damly it is the preacher's wife. They have more influence in thick way than they are generally aware of, As a generof thing, a fashnomble preacher's wife is dressed the linest of any person in the congregation. Instead of being an ensample to younger we men bodging them into the way of simplicity and righteonsness, they become the leaders of eshion, and thus bring the church on a level with the world.

Even among our own people there are some whose hearts are vearining for fasheaus. They long for the day when our church, government, will not be so struct, and they can be permitted locadoure then early es as they please. Such persons know not the consequences of that they wish, fley knew not the rum they would bring on the church of God if they could lost leave then own way. THE OLD ORDER

NUMBER IV.

The Faithful Minister-Afflictions and Distresses Will Come-A Touching Letter-Through the Pearly Gates - "I will have Nothing Lett"-God tries Man's Heart.

MINISTER of the Lord Jesus is one who furthfully carries God's message to the people. Among the Gentiles "they that are great exercise authority." " But it shall not be so coming you," says Jesus, "but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister." Is that all? No; but "whosoever will be charamong you, let him be your servant." Matt 20: 25, 26, 27. On another occasion, the Lord said, " But let the greatest of you become your servant," Matt. 23; 11. From these passages we barn where those who desire to be great and to be chief, shall be placed. They must become servaists, and servant implies master, and master presupposes authority to say "Go," and "Come," This the church maintains as being ther right from Romans 10, 15. She insists myon the privilege of saying "Go," and "Corre," People recline at the table, while ears but the minister who refuses to go and essure ing, as they did at the Last Supper of , when called, is regarded as not performing his Jesus. The sound of the granding is daty. Paul says to his son. Vimothy, "P+a still heard through the quiet night, good numster of Christ," I Tim. 1; 6. This every munster descres to be. There is no care demination to limit who labous to be a good mar The salt used is still of that sort that lister of Christ, And more; the man who preaches the Wood in season and opt of season Togers about in his body, the marks of the Lord desirs, is a good narrister. They must learn to be chastised though not killed; poor, yet makang many righ having midling, yet possessing all things --Testimony +2 Cor. €a 1/12.

These severe fruits and afflictions, all good unnisters withingly cadure, looking to the great Master for the crown. The ministry is likewed unto a man who had servants. He communded from to go out into the field and sow good seed, which they willingly did, long obedient servnote; asking no wigges, save their duly bread. They sowed the seed, and returned to theirma ter, who hads them get into the wilderness until he would call them to return. While they were seeking their hving amid hardships, the master gathered the grams; sold it to mereliant men, and mereased his land. Then he called his servants and commanded them to sow again. sonaling them off as at first. I tell you ble cues of them which sowed "are entered into the earof the Lord of Salmoth."

many other duties devolving upon a minister, called him from his secular labors. No one pitied him and his crops while he went about loved him as they loved themselves. Poor ministers! What if they are burdened, cast down, homeless, wanderers from place to place, seeking every spare moment to collect from this broad earth the comforts and necessaries of life? What it they long, and long to teach others the way of life, when called to feed the starving soul with the Brend of Life? Yes, what! Shall they not he gladly welcomed "over there" when worn out with labors and sorrows, they meet Jesus tace to face? Here they will forever appear in glory, but where is the man who refused to bear some of the burden? Let him take his risks; I seek them not. To burden the ministry for fear that a little help might "spoil" it, is not the old order-not God's great and good arrangement. Equality runs through God's plan of salvation from Alpha to Omega, and wee to him who tramples under foot that equality.

I believe the great body of the church wants its ministers enred for-desires that they be unde comfortable. It is only in certain localities where it is supposed to be that's service to afflict and neglect a minister. It is the laity's business to look after the distressed ministers, and the congregation that neglects this duty, has certainly become handiceanized - neither cold nor hot, but very lukewarm,

"Well," says one, "there are so many calls for aid. If I give to all, I will have nothing left." You put it too strong. The calledo not ask for all you have. They seek only a little of what belongs to the Lord; and how do you know that the calls for you to let goes little, is not God's method of trying you? Perhance your heart has become so completely wrapt up in worldly possessions, that calls have become necessary to strip off the mantle of covetousness, and check the spirit of greed. You know that it is your duty to "give to him that asketh ther "for a good purpose, and if you obey not this commund, how think you to enter the pearly gates of the eternal city? God wisely said, "Give to him that asketh thee," for it is by giving that the heart is kept from falling into idolabry—covetousness.

I rejuce that bod require to give, and the manner he wants estogive. Coving shows just what kind of hearts we have. God has many ways of trying us, and assoredly we need to be tried. Then help your ministers. When he is called away, go and look after his work. See that his earn is attended to, his wheat gathered, and the lazuly made comfortable. God bless the poor, bard-working minister and his family! M. M. E.

HAPPINESS.

10. LHZ/11. b; Wichlis.

PRESUME there is no one in all the world who is not in pursuit of happiness; but the manner in which many are seeking it is really wonderful. The miser, whole he clutches the pennies and boards his thousands, teven though perhaps not quite honestly gained), turning the poor from his door, suffering, thinks be enjoys this. "Your gold and silver is cankered," &c. James 5; 3. The inebriate enjoys his glass while he is clothed in rigs, his tamily starving and destitution all around, yet he will spend the last penny for that which is destroying his soul and body. The chower and smoker takes great comfort with his ignid and paper, defilling the pure our God has given us to locathe, with the formes of tobacco, to the disgust of many, and how it can be pleasing in the sight or God, I cannot conceive. "Whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are levely," &c. Philippoints 4:8. The hishiomible world think they have more enjoyment than any other class, perhaps, are under no restrictions whatever, but what is it and how long does it last? The end of all their enjoyments is remorse of consciouce.

This remainds me of a conversation with a friend who had been visiting relatives in the city who have all things about as they wish it to move in high circles; but as the conversation advanced, she concluded there was not so much solid comfort in it as many suppose. There is too much formulity. I remarked, it is about all form and little reality. The mode of living it the creation, (though there was a perfect system), was su simple that I do not believe any one can truly enjoy the life fashion dictates. It is not natural, but contrary to God's Word. But there is true happiness even in this life, if it is only sought in the right direction. The child of God who lumbly walks in the path our Master marked for us, is washed in the blood of the Lamb, carries out the principles of the Gosa higher order, (that the carnal mind know, ens; the residence of Jehovah.

nothing of) even in this life and a hope that is the regenerated heart sees in the plan of sulvation as found in the Book of all books, and what pleasure in the freedom from condemnation, such are truly happy.

THE BIBLE.

PHE Bible is the young man's own book. It adenounces vices without feeding a dangerais corrosity. It dignifies virtue, not as a means of getting on, but as success and happiness now, and, best of all, it gives the young man the one exclusive way in which vice is vanquished and virtue attained. It lifts up Christimes. It invites to the cross. It offers the new heart and the right spirit. It penetrates the disguises of elegant sin, and exposes the sophistry of cultivated impurty. It flieshes its n veiding rays upon the opening adops to which the tempter leads. It manasks the voluptuous nuget of hight and shows the arabicious fiend. Into the scale against the "pleasures of sin fora season," it allows the "peace of God," and the "pleasures for exermore" or so ago we had quite an interest up some fifteen miles from here among the Missionary Baptists. The second meeting we held, the elder was there himself, and much pleased. As soon as the meeting was brought to a close we were introduced, and warmly commenced to talk about what we had held up during preaching, which was upon the Trinity, as we have it in the 1st clupter of John. Before we got along very far, I made him promise in presence of his members, that should be become convinced of the truth, that he would come to the church, and he wanted me to do likewise. So we joined hands, and promised that the one that had the truth, and could prove the same hy one or two witnesses, should yield. We then began to engage with all the power we had, and before midnight he confessed that his doctrine was not the right kind, and bis memhers saw it plainly, too. They then said, "H you turn, we will go with you." Then the elder had several places where he held meetings, and the next time be fold them that he could no longer preach the way he had, that he had been in error, and that all that he had baptized, were not haptized aright, also, that he would have to leave them and go to the Brethren. Quite a number waited for him to net, then they would follow. A few days after, he came to my place, and we had a good time till about 3 o'clock in the morning. But, during that night I found out that he was not as willing as Paul was to count all things loss that he might win Christ. He wanted the assurance from me, in an indirect way, that he could go as soon as he belonged to us, and preach to them, that he formerly buptized, and re-baptize them; when he found out that we had a calling and did not call ourselves as he had already called himself, then it began to lower, and to the next morning about 9 o'clock, when he left, I was pretty sure that he would not come, could be not preach. Dear Brethven:--

OUR paper is doing good; it is making friends to the cause here. We have no prenching by the Brethren. We heard no preaching last year. O, that some of the brethren we read of, would come and preach for us. We have a school-house, that we have the privilege of this year. We hope to have the brothren preach for us. Send us some of your tracts; here is the place for them. Pray for us; pray God to send the Gospel to this part of His vineward, that His church may be built up in Campbell Co., Va.; for we believe God has a people here. We long to see the time come when the Brethren shall stand on the walls of Zion in this county, and proclaim the Gospel to dying men and women. Strange to say no preaching liere by the Brethren for one whole year, but none that we know of. God bless you and enable you to send out your paper all over the land, that the cause of the Brethren may be unde known to the people,

NE more year is ended. I have done but little for my Mister; only three humbred and sixty-nine have been added to the church at the meeting I held. Some came after the meetings would be closed; probably to the amount of four hundred and fifty,

Ljust closed a meeting at Solomon's Creek. It was indeed a very good mosting; one sister was restored, and many soid, "I will soon come to Jesus " Hope they will not forget at. We had an interesting Sanday-school meeting, and I hope it will be profitable for all. May God bless the rising generation, to be qualified for the duties of the church when the old brethren and sisters are gone. This is the place and way to teach them in the Sunday-school.

The New Year The Old Year The Future who can tell?

(Promoning of the Contemporate of)

NO. Y.

THE New Year comes to every one at the I same time, like the tidal wave of the ozean, it whits for no man. To some it may be a happy senson; to others, a senson of sorrow and grief. Many, no doubt, have reached Jun., 1879, in a combition financially oppressive. But few, comparatively speaking, can say, "They never were better prepared to commence, a New Year. Beginning a New Year always renews in our minds afresh circum dances, and occurrences of former New Years, while some with fond recollections, are thinking over the New Years of former days, attending the mustial feast of some hoppy couple just starting out in life with bright prospects of many happy days together us man and wife, each expecting to make the other happier, as they advance in the pathway of life. Others again, Think of some brother, sister or kind friend whose remains were consigned to the silent tomb. The marble slab with the mene inscribed, erected in some well-known graveyard, marks his last resting place.

Just now we are made to think of some whose pleasant faces and cheering smiles greet ed as in the family circle about one year ago, but now by us are seen no more. Among them was one who was well known to many of our renders. Our chaldren used to call him greatgrandpa. Nearly one year ago he closed his eyes in death, at the advanced age of eighty years and nine days. No doubt many have not yet forgotten him, especially his children, and many friends may think of lamens they enter the New Year. In thinking over what has take an place in the last year, we are made to exelium, " What other year can mark the time of so many bank failures all over the world, as 1878. No former year can untile the Time of ingly on the mercuse. May and the world, in looking back as she enters the New Year, see gried room for unprovement?

The sixer locked vetors of the croas he advances under the bagner of King Je. sas, lighting manfully the battlesis a buthful soldier of the Master, found on 1878, at least the usual amount of work for lum to do. The faithful numister of the truspel in the time murked by 1878, had a truttal sensor for his mission. Thousands have been made willing to come to thrist, for publish and eternal rest.

Now is a good time for unmakers to consider. and see whether they have done all they could for the conversion of souls, and the uplantding of Zion in the year just a los d. Have we at tended all the meetings we could, or did we leave some calls unheaded, that we could have filled? If so, let us be more taithful in the year we have just entered.

God would accept. Paul says, "Forsake not single mode, take. It the protessor betrays a want of coal are almost persuaded to Lecome Christians al stagnation in the cause of Christ. Again, preached nine sermons, have all the members been as careful as all o should have been to avoid giving offense in any way that might destroy the peace and harmony of the church? If not, as we enter the New Year and advance, let us be more careful.

The prophets have forefold future events that have said will come to pass. Our latterday prophets seem to miss their mark. Joseph Smith, William C. Thurman, and a number of others, have made a failure. No doubt they did the best they could; but as God did not intend for any one to know the exact time, when the Savior would come again, but kept that to himself; none were yet able to tell, simply became they were to guess at it, and guess work P. SPRINKLING AND POURING PUT TO THE TEST.

BY S. J. HARRISON.

DAPTISM has probably caused more strile ${f D}$ and contention canong professors of Chronanity than any other subject contained in the Bible; and it seems that the more it has ben contested, the tarther the parties have been separated, and the more firmly they have been established in previously adopted notions Strange as this seems to be, it is, nevertheless a sad and well known truth

When ad fully understand a subject, they mgor—their thoughts are all the same. If men always agree when they understand a subget, what must be the conclusion when they disagree? Evidently it is, that they do not all understand it.

"Well, now, if people would think just alike, if they air rally understood a subject, would they not think more and more alike as they mcreased in knowledge concerning it?" Yes: as our knowledge increases, so our minds and thoughts and faith should bee another same

"Yer and the more people discussed baptism, the more they disagreed, are we to inter, then, that the more people study, investigate and discase it, the less they will know about it?" Note we think the more people study, investigate and discuss a subject, the more they will know about it.

(Well, then, if the man we know on asubject), the less we disagree, and the more we discuss a subject, the more we shall know, why is it that the more we discuss, the more we de-agree?" The resear why people are not runted by " discussing a question, is, lacroise they do not discuss to harn. Each side thinks it already. bastle troth, and expects in the discussion not to be tangeld, but to teach. Each side closes. describers thorough to what the apposite shall say, list as we close our eyes, and of course, with it receives no knowledge, just as the eyes receive no light.

Here, then, we see that the discussion does not assist one side to see truth on the other; hence, the sides are not brought any nearer together. But now let us see how the sides are separated farther, and more firmly established in previously adopted notions. White no truth is heard in the discussion which opposes them, all truth which seems to favor them, is received; and all truth which seems against their opponents, is also received. Hence in the discussion of a subjeet, each side gets additional evidence in favor of, and none against its previously adopted notions. It also, gets aditional evidence, against, and none in favor of the notions of the opposite side, thereby separating the sides further and giving them increased confidence in previously adopted notions.

If people will, they can bury their understandme and it cannot be reached by either knowledge or reason, and there are, by far, too many professors of the religion of Jesus Christ, who do this very thing. They are the cause of ninetenths of all the infidels, skeptics, and scoffers that have ever defamed the name of God. I desire so to impress this truth upon your mind that it may never be erased. Disregard it and you lock yourself in the preson-house of heathenism. You make yourself lower, more degraded and more detaised than the vilest reptile that creeps upon the earth; for it is what it is, because it was so made, but you are so, because you wish to be.

I now invite your attention—I beg of you to open your understanding, that you may receive the truth—or perchance I should be , mistaken that you may see it clearly, and having seen it, that you will be as desirons of cradicating it from my mind, as I have been and am, of im parting it to you. I desire that you give me your undivided attention. I do not wish you to argue in your mind, as I proceed, nor to think of anything else than just what I say. that you may know, when I am through, just what I have taught and what I believe. The reason why some pupils do not understand a teacher's explanation, is, because they do not concentrate their whole minds upon just what the teacher says. They think of something at home, their friends, their clothes, their books, the room, the weather and a thousand other things which only they and the Lord know. Although their minds leave the explanation only long enough to lose one word, that is one link out of the chain of reasoning, and that claim that was binding all the facts of the subject together, making it a simple unit, falls to the ground, and the subject scatters, divides and mystelies before the mind of the popul until it is plunged in midnight mental darkness.

You may have wented of this long introduction, but I feel assured that it I have succeeded in convincing you of the truths contained must that I have done more for you, than all to conviction, that you will give your whole at- | tized. tention, that you will not argue in your nands and that you will think of nothing while I am sprankle thee in the name of the Father, and scriptural. the Father, and of the Son; and of the Holy Ghost." I now repent that this language is conceded by all Christians to be correct. One thing is self-evident, that is, the language is not anthority for six modes of buptism Christ was not baptized six times—six ways. He taught all one way. Paul, the inspired writer, says, "one Lord, one faith, ONE BAPTISH." But some who profess to be followers of Christ, say, there are as many baptisms as the people want. They regard sprinkling and pouring on dry land or in the water, single or trine immersion, each, as Gospel haptism, But as we prefer the word of the Lord to the opinions of men, we ask which of the siz different modes is the "one buptism," which Paul exhorts us to adopt and practice.

To learn the mode taught, we must know what word expresses the act, and what it means, We all agree that "baptize" is the word which expresses the act to be performed, but we do not agree as to what the word means. Some say it means to sprinkle only; others say it means to immerse only; others say it means each way. Long sermons and lectures have been delivered in favor of each definition. Men of most extensive learning have written bundreds of pages to prove, each, his own way to be correct. It is therefore useless for us to spend lime disputing on the meaning of the word. We will try each meaning in the sentence, and if all make equally good sense, we shall say, that all are equally correct. But if one meaning does not make good sense, teaches an absurdity, of course we shall east that uside as sparious. If only one meaning can be used without destroying the sense and purpose of the passage, then it is evident that only one menting is correct. If baptize mean sprinkle, then no living person, of any age, of any color, in any church, in any country, has ever been baptized. If laptize mean sprinkle, then we can insert "sprinkle" for the original word, and not change the thought expressed. A Campbell says, "The proper definition of a term substituted for it will always make as good sense as the term atself. This is an infallible canon of interpretation." Substituting the word "sprinkle" for the word "baptize," the language is, "I sprinkle thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The language now is in the most favorable form it is possible to just if to prove that sprinkling is haldism, and if it cannot be supported when we have done this, it follows that it is false—not based upon fact, and should be abandoned by every lover of truth, honesty and holiness. All who desire, or have had water sprinkled upon them for baptism, admit in that the necessity of being baptized. It makes no difference what baptism is for—whether if is a condition of salvation or whether it is a disty which the pardimed, or saved of God, must perform. So It I can show that no hving p rson has ever been baptized, (if baptize mean the teachers you have ever laid. Hoping then [sprinkle), I shall expect all who love the truth that you are willing to learn, that you are open and try to obey it, to proceed at once to be hap-

L.-What! is the man who gets baptized, (sprinkled) scattered in small drops or particles? S.—No; it is the water that is sprinkled—scuttered in small drops or particles; L.—Then it is not the man you sprinkled (haptized), but the water, is it?

S.—No;—We—we sprinkle a man just like we sprinkle a floor.

L.-O, that way!-sprinkle a man, just like we do a floor, da you?

S.—Yes; we do it just that way.

L.—Well, how do you sprinkle a floor?

S.—Why we sprinkle water or sand upon it. L.-But did you not say you sprinkled the

S.—Yes, I did.

L.—Then, why do you talk about sprinkling water" and "sand?" If you sprinkled the door, will you please tell me how you did it? S.-We do not sprinkle the thin, we sprinkle water and sand upon the floor.

L.-You say now that you do not sprinkle the fluor, but did you not say awhile ugo thus you did sprinkle the floor?

S.—Yes, I said so; but I see now that I was mistaken. It is nater and sand we sprinkle, and not the floor

L.—You said you sprinkled (baptized) a min just like you sprinkled a /l oo, and now you say you don't sprinkle the floor, but the water and sand, do you mean by that that you do not sprinkle (baptize) the man, but the water?

S.-Well-I-I see I have got mixed up on this. The only way in which a man could be sprinkled, that I see, would be to just him in a dry-house and keep him there until there would he nothing left of him but dry bones and flesh. Then he could be grated fine, like we grate nutmegs, and after being grated be could be sprinkled, (scattered in small particles), in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. In this was it is simple, plan and easy to see how a man can be sprinkled, but I see now that that is the only way it is possible to do it and along the language used. But I do not see what benefit haptism can be to dead men—to men who have returned to dust, and ${f I}$ do not see what use dead men could be to n church, baptism is for laring men. A LIVING MAN CANNOT BE SPRINKED, therefore no living man ever has been sprinkled. I now see very clearly that sprinkling water uponea man is not sprinkling the man, and if haptize mean sprinkle, I see clearly, too, that I have never been haptized, for I have never been sprinkled, it was only water that was sprinkled. So if baptize mean sprinkle, it was not I that was hoptized, but the water. And whether baptism is for the remission of sms, or not, I thought it was necessary to be baptized when I had water sprinkled upon me, and now since I see very clearly that I was nustalous that I was not haptized, and have not been baptized yet. I want nor to be Eaptized as much as I did when I had water sprinkled upon nos.

Examine "pooring" by the same rule, and it Let us hear the language once more: "I is seen to be equally absurd, and, therefore, unparticles, can be poured. Before a man could he praired, he would have as be reduced for a liquid, or to dust. The only way in which he could be poured would be to jud him in a ves-

But now try the word slipping, and see how clear, sensible and easy d would be to obey the command. "Dipping then in the name of the Eather, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Could language be more coarplete, Incid and positive? Surely "The way of transgressors is hard "

A CALLING.

W BY E. L. LAURENCE.

QINNER, Jesus calls you home, Come, why will you longer roam. Can you not the Savior see, And the Cross of Calvary?

Jesus loves you, this I know, For the Bible tells me so: Eternal life he will give, If you'll only look and live.

Why will you His call refuse? One of two ways you must choose; One is broad and leads to hell, Where the devil's angels dwell.

The other way is very straight Having but a nurrow gate; But it lends to joys on high, Where the saints shall never die.

In that land one hour to be, And the Savior's face to see, Will repay us for the wor, We have witnessed here below.

It's a city, I am told, With its streets all payed with gold; But I can't its glory know, White I dwell in sin below.

The other way, the Christians know, Ends in durkness, death, and wee; Now it seems with flowers cast, But my friend, it will not hed, Som or later, Christ will come, To collect His children forme; Oh, where will you then appear, If you'll not He calling he or?

If on earth you've been ashinned, And have not your Savior named; When you meet Him at His throne, He'll elernally you discover,

But why need you come through fear, When through love you can draw near; Think how much He's done for you, And how liftle you can do.

Now the gates you see ufar, Christ for you has left ajar; He came once, His all to give, That the sinners here might live.

The Cross at first may large appear, But smaller grow when we draw near; Come, we'll take you by the hand, Thus we'll march to Camaan's land

On Sunday morning, he addressed the congregation from 2nd Cor. 6; 2, Sunday evening, brother J. W. Wilt of Clarr's congregation, came to his assistance. He addressed the congregation from Helo, 2: 2, and part of the third verse. Monday evening, he spoke from Numbers 32: 23: " But if ye will not do:

Brother Wilt again addressed us from Philip. 3: 14, and conclusion by brother Smouse. Oh, that every one might press more vigorously for that prize to be obtained at the end of the race, and found their faith more determinedly on the "Rock of Ages," Christ Jesus—that glorious prize is at the end of the race. so run that ye may oblain.

The evening services opened by singing that old familiar hymn, 328. Address by brother Wilt from 2 Samuel 12: 7: "Thou art the man" Reader, art thou the man that bath great possessions, and yet wilt thou rob thy neighbor? Return thy stolen goods and come and follow Jesus. Thou art the one whom Jesus calls.

"Pray without ceasing," is a Bible command. Erect your family altar, and while none but God's eye beholds the scene, pour out your heart-felt thanks to him to whom we are indebted. Wednewlay evening again addressed by brother Smouse from Psalms 116; 18; "I will pay my vows." Reader, have you paid all your yows unto the Lord? If not, go this night, for to morrow may be too. late. Remember, dear reader, that yows are selemin engagements, and that we may at sometime have youed a you and not fulfilled it. CLOSE OF OUR SUNDAY SUBJECT.

As the close of our Sunday school camduring our series of meetings, we feel to sny a word about it. On Sunday morn ing Oct. 13, its first session closed, the was addressed by brother J. W. Willi We trust that God will Idess the worl of brother Ellis Probaker and all of licers and teachers engaged in the work. May it be the object of every one who labors in the Sunday school cause, to try and do his whole duty in the secvice. I have many times been made to to day wonder why we close our Sunday school in the Winter and keep corr public schools in session. Could not the children attend Sunday school once during the sex on days, when they attend public school five days in the week?

Sunday morning, Oct. 20th, sung praises to God from 686, that beautiful hymn by Sutton. Text, Amos 4: 12: "Prepare to meet thy God." This was not spoken directly to us. The Lord visited the Israelites with a pestilence that they might return to him. He is the same God to day. We must prepare ourselves to inherit eternal life. Fight the good fight of faith. Our life is a continual warfare with Satan. We must not only make good resolutions, but $d\phi$ them. We cannot receive the benefits outside the church, or if so, why come in it? Faith in God is the believing of pardon according to his Word. Repentance and baptism are the conditions thereof. Ask yourself this question, Have I submitted to the will of the Lord? If not, immediately "Prepare to meet thy God," While we sung the 250th hymn, the last invitation of this meeting was extended to the sinner. One more responded to the invitation, and came forward to embrace the Savior. She complied with that beautiful command, "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth." We repaired to the river side, and emblematical of Christ's famial and resurrection, she was legalized in the liquid stream. Thus seven precious son's accepted Jesus at gerous; and why is it dangerous? Behis word. At times our dear brother was caused to become much discouraged, has the darkest hour came just before neither the things that are in the world, the morning dawn. This was our last necting on this occasion. How beautifally we were reminded of our last meet ing here on earth.

SIN AND ITS REWARD.

JOHN L SERVELY,

IBHE great bar to the happiness of man and that which procures all his neiseries, is sin. Take away sin, and nothing will harm him. " For the wages of social death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christian Loot," Rom, 6: 23. How dreadful must to the case of those who continue in sin, or those who continue to transgress, the law or Gool, for, says the apostle, " Sin is the transgression of the law." Set and you will find, in every dispensation, that the people who hved and submit ted to the commands of God had peace and prosperite, and that no other pecple sujoyed the riches of thad's Idessing a mach as they who stood upon God's Word. On the other hand, you will find about the people walked contrary to his will, poverty and division soon f P up or them, and their dispensation was wound up in sorrow, unless they repeated. The people were not only to has intentions to repent, or to repent, Enclosed to do the work, or that duty would a some against them in judgment. The some instructions are for the people compared with the Law of God, is sin, them to cover them from the senating when they know to do good and do not. Men sin when they "change the truth of God into a lie, and worship and cerve the creature more than the Crea. tor, who is blessed forevermore," The man who is unconverted, to whom God manifests so much patience, and he per verts and abuses that patience, is sinning: but let him remember, though he may prosper even in his vice, he is bound, as it were, in the chain of his sins till the day of God's wrath, when he must be brought to judgment, and have executed on him the most terrible punishment "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptation, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished."

Would we escape this judgment w_e must often pass sentence of condemua. tion on ourselves here. Take heed of giving thyself liberty of committing one sin. To begin a sin, is to lay a founda. tion for a continunace. The great hin. drance to many souls to come to Christ, and quit or leave off sinning, is they are so much addicted to the pleasure of this life, and we know of nothing that ren. ders leaving off sin so insupportable to the professed adherents of religion as the vain love of the world, which is dan. cause it is forbidden by the apostle in positive language: " Love not the world If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him, for all that is in the world, the last of the flesh, the lust of the eye and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world, and the world passeth away, and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever,"

Until the soul is freed from this, it can never have a true love for God. Then leve not the world, for it is transgress. ing the law of heaven. It is sin, and he that conneither hain, is of the devil. I John 3; 8. The apostle would inquire, "Know ve not to whom ye alwy; his servants ve are to whom ye obey, whether of sin anto death, or of obedience unto righteons. ness?" Faithful servants to both, we cannot be; " we cannot serve that and manimon." Then the way is clear; God or the world must be left at parting time. Ah, the love of the world is a moth in a Christian's life. It looks to be such felly to labor all our lives for the "ment that perisheth". The honors and riches of this world, which are nothing compared to the glories of heaven, and neglect the food of beaven and eternal life.

Sinner, what a condition will you be in when you heave this world, having never repented and left off sinning! You will find it true; you will wish you had never been born.

The apostle Paul addresses himself to us by the word of the Lord, telling as that the Lead himself shall "Descend from heaven with the voice of the arch angel, and with the trump of God," to Men and women do no sin because summon the dead to appear before the they do not know what sin is, for the tribonial of God. The righteons shall aposite has naide that to epdain and com [hasten out of their graves with joy to pachersive to be misunderstood. We meet their Redeemer. These are they can easily comprehend that everything which are not defiled by sin, takers we do, think, desire, say, or omit to do. shall also be raised, and they will call or anything that is found defective when for the hills and mountains to fall on Then the reason man is so prone to singing give of their Master. All mist and pride of the bear, from which come unto the resourcement of life, and they we had again the happy privilege of evening time? Perhaps soon; yea, very (defile a man. Matt. 15: 19, 20). That dammation is, and is to be executed upon which detiles a man, is sin. Men sin the wicked. Let us therefore try in time to be proving which of these two we will be. Satan's influence is great. He labors hard to keep out of the heart of man things that are good, especially thoughts of passing from this life to another world. He knows full well if he can only banish thoughts of death, and keep you in your sins, much easier and the wages or hire of death. Think often on the subject of mortality; it will have a tendency to make you more carnest-more diligent in working out your salvation. It will do much in taking your heart off from vanities, and create desires in you for holiness. And now, little children, abide in him that when he shall appear, we may have confidence and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

CHRISTIANITY VS. FORMALITY.

BY H. P. BRINKWORTH.

THAT religion in the present day is I undergoing a series of revolutions not equaled for centuries, I believe no ane man could question; and the progress of Christianity to day, is a mat ter not to be doubted. On the streets of our towns and cities, we find men engaged in conversation on religious topics. In the Western States it is no unusual circuiustance to enter astore and hear the views of different persons concerning the second coming of Christ. and other all-important subjects.

Occasionally we hear men advance the idea that as long as a person entertains conscientions views on the Scriptures, though they might have the same religion or ideas autagonistic to their opponent, and though the one could advance the ordinances imposed mon church being he an attendant weekly, and pay good, thorough going Christian man. let there is a danger; he never has experienced the transforming power that Pressarily constitutes a true Christian. The man morally good has a good standthe same mind as his Master. He will be desirous of having his own way. Can we conclude that this unrenewed will, this stubborn mind, is a mind thorwebly subdued by the transcending lawer of God's Holy Spirit? Has be become of no reputation in order to follow his Master! Has he followed Christ, who even pleased not himself? Certain-5 not. Is that character a Christian in every sense of the word? The Script: The Say, "He that knoweth his Fath of will, and doeth it not, shall be beat "a with many stripes."

The formalist says, "We are obliged hada, not as we wish, neither can we hay as we desire, but we must pray long the book, therefore we cannot pray Floring." Is there always a formal praysubjected to vicisitudes in life that involved an ejaculatory prayer? What shall we do under the circumstance? Shall we omit to pray because no form

I tell you loving readers, we want something more consoling, something more durable, something to which we can flee as to a tower for protection against the fiery dart of a known enemy, and what shall we do? I answer, "Take it to the Lord in prayer."

If we have trials and temptations, if anything in the affairs of life demands a with-drawing from the world, a secret entering into the dark and mysterious recesses of the soul, and there pouring out our soul before God, we should in stantly do so. The form of prayer is not at hand, but O, my God thou knowest that the upward lifting of the eye, the deep sigh, the yearning of the spirit within, speaks more than prayer could ever utter. Thou hearest and answerest such prayer, and art ever ready to hear thy children's petitions, and answer as far as thou seest would be good for the desired wants. Then I lay my wants on Jesus, and he will attend unto my ery, for precious in the sight of the Lord are his children.

THE LAW AND THE GOSPEL ON THE MARRIAGE RELATIONS.

BY C. F. DETWEILER.

N the seventh chapter of Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians, he instructs them concerning things whereof they had previously written to him, and among the circumstances are made mention of, where one member of the head the idea that man must in order to be a of a Gentile family was converted and (hristian, fidlow Christ, and the other) the other was not. The marriage relasys, I do not believe that; for I know tion having been formed while they the man who pays his just delits, who were yet both unconverted, and the respects his neighbor and lends and question as to whether such a marriage lorrows, and never cheats or lies, or relation is to be broken, in case the undeals, is the man who will be saved, re | believing husband or wife is minded to gardless of any other imposed duty, remain, is answered on this wise: "But Now how shall we reach the answer to to the rest speak I, not the Lord; the query? Which is right, or which (mark that), "If any brother hath a will do to risk ! We find ourselves in | wife that believeth not, and she be ideasvolved between Christianity and more ed to dwell with him, let him not put ality. We conclude that man, to be a her away. And the woman which hath Christian, must become a moral man, a husband that believeth not, and if he but a man may be a moral man and not be pleased to dwell with her, let her not Christian. Further, we advance the leave him. For the unbelieving hus idea that a man may outwardly attend band is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the mambers to which they gladly submit; husband; else were your children un clean; but now are they holy. But if his subscriptions, and be considered a the unbelieving depart, let him depart, A brother or sister is not under bondage in such cases; but God linth called us to pence. But what knowest thou, O wife whether theor shalt save thy husband: or how knowest than, O man, whether ing in society; yet he has not become of thou shalt save thy wife. But as God has distributed to every man, as the tot conform to the Christian life, but is Lord has called every one, so let him walk."

> As this Scripture is sometimes taken by Christians as authority to marry out into the world, I quote it all, and wish to present a few thoughts as a help to a right application of it. The way to interpret a Scripture correctly, is to take in consideration, first, all the Scripture that bears directly upon the same subject; second, all the facts and circumstances connected with it; and third, but not least, an application in a sense in which they all harmonize.

Truth is not divided against itself. We will first notice the circumstance under which these questions arose. The marriage referred to, according to the evidences that were formed, not only and him crucified, and a Masonic Jew, they had ever heard of the religion of should enter the church, and make that Jesus Christ. The propriety of breaking this marriage vow, in view of the evil attending the dismemberment of a family, of severing the cord upon which the influence for good depends; through, which (as Paul says), the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife by the husband; for the believer by his own act thus to forfeit his influence for good over those who had become his or her own, by circumstances over which they have now no control, an act that is not only against every feeling of true kindness and love between husband and wife, against every impulse of nature that is motherly in a mother, or fatherly in a father, but under all ordinary circumstances against the law of God. These were some of the conditions of the subject in question, and the simple fact that such a question under such circumstances, arose at all, is in itself conclusive proof that the thought of forming such relations volvuntarily, was totally foreign to their views of Christianity. "But God has called us to peace," says Paul, as another ground of the expedience in every one remaining in the condition in which God has called him; in matrimony or otherwise, in circumcision or uncircumcision, land or free.

But the sanctifying influence which the believing husband or wife exerts over the unbelieving companion, and over the family, may be good, for rememher, Paul does not say, over the companion who has a sort of a historical faith, and expects to become a church member before he dies, but over the unbelieving wife or husband. The supposition that this sanctifying influence under these circumstauces justifies a rolandary marriage of like character, puts the question in this wise: Is it expedient for a Christian, to marry an unbeliever? The liberty to a voluntary choice based on these given premises, either embraces that much, or nothing.

Is there any fellowship connected with a Christian marriage? "What follows ship bath he that believeth with an infidel?" Does Christian marriage imply a yoking together? "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers," "The wife is bound by the law to her husband as long as her husband liveth." To the penitent, it is said, "Come ye out from among them, and be ye separate," saith the Lord, " and I will receive you." Can two be bound together and yet be separated? "But if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will, only in the Lord," Can we marry only " in the Lord," and the other "out of the Lord," and yet marry " ogly in the Lord?"

From the days when the sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were fair, and brought upon themselves the displeasure of God by taking them wives of all which they chose, down to the present time. In all the history of God's chosen people, we can see that it was his design continually that they shall be a separate people. The fact of his being grieved with their mixing with the daughters of men in the early history of our race, is not based upon any temporary design, but upon a principle that is as eternal as God himself, and custom cannot change it.

IS IT SO?

"Chm-tion Canonica TT is said, that if a Masonic minister is in his pulpit preaching Christ, "that sinks the emergency of a man before they parted, believed, but before who regards Christ as an impostor, fall little by little.

minister a Masonie sigu, he, the minister of Christ, would be bound by his Masonic oath to make a corresponding sign in answer to it. It is added, that in making this sign of intelligence and secret understanding with an enemy of the Lord, he would dissemble before the congregation, pretending to make a gesture prompted by the spirit of his discourse; but in reality he would be holding Masonic by-play with an infidel, and that infidel perhaps making merriment out of the Christian minister for his own diversion,

Can these things be so? Does the Christian minister, by becoming a Mason, take a halter around his own neck and place the end of it in the hand of an infidel, to be led blindfolded into dissimulation and fraud?

It is furthermore said that the worst and bitterest enemies which our republiean government has to encounter, are clergymen; and that these elergymen are largely members of the "mystic brotherhood." If half of the Protestant clergy of the Northern States are Masons, probably three fourths or more of those of the Southern States are such; and they are declared to be rank enemies of the government.

Add to these facts that it is not now the Jesuits of the Romish church that assassinate kings and princes, but it is the Jesuits of the lodge who do such things, and one would suppose that the sulfect of Freemasonary ought to engage the attention of every honest man and woman in the land.

HOME.

BY IG W MILLER.

OME! home! This word has associated with it, the beautiful, sublime as well as sadness. The home of the redeemed of the Lord. How rich, grand and inexpressibly noble. Our homes here are at times the home of mourning and grief. The social ties are severed by the hand of death. Loved ones are its victim, gone, to meet no more in the family circle here below, while the home of the redeemed in the celestial city, is the reunion of the ransomed of the Lord. No more death, sorrow or disappointments, no tearing asunder of the ties of near and dear ones, but ascribing of praise to the Lamb of God, who has redeemed us, and made us kings and priests unto God. How happy the thought, when looking back across the river of death and singing the songs of redeemed love. It is our privilege to attain to that state. Faith gives us the victory over the world, and finally triumphs over death, the grave, hell and unbelief; while unbelief in the heart goes back to the flesh pots of Egypt, and barters eternal life for a morsel of meat, for a little revellings to gratify the flesh.

But the spirit of Caleb and Joshna confides in God, goes forward at his bidding, leaving unbelief in the rear, lays hold on the commandments of God and hopes for eternal life.

PREACHING IN CITIES.

please tell us why the German Baptists do not ec.elemere in cities and towns?

MHERE may be several reasons for it. Most of our people are engaged in agricultural pursunts, hence here in the rural districts, while comparatively few are found in cities and lowns. This has had much to do with keeping our preaching out of towns, for ministers are more perfined to travel and preach where there are members, or where they have special calls to preach, and of course they get but few calls from cities.

The education and general habits of our minsters adapt them to country work much better that usually required in cities, at least they think so, and for that reason towns have been avoided. It requires more preaching, and harder work to build up and maintain a congregation of our people in town than in the conntry. To work successfully in a town, the minster himself ought to live there, and give special aftention to the work. But owing to the fact that nearly all cour ministers are farmers, they are kept in the country, and do not feel disposed to work much in towns.

The want of greater missionary efforts upon the part of our people, has also had much to do in keeping them out of towns. They have but few missionaries, and these are confined to country labor, and do not have time to work up an interest in cities.

I am much in favor of city work, but unless we take hold of it right it will not prove a success. When the aposites went into a city to lould up a church, they spent months, and even years in one city. They did not preach a few sermons in one city, and a few more in some other place, and so on, but when they entered a place it was with the intention of accomplishing something, and they were cenerally successful. because they clang to the work. And if our people intend accomplishing anything in cities they most work on the same principle. Appoint skilful men to the work and let them take their times to it.

The first Christian church established on earth was in the city of Jerusalem. The aposthe spent most of their time preaching and building up churches in cities. By them the trath was planted in the larger cities and perunifed to work its way into smaller places. Their place was a successful one.

Tunes and customs, however, have changed. Our people do their most successful work in the rural districts, though we have a number of churches in towns, and some of them are doing well. The apostles could do more in towns than we. They were better preachers, better informed, had more zeal than most of preachers these times, and then they possessed the peculiar and good faculty of holding on till they accomplished something. They did not preach a few sermons in one city, and then go to another, but took hold of the work with a will and A. H. M. then ching for it.

THE QUINTER AND McCONNELL DEBATE AGAIN.

J/H/Moure-Priend:

TNCE you have published to the world at large, Y and your brethren in particular, that the Church of Christ, on Dry Creek, Line county, lows, has distanded or gone down; that it was broken up or went dawn in consequence of the Quanter and McConnell debate held in that vienary in October, 1867, and since you point to this as an evidence of the victory Mr. Quinter rained in said discussion, and have likewise said that wherever your people have held discussions with the Disciples, the Disciples have gone down.

Will you permit me to make to your readers a Plain statement of facts in reference to the church on Dry Creek, where Quinter and McCornell debated ?

In 1850 there were living in that locality a few families, some of whose members were connected with the Church of Christ, which met alternately at Marion [six miles distant] and Dry Creek About that rime they commenced a house of worship which was never finished still it was occuford as a place of worship for filteen years. Thus me this time the Diciples built in large and courthen, had they practiced what they preached.

all come up. No one should even expect God modious house of worship in Marion, and several families mayed into America, and several families moved into town from the Dry Creek neighborhood-others went elsewhere-still we minimained preaching in that neighborhood somewhat regularly until September, 1863, when I, the only preacher in the county, removed to Oskaloosa to engage in a more general work. That point was neglected, as a result, and only occasionally was there preaching there.

Out of the few families spoken of above, eight sold to German Baptists and moved away. Sev en heads of families have died. A few who are eft in the neighborhood have membership in the clinreh at Lafayette, and some ten or twelve have membership at Marion. Others not mentioned have moved to other parts, while there are remaining in the vicinity several who have no local membership. Daniel Albaugh, wife and one daughter joined the German Baptists; also Aquilla Newman. Mr. Albaugh always believed with Tunkers, and simply moted with the Disciples because there were no Tookers there at the time, and when a favorable opportunity was offered he went with them. Mrs. Albangh is a Stitller from Pennsylvania. Nearly all of her connections are German Baptists. The daughter married a German Baptist, a son of a minister. Aquilla Newman's son and wife have since united with the Church of Christ. Jonathan Keys [who was elected to the ministry by Tonkers] and wife united with the Disciples. Shortly after the debate I haptized the son of a most devoted Tunker, and his brother, who attended the discussion for the purpose of settling, or hearing settled, the issues between the two people, is to-day in sympathy with us, but can of undue deference to the feelings of his mother, withholds his obedience to the Gospel. In Murch last I baptized the daughter of Mr. Ransier, a most zealous Tunker. She was educated a Touker in the strictest sense, but when she "became a woman" she turned from the doctrine, and, with her husband, confessed the Christ, Another fact: The German Baptists lave no church in the neighborhood where the delatte was held. At the time of the debate we had three congregations in the county; the Tunkers one, perloaps two. We now have seven in working order, and a neucleus of some twenty or thirty members within two miles of the Tunker Clairch for another; and it is confidently expected that within the next year there will be a congregation organized. Besides, we have brethren all over that county not reckoned in these organizations. At the time of the delate we had but one minister living in the county. We now have five, and another spending half his time in Linn county. Our members then would not have exceeded 3.50. We now double that number, while a large number have gone to other parts. Surely the Quinter and McConnell dehate ruined our cause in Lann county, lowa, in amequence of the grand victory achieved by the head and front of the German Buptist fratecuaty.

Another young lady, a daughter of a German Bujdist, has since been haptized into the one body. Mount other points in the State, where we had na churches at the time of the debate and the German Baptists were strong, we have now flourslang churches.

From the above unvarnished statement of facts, n is evident to every clear headed, unprejudiced, candid person, that the little band of Diciples, known as the Dry Creek Church, censed to meet in the meeting-house where the debate was held not because of the splendid victory of Quinter and the defeat of McConnell, but because of death, emigration, change of local membership absence of innuisters to preach the gopel, the absence of the clders, etc., and the springing up of N. A. McCossien other congregations.

REMARKS.

Some weeks ago. Mr. N. A. McConnell was holding a series of meetings at this place, and while here frequently visited the office. A few days before leaving be presented the above, wishing to know it we would publish it, at the same time, giving us to understand that if, we did not publish it in the BRETHREN OF WORK it would be published elsewhere. Of course, we agreed to give him a hearing, and thought it best to have some additional "unwarmshed stalement of "facts" from the other side id the house to publish along side of his "unvarnaded statements," hence sent a proof of the article. and a unaber of questions, drawn from his artiele, to the brethren living near where the debate was held. Below are published these questions, followed by the brethren's answers. The reader can likely tell where the "varnish"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

1. Who were the eight families that sold to German Baptists?

Ans None have sold to German Baptists since the debute, but three before the debute.

2. Who were the seven heads of families

A. Quite a number have died, and some have moved away, that is, if we count back (wenty-nine years as Mr. McConnell does. But since the de bate, only a few have died or moved away.

3. Who are those living in the vicinity that have no local membership?

A. Only three within two miles of the lean-e where the debute was held. 4. Did Mr. Albaugh believe "with Tunkers" before he joined the Compbellite church? A. No; he first believed the Campbellite doctrine, and probably would have continued with at first opportunity?

A. No; not till about thirteen years after the Brethren organized at Dry Creek, and two years after the debate. [This Albaugh was the elder of the Campbellite church at the time of the debute, but afterwards united with the Brethren.—Ed.]

6. Did Miss Albaugh marry a German Bap-

A. No; but he and his wife have come to the Brethren since,

7. How long after the discussion was it that "Aquilla Newman's son and wife," joined the Campbellite church?

A. About cleven years.

8. Did Jonathan Keys live in Linn county at the time of the debate?

A. Not we think he lived in Marshall county, and moved back shortly after, hought a home near the Lafayette Campbellite church, and suppose united with them for convenience' sake,

9. Have the "German Baptists" a church n the neighborhold where the debute was held? A. Yes; members all around, and a meeting house within two and a half miles.

10. Has the Brethren church increased or decreased in the neighborhood where the debate

A. Increased; nearly all are Brethren within two miles around the Camphellite house where the lelate was held.

11. Have the Campbellites increased or decreased where the debate was hold?

A. Decreased; no worship in the old church any more. [And hat few meetings have been held there by the Campbellites since the discussion,-

12. Have the Campbellites seven churches in working order near where the delaite was

A. No; the nearest is two and a half miles north of the Brethren's house. The Brethren ive preached some in there.

43. How many united with the Campbellite church at the time of the debate?

A. One, at the time of the delaste.

14. How many united with the Brethren hurch at the time of the debale?

A. Eleven at time of debate.

15. How many members were there in the amphellite church at the time of discussion?

A. They had some forty or fifty at the time of he delacte, but at present no churcle

16. How many members were there in the Brethren church at time of debate?

A. Alcort fifty; at present there are five minsters, six dencores and about one handred and eight kcy mendiers.

17. Did more Campbellites die than Breth-

About an equal number of each church have died, and more Brethren have moved away than Campbellites.

One of our sisters turned Campbellite for a few years, and dressed in the vain tashions of the world, but she soon saw that was not the way to heaven, and so turned back to the Breturen church. Pive Complaintes joined the Brethren's church, Surely the Quinter and McConnell debate ru-

ADDITIONAL REMARKS.

We are not aware that we "have published to the world at large," "that the Church of Christ, on Dry Creek, Linu county, Iowa, has disbanded or gone down," but as a matter of news, it has been published to some extent, that the "Campbellite Church has disbanded or gone down in consequence of the Quinter and Mr-Connell debute." The "Church of Christ, on Dry Creek, Lina county, Iowa," stands to-day firm as a rock, but the "Campbellite Church" is among the things of the past. It could not stand the light of truth shining upon its unscriptural practices. We are not any ways abarmed about the "Church of Christ" going down. He has stood the test too long for that.

From the above "unvarnished statement of tacts," from both sides of the house, it would seem clear that the "Quinter and McConnell debate" did ruin the Campbellite Church on Dry Creek. Of course, we do not claim that it materially affected the mind of every man, woman and child in the State, nor that it changed the minds of thousands in binn county who did not hear the debate, but that it did have some effect on the "Dry Creek" Campbellite Church is evident from the "univariashed statements" before us. The question is not what effect the debate had where it was not held. but what effect had it on the Campbellite Church "on Dry Creek, linu county, lown?"

5. Did he unite with the Brethren church | The debate was held in their bouse, their people listened to it, some of them were convinced by it and united with the Brethren, and among them was the elder of the Campbellite Church. Here is "unvarnished statement of facts" for you. But hear the gentleman in his closing paragraph. He says:

" From the above unvaraished statement of facts, it is evident to every clear-headed, unprejudiced, candid person, that the little band of Disciples, known as the Dry Creek Church, ceased to meet in the meeting-house where the debate was held; not because of the splendid victory of Quinter and the defeat of McConnell, but because of death, emigration, change of local membership, absence of ministers to preach the gospel, the absence of the elders, etc., and the springing up of other congregations."

Now why did he not say that the "absence of the elders" was caused, to a great extent, by one of them joining the Brethren, because convinced that the Campbellite doctrine was not Scriptural? I presume that is an "unvarnished" fact. And then he speaks of "death," "emigration" and "change of local membership," but what the brethren say, in answer to our questions above, takes all the starch out of Mr. McConnell's "unvarnished statements of

MORE HEART CONVERSION.

THERE are persons who, because they were buptized with certain things on, think they have a Gospel right to continue wearing them. They say, "If these things were good enough to be baptized in there is no harm in wearing them." When people talk that way, there is something not just right about the heart. More than likely the leart has not been fully convertel. People who hate the things they once loved, and now love the things they once hated, are not inclined to evade the Gospel simplicity

When old brother Henry Kurtz was haptized he was attired in his priestly robes. How would it have looked for him to have continued wearing them, claiming that if they were good uough to be lendized in, they were good enough to wear? It is presumable that the Ethiopian cannich was baptized in his official costume. Should be have continued in his official costume all the days of his life just because he was haptized that way? Plank who was baptized only a lew days after being convicted, hid not time to lay uside his costly array and attire himself in becoming idainness, before his biptism, and he had no claim to the privilege of dressing in the style of the world. The same might be said of the three thousand, who were baptized on the day of Pentecost. They were convicted and baptized the same day, and doubtless many of them were altired in their tashionable garbs, yet they did not plead for fashion on that ground. Nor will any other person whose heart has been fully converted.

It at times so imppens that persons are convicted and haptized the same day; and not unfrequently while fashionably attired. This cannot be well avoided. But for such persons to come up and plead that they can dress fashionably all the days of their lives, just because they were so dressed when buildized, shows that something is not just right. They need a renewing of the mind before they can prove by their walk and conversation just what is right. The heart needs a little more conversion.

---THE LOVE OF GOD.

BY JAMES WIRE,

THE full of man in Eden's garden gave an cocession for an exhibition of the grace of thad towards the human family, and there are two personages more prominently brought to view in minds fall and redemption. The fall was accasioned by the disabellience of the first m in, " who was of the earth emitty;" the atonement was accomplished by the Model Man, " the Lord from henven," When we consider that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unite himself" during the period of His suffering, hefor and self-denial, we may then more easily see that the supreme love of our Creator was extended to us, and this will callst our sympathy and support to forward the cause of Christ; and could we also know that we are the recipients of divine compassion, our benevolent matures should be called out in affectionate idealience to all the requisitions of our divine Teacher. as the promised, rewards contained in the tios pel to fallen man flow only to those who are py tall be comes, and if we are faithful over a ing up churches, and was one of the builders of things, when we enter the joys of our Lord, allegiance, they were the temple of God, and if any man If we are "risen with Christ" we will "set our would defile the temple be would be destroy- diffections on things above," and not exclusive a some of the wood, hay and stubble which are demption our salvation has been obtained, as we manner of love that we should be called the sons of God, and equal with our Elder Brother. in the fruition of beaven.

A gers and almost every part of the human and the spirits of just men made perfect through Father, to again enjoy that sweet fellowship and communion severed by our fall from innocency and purity before contaminated with sin.

Meditating upon the precious truths of the Gospel of Christembles us to grow in grace and the knowledge of divine things, for the traths of the Bible are food for the soul; it is by this means that the divine nature is developed, and from babes in Christ we grow up to the full stature of the man Christ Jesus.

How consoling to the minds of those who have been removed after the image of him who created them to dwell upon the destinies of our momortal sparits. Our highest natures can only be satisfied when we awake in the likeness of our Redeemer, though at present it doth not fully appear what we shall be; neither are our limite conceptions able to comprehend what it is to be like Christ,

Our greatest delight and highest ambition should be, that after the vicissitudes of life are over, we may ourselves be in a state of readiness, and have induced as many other members of the race who came under our influence also to have embraced the Gospel of the blessed Son of God, that they, with us, may receive the crown of life when death intercepts our earthly career, or Christ comes to collect his jewels-the procious ones of earth-and gather them home. where they may have a right to the "tree or life and enter in through the gates into the city," the New Jerusalem, "Blessed are they who do the commandments."

There are many great and precious promises contained in the written Word, and the enjoyment of these are insured to us if obedient to such commands as "If ye love me keep my commandments." Christ gave to men a perfect lan, and this law contains the new commandment that we should love one another. He equened up a "new and living way" from earth to a blessed immortality. Our hopes of eternal life are continually confirmed while contemplating upon the meritorious work of our dear Lord. The children of God are at present the recipients of his grace and enjoy, to a limited extent the blessings of Christianity. The reason they do not enjoy more is because Salan is permitted to exert his influence in apposition to the peaceful doctrines of the cross; but when once he is bound, and his power circumscribed within the narrow limits of the "bottomless pat," then will the long, and much desired reign faithful in Christ. The commands are to occur of Christ in person begin on earth, and the "kingdoms of this world will become the kinghuilder." He was there going about and lumbs few things, we shall be underroler over many domed. Christ" and yield to him their happy

MOSHEIM'S "AN IMMERSION.

JOY ~ 4301 FT SATA.

OSHEIM, in his Ecclesustical History says: " Bajdisin was performed in the first centory, by an immersion of the whole body in the baptismal font." This is considered, by some, as being equivalent to saying single immersion was practiced in the first century; but trine unmersion is also an immersion of the whole body, for the whole body is immersed in the sense Mosherm refers to the "an immersion." The question then is, What did Mosheim mean by " an immersion of the whole body? " Evidently trune inquersion, for the following reassons: 1. The cites Girard Vossius as his authority, and Vassus says, "The ancient church practiced trine immersion all over the world, except Spain," 2. Missionary Convention.

PHIS missionary question has been talked of by quite a number of brethren'in Middle Indiana, and at a Love-feast last Fall. Two conneils were held, and both decided in favor of a convention, and I was requested to correspond with the brethren to obtain a place to hold the Convention. On application to Jonas Umbaugh, the elder of the Spring Creek congregation, be informed me that they will take the meeting. Consequently on the 22pd day of April next, this meeting will be held with the Spring Creek brethren. As this is an adjoining congregation to where the next District Meeting will be held the day following, brethren can come to the Convention and then be conveyed to D. M. A general invitation is given. Brethren coming by rail to the convention will necessarily have to come on the 21st to Parston or Colamo stations on the Eel River Valley R. R., where they will be met with convey since and take it to place of meeting. Brethren of Middle Indian care, way belond our sister State districts in this noble work, which has for its object the salvation of smale. Now let us organize on the Re (his als Woods of Evangelism, or some snitable plan that we now agree щып, A. Leedy.

I remained over Sunday, and on Monday at 11 o'clock, preached the funeral to a large congregation, (considering the inclemency of the weather) of sympathizing friends and relatives, including the youthful, distressed and heart-broken widowed sister, with her infant of a few months in her arms. Thus were severed the union in matrimonial life of about thirteen months. LEFT home on the 23rd of December to I hold a protracted meeting with the Brethren at Millmine, Illinois; prenched three discourses, and on Christmas I went to Cerro Gordo, to atlend a Communion. The occasion was a very solemn one, being the first meeting of the kind ever held in Cerro Gordo, and what made it still more soiemn, the meeting was held in the new meeting-house, built by our dear old brother John Metzger, and he being very much afflicted at the time- so much so that the Brethren were afraid by would endanger his life by attending, and tried to persuade him not in uttend. But the dear old brother said, "You can wrap me up in blankets and robe, and carry me out to the sleigh, and then enery me into the church, and I do not think it will hurt me." They d.d so, and to see the dear old brother satting during the services and enjoying the beast as he did, though suffering severe pain, impressed our minds more of the feelings of our blessed Lord, at the time he inslituted this swered ordinance. Immediately afterwards I thought of the many excuses some make in trying to justify themselves for alisenting from the house of God; here was the dear ald brother who lind preached the glad tidings some forty-five years, and spend thousands of dollars in time and money, now in his abl days built a rice, confortable church in which the people of Cerro Gorda can meet and worship God, which again cost him about two thousand dollars. May God bless him and reward him abandantly, and may we redouble our diligence, and spend more time, and money for the Redeemer's kingdom. If we lind one handred such men, the glad fidings of salvation could be preached among all nations. May God operate on the hearts of those who are blessed with thousands, to give more freely to the ennse of God.

We went back to Millmine; prembed some cleven more discousces; had small congregations, awaig to the storing weather. Two bupfized on Friday after New Year's day, by elder David Trustle.

Our Papers.

TRUES on church papers are welcome visitors to the Christian family, bringing goal news from all parts of the brotherhand Almost every paper fells of some procesus sonts who have come out on the Lord's side, and have forsaken the kingdom of Satan, and have enlisted under the banner of. King dosus in the army of the smuts, to fight the hattle of the Lord. This is encouraging to the tollowers of Christ. They also come loaded with many soul-cheering sermons from all parts of the brotherhood, encouraging the saint on his pilgrimage journey, and warning sinners to flee from the wrath to come. I am truly glad to see that so many of our dear brothren, and sisters are taking such an active part in making our papers both interesting and profitable to saint as well as to sumer. Our papers are good missionaries. They make their weekly visits to many families, where our ministers cannot. They are also good preachers at home where the ministry is weak, to aid in converting souls to Christ. This we have experienced in Cowley Co., Kan., where our organization is not quite three years old. Our number is few and the ministry weak, and the doctrine new to most people; yet we have two live agents for the Brethren at Work, who are introducing the paper to families who will not come to

The Witter and Hixon Debate.

Dear Brethren:-

PHE discussion between brother A. J. Hixon and Mr. Witter, of which you have several times made mention through the columns of your paper, took place here at the Brethren's meeting-house Dec. 26th and 27th. It passed off pleasantly. I will give you the proposition:

Baptism as commanded by the Lord, and practiced by the apostles and their immediate successors, was one immersion into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Mr. Witter affirmed, brother Hixon

Some of the Brethren feared that brother Hixon would not be able to compete with the bearned Baptist; but their fears were premature, for he proved himself capable to meet any emergency. The people generally, except the Baptists, claim that the Brethren's cause came out successful, and some even express the idea that Mr. Witter will never challenge our Brethren for another debate on haptism.

The Brethren feel much elated over the effort of their champion. Brother Hixon's closing speech was truly eloquent; and judgers from the appearance of Mr. Witter and, the andience we feel that they felt the force and weight of it, too.

This is brother Hixon's first discussion; Mr. Witter his considerable experience in discussions, having taken part in several.

for the good cause, and made lasting impressions, as bread cast upon the waters will be gathered many days hence. It has been over one year since he preached in this county. The members had become cold and careless, and the first was to get them all right. We called a council meeting at sister Chrisbaum's house. Opened meeting by singing and prayer: then brother Gish read the 12th chapter of Romans. Brother Hodgden then proposed to organize a church. As it is the first in Kansas we name ! it the Labette County church, composed of twenty-four members. Brother Joel Kenberry and the writer are in the first degree of the ministry. Brother Hodgden has the oversight of this congregation. Oh, if we had many more brother Hodgdens, good earnest laborers as he is, the Gospel would soon be preached where it is not known. S. D. THE CHRISTIAN LEGATION.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGIL

To Brother A. S. Leer, of Illinois:

"QUB letter of Liviniay 7th, made me groun mesperit. My heart bleeds for you, and for the poverty-strucken ambassadors of Christ physicals are on fire with the inspiration of the Cross, and who would gladly push the conquests of the Gospel inductive territory of Apaltyon, but are held leick by general tack of sympully on the charch with the ble-sed ends of bsus. Some monsters need fundles, some need spurs, but those who "know nothing but Jesus Christ and Hum concerned, have Davine voices within and without to guide them. To say that the Courch as a Body is feet half awake to the grandeur and responsibility of her mission, would be offensive bothe Truib. To be as in tent on the exemplification and promulgation of the Cross, as Jesus was to bleed and the upon it for the sons of the world, would make a very different people of us. But the "tarm," and the "five yoke of oxen," and the " wife" -- or in other words, the seductions of the world and the desh-destroy our relish for the vands of Emmanuel's table. If we would penetrate more deeply into the awful mystery and significance of the Incirnation and the Crucilizion, and look apon humanity and sin, and gaze through the Gates of Pearl, and down into the flaming damnation of ruined souls, as Jesus did and does, there would be less contention, pride, mainmon-worship, and self-idolatry.

The account you give of your ministry, broke my heart. It wint a soluce to the Christ has ing, soul-seeking, self-sterribering ambassador of Heaven that " he has not un High Priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as We are, yet without sin." Turn back to the and may be restrained by the Holy Ghost. Acts into the gilded temple. The poor do not go, virtuous life that maketh one dear to God.

ministry of Jesus and contemplate His soul- | 16: 6. God has His times and seasons, His there. Those who "hear the preaching of Jesus harrowing rebuffs from His Baptism to His Crucifixion. Even His chosen pupils, whom He had constantly under His eye and voice and personal magnetism, were so carnal and selfish and spiritual doltish, that He sharply rebuked them again and again, even saying, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe." He crossed Gennesuret in a surging tempest to proclaim the glad fidings of salvation to the Gudarenes, cast a legion of devils out of one soul, thus opening the way and manifesting His readiness to dispossess the whole population of demoniscal thralldom, but they be sought Him to leave their coasts. With what heart-ache must He have turned His back on that benighted people. And His dear Capernaum, whom He had exalted to Heaven with the exhibition of His Divine Love and Power. He had to denounce with the wrath of Omnipotence, and consign to the always of hopeless damnation. Who can fathout the wail of the Godman in Luke 13: 34, or interpret the latter meaning of Luke 19:41? O those tears! From what a bottomless fount of love and symeathy and agonized disappointment they gushed. To e servant is not above his Master, You are walking in His steps, and feeling a little of the sorrow that crushed His heart in His lifeconsuming work of saving souls. In all your conflicts, privations, sacrifices, weariness, disappointments, and discouragements, He is whispering into your inner ear the thrilling interrogation of Mark 10: 38.

The ministry includes the cup of Gethsemane; but also the presence and power of Him who drained it to the dregs, and filled it again to the brim with the water of life. "Lo, I am with you slways," is a pledge which is sustained by the everlasting love and veracity of Jehovah-Jesus, "Said I not unto ther, that if thou WOULDEST BELIEVE, thou shouldest see the glory of Gad," John 11: 40 Your" life hid with Christ in God," His heart beating in your heart, His love kindling your aspirations and quickening your energies, and unvailing to your inmer gaze the glory and rapture of Hele 12: 2, you can go forward in your arduous duties, weeping as you sow the seed of the endless haryest, every libre of your being quivering in the high, Christ-sustained confidence of 1 Cor. 15: 58.

The reproach of the Cross has not yet ceased. To imitate the self-forgetting zeal of the Lamb. of God in the upbuilding of the Temple of grace, we may be out to the core by the insimuations of our own members that we are "beside our selves." Mark 3: 21. When the minister has a large territory to cultivate, and the calls are many and pressing, and he must expose himself to inclement seasons, while his wife and little children struggle at home with grim want; and then to be told that unless he provides for the necessaries of his own family he is worse than an infidel-O how must such inhumanity thrust | might be ofensive to many; and yet to say less like a poisoned dagger through his spiritual sensibilities. When such blows fall, let the words, "Looking unto Jesus, the Author and finisher of faith," roll over your bleeding heart with the overwhelming tide of Divine consida tion. Turn Heb. 12: 3, into a sympathetic heartbeat with the past experience and present tenderness of the Godman. In all your perplexities and dark passages, forget not that James 4: 5, is the cardiphonia of Him who died for you, and whose minister you are. Let ear and eye and mind and heart be ever open und eager to eatch the mind of God in every passing provulence The holier you are, the more you "crucify the flesh, with the affections and lusts," the more you allow the Holy Ghost to wrap your body, soul, and spirit in the righteousness of Jesus, the more will you learn when and where God would have you go, and what to do for the ex tension of His Kingdom. Notallyour calls may have the Divine endorsement. "Satan may himder, once and again." I Thess. 2: 18. You may map out a certain locality for your lideors, sit in the region and shadow of death. ways and means, and nothing will so put us into harmony with His ends, as a radical commitment to Rom. 8: 1, 2, "For me to live is Christ." "I live, yet not 1, but Christ liveth in me." "I am determined to know nothing but CHRIST." Surrly, "the man of God is thoroughly furnished unto all good works," 2 Tim. 3: 17. "Ambassadors for Christ." beseeching in Christ's stead," authorized and panoplied by Christ—such a ministry will be "the power of God unto salvation" to many souls. It will truths of the Gospel. spread like leaven, and cast out devils, and plack brands out of the suburbs of Hell, after the minister has passed to his rest.

You have the arm of Divinity for your support, His eye for your guide, His heart to pity a commission. One cent per member would you, His Spirit to comfort you, and all the assurances of "God manifest in the flesh" to "make you more than conqueror through. Himthat loved us." What grace has done, it can still do. Jesus is "the same yesterday, and today, and forever." "All power in Heaven, and I thousand members. Are there one hundred in earth," are His to day. In Him still "dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily," "In-Him are hid all, the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." It is still the office of the Holy Ghost to "take of the things of Christ and show them unto us." Here are boundless resources, and free access through the atonement and intercession of Incarnate Deity. The world is given us to save, and all the weapons of the Divine armory, and all the riches of the Divine treasury, put at our command for the great consummation "Watch ye stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." 1 Cor. 16: 13. Be much in prayer. Let the fire on your ultar never go out. Pray and wrestle carnestly for personal sanctification, for the unity of your family in the purpose, claims, and sacrifices of your high calling. Call in faith for the fulfillment of Matt. 9:38. In every possible way consistent with holiness endeavor to kindle in your members an exalted apprehension of the magnitude and urgency of the Christian legation, including the efforts of the laity no less than of the ministry. Drones in the church are the sport of devils. "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" Hands pocketed or arms akimbo are a reproach to any Christian professor. If Heaven and Hell are living realities to our faith, we will not let minister's families struggle in want and isolation, while the hushand and father is executing his office in the order of his course. Luke 1: 8. Minister to Je sus of your substance, and thus show yourself in sympathy with His sufferings and glory. larke S. 3. Such sacrifices are going to count in the day of indement. Heb. 13, 46, Philipp. 4; 18, Matt. 25; 34-40. Jesus puts the cup of water on record, and notes the falling hair. How few really "love His appearing" because they are not one with Him in the character and object of His Cross. Let us make sure work. Deception as easy. Five were wise and five fool-18h. O how many lumps and no oil. Speak boldly yet lovingly and tearfully for Jesus, at home and abroad. Kuil as many hearts to yours in sympathy and prayer as you can. Pray God to print into your heart in large living capitals the famous parenthesis of 2 Cor. 10: 4. Let this be your battle-cry: "MIGHTY THROUGH GOD TO THE PULLING DOWN OF STRONGHOLDS."

MOOMAW'S PROPOSITION

 () W Brethren, there is an iffectual door. opened in this modern Sodom for the testimony of the Son, Jesus. Who will go in and work? Let two faithful and capable evangelists be commissioned by our next A. M., to make a tour of the cities of America from New York to SanFrancisco, from Montreal to New Orleans. and promulgate a pure doctrine to those who (

sus gladly," are not seen among the bedizened worshipers of the religious aristocracy of the great cities. Street preaching will not do. There is too much harry and bustle &c. The public squares of which there are many, are comparatively quiet, and they offer the last opportunities for such work. There are always scores and hundreds of persons on pleasant seats, and doubtless the Lord would direct many a Lydia there whose heart would be opened to receive the

Let the brethren give the suggestion respectful consideration. If nothing else can be done, let a number of loothren combine to subscribe a fund sufficient to defray the expenses of such make a two year tour, wherein every city and every quarter thereof could be reached, and thus the striking features of apostolic missions would again be illustrated by our church. As a beginning. I offer to pay the quoto of one firethren who will do blewise? Put down your names before the honorable list is tilled. If it is possible let the preliminaries be completed by the opening of Spring, and let the missionaries be in the field by the time of the l'entecostial gathering, and I will undertake to guarantee that the A. M., will have nothing but " God speed" for it. After twenty manes are down, a choice will be made for men, yes men of God who will not waste their time in doting about 'questions of words, and of their law and endless genealogies," which gender strife to the subversion of the people, but will holdly proclaim the truth as it is in Jesus,

There are capable brethren in our church who are unencumbered with families, and who would gladly go out thus into the highways and hedges of the world. Let us send them, Brethren, send your names to the office of the Bigethern at Work; sisters send your names there. Look who comes nev

D. C. Moomaw.

S. T. Bosserman says, "you can take down my name as one accepting brother D. C. Moomay's proposition. May find bless the movement.

Franklin Angelmyer, of booke. Ind., says: A am glad to see the movement that D. C. Moomaw has made, in regard to having the Gospel preached in our large cities, throughout our broad land. He says, one cent per member would make a two year's four, I will gay the quotoof one hundred members, $1,00 (one dollar), How many will do like wise? Let us send the Bread of Life to the poor of our cities. How can they hear without a preacher? before not let this apportunity pass unheeded. Let us send brethren sound in 'the laith once delivered unto the saints, and let us equip them well to fight battles for the Lord. If they could win but one soul, the good we did with our few dollars could not be estimated. If we do raise the neede I amount, (and I know we can), then let as send men that are willing to hazzard their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. See Acts 15: 26. Do not wait till next week, next Summer or next year, but let us work today, for the night cometh wherein no man can work."

Abexander W. Reese, of Warnersburg, Mo., says: "In a late issine I see that brother Moomaw proposes to start a fund for carrying on missionary work in the large cibes. If such a scheme should be mangurated, some of us here wish to send in our names and mites. Please advise us if the thing is stirted.

WHY BOAST OF THYSELF?

BY LEMITS DIFFERRY.

 $\mathbf{W}^{\mathbf{E}}$ are swelling in our own estimation, just while we are getting smaller in the estimation of others. The credit we get from God and every true child of God for what we have done, is not because of how much we have done, but from the motive. Not because of how we have done it, but from the metive. For we may do a thing right, far as form is concerned, just for the admiration of men, to please men, and the life be black within.

When we want to do something to please men and to cause big(I, to) swell up within its, we are apt to tell all, all, ALL we have done, only when we think we have done much, and when we think probably we have done more than our neighbors. Sometimes our neighbors are compelled to receive our apologies as an evidence of our hoastingt for instance, a woman goes to a great deal of trouble to get up a good meal of victuals; the table is crowded and the food excellent, but just listcn; " Now sit up and cat if you can find enough, and its not very good either." When she said this, she thought it was about the best meal she had ever gotten Again, a man has followed chopping wood, trying to do as much as he can in one day, (to loast over, of course). Now see him, hear the sigh of regret and vel not if I tell you such a spirit ought | go to the table of the Lord, and in truth not to exist among us.

If we are traveling, preaching and exposing ourselves much, so as to have something hig to tell, or write; it at once becomes a little, disgusting piece of work in the eyes of God and of every saint. Just so it is brethren with us; if we are laboring only to get people into the church, it would be a very little work, and hardly worth mentioning, though we converted our thousands; but if we are instruments in the hands of God to get people to let the Lord convert them, and are reproving sin, no matter where it is found, whether in the church or out, and exberting and comforting the believer, then we ought to keep right on, be diligent; and if in one year, five, ten, or twenty years, yon prove yourself an instrument in the hands of God to save one soul from ruin, go on; you have done a great and big work. Never give up while you are doing with pure motives just what the Lord has told you, and in the way he has told you. God is setting that thing down as a big work. Don't be discournged, if you can't see anything great that you have done, only keep on. you work for the Lord, it will be recorded, and you will be astonished how it will foot up at the end of the race. In his own good time he will publish your work. And others who are making out their own list and counting up the wonders they have wrought, will be surprised how little it foots up at the end of the race when God declares his own record of their work.

Brethren and sisters, let us be like the preacher where enemies tried to discourinstrumental in saving but one person in twenty years." The preacher asked, O Have I done this much?" They auswered, "Yes, we think just about this] much." He replied, "Then here goes for another twenty years." Oh, may God help us to work for him and not for ourselves, then we will have done a great work indeed.

MISSIONARY WORK.

BY SARAH M. SAUNDERS,

TME Israelites were required to give one-tenth of their annual income for the services of their sanctuary, and if God and reasons why they should give this sum, have we not the strongest reasons to believe that it is his will that his people in these last times should do at least as much, especially since he has laid apon us the duty of preaching the Gospel to every creature (- - a duty which was not laid on his ancient people.

Doubtless many of us, think that we have given as the Lord has prospered us, but is it so? I think not. We would not think it printent to force it upon the members of the church to give one tenth of their annual income to the Lord, "for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver," but they ought to consider it their duty as well as their privilege, " on the first day of the week to lay by them in store! such contributions as would annually amount to this sum.

In these last days, when God has opened every door for the entrance of his Gos. pel, and so amply provided the church hear him say to his friends," Another with talent, and when the Macedonian day has passed, and I have not done very cry, "Come over and help us," comes in Heb. 8: 7. But in sending out our missionaries to preach, some expenses must necessarily be incurred, and as a matter of course, it is as much the duty of Christian men and women to give their money to send the Gospel, as it is the duty of the ministers of Christ to go and hear it to every creature.

THE AUTHORITY AND HONOR OF OUR SAVIOR'S PRIESTHOOD.

BY W. BOROUGH.

"Christ glorified not himself to be made a high priest; but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, to-day have 1 begotten thee." Heb.

((OD also said at another time, " Thou art a priest forever after the order of Malchisedec." Heb. 5: 6. priest, " being made perfect, became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." Heb. 5:9. He is call ed of God a high priest, " after the or der of Melchisedec," Heb, 5: 10, Mel chisedec was a priest, who had no predecessors nor successors in his office; he did not descend from a lineal priesthood neither was his office handed down through a line of successors, therefore he was " without father, mother or descent, having neither beginning of days. nor end of life; but made like unto the age him by saying, "You can't preach, Son of God; abideth a priest continualand you better quit, for you have been [ly," Heb. 7: 3. He was a wking of rigtheousness," so was the Savior. He was "king of peace," so was the Savior. To this priest Abraham paid tithes. The Levites in Abraham paid tithes to him, and received a law, called the law of Moses; which, however, was not perfect, containing carnal commandments. But out of the tribe of Juda, came another priest after the similitude of Melchisedee, of which tribe Moses spake noth ing concerning the priesthood. He was not made by the law, but by an oath by him that said unto him, "The Lord sware and will not repent, Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec, by so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament." Heb. 7 21, 22.

The law made nothing perfect, consequently there were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death. But this man, because he continued ever, bath an unchangealde priesthood, wherefore, he is also able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them. Heb. 7: 24, 25. He does not need to offer up daily sacrifice for his own sins and for the people's, as did the priests made by the law, " for this he did once when the offered up himself," Heb. 7: 27, thus making a great difference between his priesthood and that of the Levites. By the eternal priesthood of Christ, the Levitical priesthood of Aaron is abolished, and the temporal covenant of the fathers vanished under the eternal covenant of the Gospel. "If the first covement had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second." enant with the house of Jacob, and the about eight cords." My brethren, mar is evidently God's design? How can be in their hearts," Held S: 10, and "all nity to the departed. Many crowd shall know the Lord from the least to the greatest." Heb. 8: 11. This law was written in the minds and hearts of the apostles and inspired meo, who wrote it to be read and preached through all successive generations until all shall come to know the Lord.

"The first covenant had also ordinances of divine services, and a worldly sanc. tuary," Heb. 9: 1, which I need not describe here, " but Christ being come a High Priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is to say, not Now we believe that in sending our of this building; neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood having obtained eternal redemption for us." Heb. 9: 11, 12. "For this cause he is the Mediator of the New Testa. ment." Heb. 9: 15. For a testament is not in force until the testator is dead. Under the law almost all things were purged with blood, and without shed. ding of blood is no remission; it was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with lætter sacrifices than these. For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true, but into heav. en itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us; not as the high priest did, once a year or he would have died many times, but once for all and for all time to come. So Christ was once offer. ed to hear the sins of many, and unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time without sin unto salva. tion. Melchisedec received tithes (gifts) of the people. The priesthood of Aaron also received tithes of their brethren, No less honor is due to our great High Priest; hence it becomes our indispensable duty to offer without reserve our tithes of thanksgiving and supplication to him daily that we may be guided and protected by his mighty power.

In conclusion, I would state, that I did not write this article to spring new ideas upon this subject, but have merely brought it to your notice to reflect mon. Paul gives us a beautiful lesson upon this subject, and calls it the first principles of the oracles of God, and negligence in the knowledge of the same, is reproved. Then let us seek to know these principles, that we may become more thoroughly attached to our great High Priest, who to day is sitting at the right hand of God to make intercession for us.

THE ETIQUETTE OF DEATH.

THE royal personage and the humblest peasant, the rich, the poor, the chieftain, all command a certain degree of attention in death that was not be lieved in life. The miserable Irish hodcarrier dies in a hovel where he was uncared for while living; but as soon as the breath is out of his hody, a host of "friends" gather in, and an expensive " wake" is planned for the coming night. There is to be free whiskey and a nonturnal fielic, and on the coming Sunday if Pat happens to die lafter the middle of the week, a big funeral is to be puraded. The most significant part of the poor man's career was ended after be was dead.

A well-to do individual dies, and the neighbors speak sedemnly of the event they discuss the manners and merits of the man, passing lightly over his faults. sround the house where the funeral sermon is preached, or loiter in the recesses of the premises. When the funeral cortege is arraigned before the craped abode, and the real mourners have occupied carriages immediately behind the hearse, the extra vehicles are quickly filled by strange people who seek this opportunity in fine weather to steal a free carrisge ride through the suburbs to the beautiful cemetry five or six miles away. It is common that a part of the burial services of many Christian churches be performed at the grave; and while this receimony is going on, the males stand with nucovered heads, and the delicate females are exposed to the scorching blasts of a death-dealing wind. A wailing daughter in delicate health takes a cold or chill from which she never recovers. She immediately loses her life in keeping the etiquette of death.

A letter appeared recently in the London Times, in which the writer asked for legislation upon the burial question; he says, " Let the burial services of the thousands and thousands of these perchurch of England be so arranged that the whole of it may be read in the church standing for several minutes in the pelting rain, or in a Idinding storm of snow, their hearts broken with grief, and stomachs without accustomed support, must often prove detrimental to careless, yet well-meaning monraers. In country places it is not uncommon to see litthe children kept in view of the coffin during protracted religious exercises. and then taken for miles to the churchyard, necregard being paid to storm, or to the inexpacity of infancy to under stand what the tears, torture and slow travel, are all for. The small pace of the funeral train would seem to be enforced in order to prolong the misery, already drawn out. A terrible sacrifice is made for the etiquette of death.

"Ah!" said a fond mother, " my boys would not like such books."

Are you sure? If never a night sees their eyes close until they have talked with mother about all they have seen, done and read for the day, perhaps they have been taught not to admire these books; have, with a little guidance, acquired a taste for better reading. But if not, if the mother has been too busy. has calls to make or receive, other duties or pleasures that she thinks paramount to knowing all her children do and think, let her flatter herself that her boys would not like to read, without discrimination, anything that smacks of adventure and daring.

The argument being that that can send out such deadly things to murder innocence and happiness, are not philanthropists to adhere to a losing venture. The books are bought and sold. Some mother's boys and girls read them. Are you sure it is not yours?

There are books and books and books in this class of literature whose heroes had run away from homes in which they were not appreciated, and to these books may seriously be traced the epidemic of runaways, of which we see and read and hear so much.

There are other books which instrate in all their sickening details, dog fights, chicken fights, and animal torture of every description, that palliate these great erimes and accustom the minds of the young readers to contemplate torture and cruelty unmoved, and thus enable the youth to take active part in such sport when apportunity offers. > "But people will talk," and the consequence is, vanity is produced in the heart. We regret that we are so prone to express ourselves so quickly, for the tongue is a little member, but what a world of iniquity lieth underneath. Ofttimes we are pained to hear that such an one is bearing tidings about our character that assimilates us with those of an opposite nature. We are not prepared to receive such from those we only know to love; consequently in the heat of the moment we say what we should have kept to ourselves. Oh, the bitterness it causes us, the intense grief, the agony. Yes a word spoken in wrath, is a cup of sorrow. "A soft answer turneth away wrath." "But people will talk." Oh, let us have charity, it beareth all things, and therefore the tonguelashing of our dearest ones.

Brethren and sisters, it does seem that we should not do so, but it is nevertheless true, and we are guilty. Can we withstand future attacks? Will we try? By God's grace we may comply with his requirement if we will. Oh, our stubborn wills, how obstinate, how contrary. This is not the Spirit of Christ. Will we retain a spirit antagonistic to that, that bringeth forth the fruits meet for repentance? Let us consider, pause, reflect, and change our conversation; for our conversation should be as one professing godliness. Brethren, love one another, for love is of God, Hatred is of the devil. " Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

THE TWO ROADS.

BY G. NEVINGER.

MOMETIME ago, while waiting at the depot for the freight train to pass, so that I could unload my grain; I notical that each car was labeled, or marked, so that any one could tell to what read it belonged. While musing on the variety of names, the thought came to my mind that there are but two ways ! or roads spoken of in Holy Writ. OUTSIDERS' FUND EXPLAINED

TEVERAL, who have lately written us, seem on misunderstand our method of sending papers to outsiders for $1.00 a year, hence we will have to explain a little farther. There are many outsiders who will not subscribe for the paper, yet derive much good from reading it, To such we agree to send the paper for $1.00 provided some one will donate the money, we throwing off 50 cents to make the burden lighter for those who donate, but if the outsider pays for it himself, then he must pay full price the same as other subscribers.

It is worked in this way: Our readers send us the names of outsiders whom they think would be benefited by reading the paper. These names are carefully entered in a book kept for that purpose, and taken off and placed on the mailing list just as fast as money is donated to pay for them. If three dollars are donated today, three names will be taken off of the book and passed over to the mailing clerk, who will place them on his regular mailing list for one year. When more money comes in, then more names are sent over to the mailing clerk. By this it will be seen that outsiders, who receive the paper for one dollar a year, are those to whom the paper is donated. The poor fand is worked on the same principle.

Last year we paid something over two hundrod dollars towards sending the BRETHREN AT WORK to poor members and well-disposed outsiders. We concluded that was a little too heavy a hurden for us to hear, and hence offered to throw off fifty cents on each paper donated to outsiders and poor members, provided on readers would pay the other $1,00. Hence these funds. The regular subscription price of the paper is $1.50, alike to outsiders and all. only we throw off 50 cents when you want to donote the paper to some one who will not subscribe for it. Hope we are fully understood this time.

We owe many thanks to our generous hearted members for donating so freely to these funds. The paper is doing good, only keep the work going. Heaven will amply reward you for all the efforts you make looking to the salvation of your fellow mortals.

THE CONDITIONS OF SALVTAION

DA salvation here, is meant pardon, or re-D mission of sins. He who is pardonel is saved from his sins, and justified in the sight

In salvation there is a human part, and also a divine part. The human part man performs; it consists of things that he can do. The di-Ame part God attends to; this consists in things man. Man is the one who is to be benefitedis to receive all the blessings.

As an illustration, the reader is referred to Naaman's case. He was told to go and dip A similar course might be preshed in many himself seven times in Jordan, and he should yet been reached; but when he dips himself the These tambles could do a good work by sends as yeath time he comes to where Got has idae of

, and pulgment, all speaking the same thing the lend to others and so on. Another good work and did nothing to ment if the was told where to find it; did what the old prophet commanded him, and was blessed in the dead.

Salvation from sin is also a free gift; it is samething God does for mao. Man does nothing to merit it. It is therefore free, and hence of "grace." God pardons on certain conditions, which are clearly specified. These conditions embrace the human part in salvation: they constitute the part that man must perform in order to reach salvation. Salvation is free, but must be accepted before it can be possessed, To accept it is to comply with the conditions.

To show that salvation is free, and at the same time offered on certain conditions I must illustrate. Sulpose we have in the neighborhood a highly respected family, composed of father, mother, son and daughters. The son having been led into bad company, falls into the habit of drinking, becomes a drunkard, and brings disgrace on himself and kindred. He becomes despised and is rejected by all respectable people. But he has a wealthy uncle, who loves him, and is pained because of bis degraded condition. He resolves to do something in behalf of the young mun, and if possible reform and elevate his character. This must be done by elevating the affections and surrounding him with hetter and nobler associates. Hence the uncle makes him the following offer: "If you will agree to quit your drinking, reform your life, leave off your bad associates and sign a pledge to that effect, I will make you a present of $100, and give you the use of the best farm I have; and if you hold out faithful to the promise for ten years I will give you a clear title to the entire farm."

The young man agrees to accept the offer He signs the paper in the presence of an othicer. quits his drinking, forsakes his bad associates. receives his $100, and the use of the best farm. Having reformed his life, he is respected by all as a good neighbor and a faithful citizen. Remaining faithful to his promise, at the end of ten years he receives a clear title to the farm, and it is his own.

I now ask, is not that $100, and farm a free ammerited gift? Did the young man do any thing to merit it? Was not the whole thing for his good, to elevate his affections and reform his life? Yet the whole thing was on certain

Just so it is with our salvation. The sinner is degraded, has become polluted with sin, and is therefore nufit for the decent society of heaven. To take him into heaven in his present polluted condition would be to disgrace the paradise of God, hence his affections must be elevated and his character reformed. To effect this, God proposes certain conditions, not as a price for parsion, but as a means by which to reach pardon. Before he can receive pardon three things must be effected. (1) His affectloved he must now hate, and things once hated he must now love. He must "set his affections on things above." (2) His life, or combact must be reformed; he must coase to do evil and learn to do well. (3) His relation. must be changed; he must come out from the world and be duly initiated into the family id God, and then he receives his first gift—the remission of his sins.

The affections, or heart must be changed by faith. "Without faith it is impossible to please God," Helc II; 6, and "he that believeth not shall be dammed." Mark 16: 16. Man cannot set his affection on things above without faith. "For with the heart man believeth unto rightaffections.

The life or conduct must be changed by repentance. Repentance is the reformation of lite, or us the prophet expresses lift: "Tense to do evil Jearn to do well." Isaiah J: 16, 17, God "now commandeth men every-where to repent," Acts 17: 30, and nexceptive repent ge shall all likewise perish. Lake 13: 3.

THE OLD ORDER

NUMBER VI.

UR needs drive us upon our knees. Greater help than ourselves we must have, hence we seek the help from One who is greater. Prayer reacts favorably upon our minds, because we are expecting something grand and important. We are looking for grace, for blessings, hence go where they may be had. But the inquiring man asks,

Does God Answer Prayer?

God answers prayer. If we conclude that He does not, then why do we pray? Do we ask with the expectation of not receiving? This would be mere mockery. Let us go to the Bible and find out whether God has answered prayers. If God has answered prayer, and still commands us to pray, then He continues to answer prayer. Pharaoh begged Moses to entreat the Lord to take away the plague of the locusts. Hear the divine Record: "And he went out from Pharnoh, and entreated the Lord. And the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and east them into the Red Sea." Ex. 10: 18, 19. That prayer was answered. Now listen to the prayer of Jacob: "And Jacob said, O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, the Lord which saidst unto me, Return unto thy country and to thy kindred, and I will deal well with thee: I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast showed unto thy servant: for with my staff I passed over this Jordan, and now I am become two bands. Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother Esau; for I fear him, lest he will come and smite me, and the mother with the children. And thou saidst, I will surely do ther good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude," Gen. 32; 9-12. Hear the result of this prayer-look at the answer: "And Esan ran to meet him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept." Gen. 33: 4.

We next turn to Hezekiah, who when asked to be spared. God sent the prophet Isaiah to him with this answer: "Go and say to Hezekiah, Thus saith the bord, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears; behold, I will add unto Thy days fifteen years." Isa. 38: 5. "I have heard thy prayer," says God. "I have seen thy tears." ions must be changed. Things he once Blessed be the name of God! But we bring up departed from him. And when Peter was come a case or two more of answer to prayer, as found recorded in the Old Testament. While Moses was on Mt. Sinai receiving the Law, the people demanded an Egyptian god, and Aaronmade a golden calf for them. This the people worshipped. When Moses came down and saw the wickedness of the people, he was filled with anguish. To God he goes, who tells him that He will destroy this rebellions people, and make of him a greater nation. But Moses began to pray for the people and said; "Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold. Yet now, if thou wilt torgive their sin; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which then hast written. And the consisses," Rom, 10: 10, hence the change of Lord said unto Moses, Whosoever half sinned against me, ham will I blat out of my beach Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: Behold, mine Angel shall guebefore there; nevertheless, in the day when I visit, I will visit their sinapon them." Ex. 32-34.

Should the reader desire one more remarkable answer to prayer, as recorded in the Old Testament, turn to Dauiel sixth and read. Let us now search the New Testament for More Answered Prayers.

" For a certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet: (The woman was a Greek, a Syrophenician by nation,) and she besought him that he would east forth the devil out of her daughter. But Jesus said unto her, Let the children first be filled; for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs. And she answered and said unto him, Yes, Lord: yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs." The final answer of Jesus was: "For this saying, go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter." Hear the result: "And when she was come to her house, she found the devil gone out, and her daughter hild upon the bed." Mark 7: 25-30.

Our next Gospel case is that of Peter who was put in prison by Herod. "Peter therefore was kept in prison: but prayer was made without ceasing of the Church unto God for him." Were these prayers answered? Did God hear this prayer which was made without ceasing? Let the Oracles of God speak: "And behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison; and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his claims fell off from his hands. And the angel said unto him, Girl thyself, and bind on thy sandals; and so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me. And he went out, and followed him, and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel; but thought he saw a vision. When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city; which opened to them of his own accord; and they went out, and passed on through one street; and forthwith the angel to himself, he said. Now I know of a surety that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the dews." Acts 12.

Cornelins Heard.

 And Cornelius said, Four days ago 1 was fasting until this hour; and at the muth hour I prayed in my house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing, and said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God." "Well, now, since the prayers have been heard, is that not sufficient? Why dear angel, if my provere are heard, that is all I ask; that is quite enough for me." Is this the way praying Cornebus reasoned? O not but meekly submissive he waits for the command of the Lord, who said. "Send therefore to Joppa, and call I i her Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is ledged in the house of one Simon a funner by the sea side; who, when the comoth, shall speak unto thee. Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now there one are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God. FROM A BAPTIST LADY.

Dear Editors:—

I OU express a desire to hear from your subscribers. I am not a subscriber, but a very attentive render. Some kind friend sends me your paper to read and distribute, and I should like to subscribe for myself, but my husband, although he likes it, wants his secular papers, and having had a succession of misfortunes, and being a member of several "fraternities," you will probably understand why we have but little money for reading matter. But I have distributed them faithfully, have sent them by mail and otherwise where I thought they might do good, and if you have tracts or other literature to dispose of, in the same way, I will hereafter have a very good chance, as the railroad is about to be completed and the cars will run in three or four weeks, and I can go to the station and give them to the passengers.

I am reading, with intense interest, the Stein and Ray Debate. (I am a Baptist). I am retaining all the numbers for a final reading when it shall be completed. I am at present a little afraid our champion will come off " second best." Yours will win outside readers by the superior chasteness of his language. I believe in trine immersion, and if I had not been once immersed before I thought as I do now, I would be baptized by no other mode. I like your position on secret societies. I have for many years watched the workings of Old Fellowship, and have long ago, by show degrees, become tirmly convenced that it is a force. I would write an article on the subject and offer it to you for publication if it were not for offending my husband, who does not like for me to speak against them, and as I believe him to be conscientions in his devotion to the order, I do not wish to wound his feelings.

God speed you in your noble warfare, on the world-hlighting, soul-destroying curse-alcohol, It is sweeping the earth with the besom of destruction, and then church members say it is a good thing in its place. I hope the day may be near by when you will have flourishing churches all over Texas.

Very Respectfully,

REMAUKS.

From the above it can be seen whether it does any good to send the paper to outsiders. Through the kindness of a free hearted brother, whose name we withhold, this Baptist lady has been permitted to read the Bretines at Work and a number of our tracts, and it is gratifying to see how eagerly she grasps for the truth. May God bless her, and thousands of others in search of the truth. Brethren, send along your donations and let us see if we cannot get the paper into the hands of a couple, thousand outsiders. See our terms on last page of No. 5. and each one lend a helping hand.

Pleasant Sundays -- Holidays in Wolfe Creek Church-Test of Discipleship-Thoughts at Close of the Year-The Brethren at Work and Asbland College.

RECENTLY enjoyed several very pleasant Sundays. In the first place I met with the brethren and sisters in the sanctuary of the Lord to celebrate the praises of the Most High. After services we stopped at the homes of brethren and sisters, whose conversation was in heaven-whose delight and meditations were in the law of the Lord; and out of the abundance of their hearts they spoke of the marvelous, gracious work of redemption.

We thought, first, how much better it is to spend our Sundays in reading the Scriptures, and talking of their divine origin, power and influence, than to converse about lands, stack and "the news of the day;" or what is worse, use our tongues as torches of hell in disseminate ing the foibles and percadillos of brethren and friends, and putting a wrong construction on their good deeds.

Second, what a mighty—an almighty leavening power would the Brotherhood be, if all its subjects were "living epistles" "of righteousness and peace," having their "speech with grace sensoned with salt," obeying from the heart the form of doctrine delivered unto them.

As the holidays are spent in idle and wicked ammsements, religious fredies, feasts, and gambling, not to say anything of hall rooms, gambling-hells, and dens of debanchery, the Brethren on Wolf Creek, to counternet these evils, and to present a letter opportunity of spending these days, concluded to have religious services on them. Accordingly, meetings were appointed for Christmas' and New Year's Days. These meetings were well affemded.

Elder Bumbangli mide some very appropriate remarks at our Christmas meeting on the test of discipleship. He said that we hear much beesting in our day of how much we love the Lord, and Lo! here, and Lo! there is Christ. The publicans and harbets went into the kingdom of beaven before the housting Scribe and Pharisee. In the day of judgment the boasting class is sent away from the Bar, with the damning denunciations of the "Judge of the quick and the dead," But there is a "more excellent way," and that is the apostolic way. And that is, we should let our light so shine that men may see our good works and glorify our father which is in heaven. We should show our love in a practical manner, and that only can be done by keeping his commandments and loving one another. "For whoseever leveth me becaeth my commandments," says the Lord, "Whosoever levelli me not, largeth not my sayings." "By this know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the idethren."

> "So let our livies and lips express," The holy gosted we profess,"

As the old year aleparted, we had to think of the many changes that took place in its course, Beloved side, companions, lovely, children, and fond parents were called to try the stern peak. ties of eternity. Aching woods were inade in many hearts, which the world can never fill, On the other hand, we thought of the blass of those who lived and died in the Lord. And of those blessed lambs, who

"Before their heart had learned, In way wardness to stray: Before their feet look even turned The dark and downward may;

"Ere sin had senr'd the breast Or sorrow wake the lour; Rose to their throne of changless rest. In you celestial sphere."

I cannot conclude these echoes without expressing my approbation and satisfaction of the satisfactory manner in which the Rigermore AT WORK is conducted. We were particularly pleased with your editorial observations on our institutions of learning, plainness of attre-andnoncomformity in general, etc. Your conclusions were the natural results of investigated. truth. God bless you in your efforts to promulgate primitive christmuity.

Dear Brethren:— LLINOIS Brethren who feel concerned; remained over night with Dr. Fahrney, at Chicago. Took the Lake Shore Railroad at 9 A. M. Resched South Bend at noon, in the hope of finding my wife at our son's, but failed. Next day I took the train to Niles and Kalamazoo. There I laid by till 3:30 P. M., and reached our station (Bloomingdale) after five; but did not get home till next evening, because no teams were passing on account of snow storm and depth of snow. The thermometer has not been lower than 5° below zero at any time. I found the feeble and sick convalescent. My companion is now willing to go with me to any place, but never to be left back any more. Thus you see I am re-inforced, and those that desire my services can have them in a double form-but not otherwise. She thinks she has been divorced often enough and ought to be entitled to enjoy the love and kindness of the loved ones abroad as well as we preachers: perhaps she is right, and if it swould be left to a vote among the preacher's wives, a large imjority might be the result.

We now design to leave home for South Bend, and if my countrymen find me a house to speak in and a congregation to speak to, we shall likely remain three or four weeks. Then I shall be at the service of Brethren at any place desired, but I don't think it best to shift

Here we were made to rejoice in seeing eight precious souls, who were in the prime of life, come out from the ranks of Satau, renounce sin and all the pleasures thereof, and enlist under the blood-stained banner of King Emanuel, to go forth as soldiers of the cross, to fight the battle of the Lord. Our meetings closed on the evening of the 19th. Brother Hoover bade us farewell, and it caused some degree of sorrow to think that we had to part, and that he could remain with us no longer. He bad to leave for another field of labor. ISAAC STREL

CLOSED a meeting at this place last evening with as much interest as I ever saw at any meeting. Three were received by baptism and one restored to fellowship, and quite a number of applicants which will be haptized in due time. May the Lord bless them idl; and hope through their influence many more will come.

The brethren and sisters were all well, excepting two brethren who are on their deathbeds with consumption. What a great pleasare it was to be at their bed-sides and hear them talk of their heavenly homes. Brother Welch was raised by Catholic parents; bis mother came to his hed to weep for him because at his Protestant profession. He gently repled to his mother: "Do not weep for me, but for yourself; my joy is complete and I am willing and ready to go to sleep in the arms of Jesus, knowing that I am saved through obedience to him." Oh! blessed hope! Brother Comme is also "perfectly" happy and said: "I am willing to suffer still more; it is all pleasant with me. Only one thing troubles me, and that is my dear children." But he hopes that ere long they will all come to Christ—that the tanuly may all meet in heaven. Dear children, think of a father's prayers and tears for you.

I acrived at Carey, and there found Brethren Levi H. Dickey and S. T. Bosserman at work; good interest up, and one baptized to-day. More at the close of the meeting.

IT seems to me very strange indeed that there is no Brethren Church in this city, Some time ugo I read in the BRETHREN AT WORK that there are about twenty Brethren living in Chicago. There is a need for a primitive christian Church here: this is a large field. Let it not be overlooked as it has been formerly, A Free Baptist would be glad to co-operate and get others to do the same. I do not belong to any religious society now; have longed to see the Brethren come here and proclaim the Cos. pel. Such of the Brethren that have not self in view, but the glory of God and a dying world, need to gather in prayer to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers. I know the Lord will bour and grant the request of those who will thus pray him.

Reader, what is your god? Is it Opinion? Do you object to things becomes this viace contrary to your opinion or because you know they are not the truth? Do you advocate things because they are truths, which you can prove, or because they are your opinions? Practically with many Opinion is God. A man can loose his reputation sooner in no way than to oppose people on opinions. It is evident many of our uninsters are serving the god of Opinion. They can preach with tremendous zent and power against some exils which exist in "offier denominations" because it is popular to do so, but to correct errors into which some, of their brethren have fallen, is too much to them to do. They would lose their reputation in they did that! So, we see more attention is public opinaem than trath.

God speed the day when all our ministers shall break the unadulterated Bread of Life regurdless of opinions. Opinion is a farre and they who trust in it will find it out sometime, even if it he not before they weep and gnash their teeth in outer darkness.

THE AUTHORITY AND HONOR OF OUR SAVIOR'S PRIESTHOOD.

RY W. MOROPOR.

ு Christoglantied not him-elf to be unide a lingle priest; but he that said unto him, Theoriet. my Son, to-day have I begetten thee," Hele

TN the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. we have an High Priest who is preferred above the angels, both in person and in office. In person he is owned of God and sicknowledged to be his Son. made equal with God. This has never been said of any of the angels, much less of the frail creatures of luminity; the priesthood of Amon not excepted, although their offerings were acceptable with God when properly made. When our great High Priest was baptized of John in Jordan, "coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him, and there came a voice from heaven. saying, This is my beloved Son in whom Lam well pleased," Mark 4: 10, 14, Such honor never was conferred upon any being, or creature, except the Savior; but this is not all; in addition to the personal honors, he also received official: honors. God by an eath made him an High Priest forever after the order of Melchisedee, and also anointed him King, and gave him a kingdom, and scepter of righteousness by which to govern his people; set him upon the majestic throne; gave himself all power in heaven and in earth; enwrapt him with grandeur that outslaines the sun, which forever guards him and fortifies him against the approach of his enemies. Of his power, he spoke to the eleven in the mountain, saying, " All power is given unto me in heaven and in carth." He gives us an illustration of his magnificent glom, spleridor and brightness in the conversion of Saul of Tarsus.

Saul of Tarsus was at that time an enemy of Christ, he was in pursuit of the followers of Christ, equipped with all the power that the Roman govern ment could bestow upon him as an officer. was made chief in this work. Then we have the chief of sinners coming in contact with the Chief of righteonsness, our great High Priest and King, and what is the result? The chief of sinners is melted into submission by the brilliant splendor of the Sun of Righteons ness as a snowflake melts under the bright rays of a noonday sun.

Then, my dear reader, if you are not at peace with the Sun of Rightconsness, if you are yet in open rebellion against him, how can you hope to meet him without a preparation! "The Lord thy God is a consuming fire." Deut. 4: 24; Heb. 12: 29. In consequence of the brightness of his glory, to the nuprepared, heaven itself would be a place of exerneiating torment. Then it becomes important that we be at peace with the Lord our King and Priest, for we must all meet him in his splendor to render an account to him for our deeds. We fear that there will be many that will not be able to withstand the brilliant glory of him that sitteth upon the throne, but will call for rocks and mountains to hide them from the brightness of his splendor; for our Lord is a consuming fire. But not so with those who are prepared to meet him in peace; for they shall be like him. To them, heaven will be a happy place; no night there; for "the Lamb is the light thereof." Rev. 24: 23. No waiting for a revolution to receive light from another planet, or planets which can only give us light a portion of the time at best, but is illuminated forever, and ever by the honor and glory of our great High Priest. Such are his official honors They are worthy of the acknowledge ment of all humanity. The angels deacknowledge them. And there can be no reason given why we should not do the same, and with gladness obey his commandments. Then let us put on the whole armor of faith, and fight man fully the buttles of the Lord, and ob tain the great treasure laid up for us.

🚹 EN, of different nations, have variousways in dealing with their dead. dust then art, and unto dust shalt theu return," by the quick process of cremution. Others, like the ancient Egyptians, enbalm them in colors to keep them from decaying; and perchance avoid the soul's transmigration. Others, again leary them into the earth, where they slowly return to their mother dust, which also is the most reasonable way of dealing with them. But people are not buried while they yet lire, neither are they raised from the dead before they had died and were lorried. To long men while yet alive, is inhuman, and in us. For it moves yet in our mortal were it done, it would be atrociously wieked; but to raise people from the dead, bodily before they had died is im- and so to reign in als. But Paul tells possible. Yet, spiritually, I am atraid, the Roman Jackhron who were "dead the former is frequently done, and the impossibility of the latter, attempted through Jesus Christ, our Lord;" "Let to prove. That the "old man" of the not sin therefore the cause they were dead believer in Christ, is "buried with him unito sin) reign in your mortal bodies, in baptism," is a doctrine taught so une that ye should obey it in the lusts there- mortification and dreay, and is termed mistakaldy plain in the New Testament, of." Rom. 6: 11, 12. Hence he who in the Scripture, "making provision for that, to attempt to disprove it, a man has "crueffed the old man," for Christ's the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof simply exposes his folly, his ignorance, or his total insincerity. But it is not the outward form that accomplishes the work, but that which is wrought within.

Peter tells us that "baptism doth save us," but not the outward washing, the immersing of the hody, which he terms "the putting away of the filth of the flesh," but the inward workings of the Spirit of God; the "old man" being buried into Christ's death; the separating of the "body of sin" from the soul; and hence "the answer of a good conscience toward God," by or through "the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead."

The "old man, the body of sin" is not buried into the baptismal waters, but into Christ's death. It is the believer's body that is immersed, "buried" into the watery element in baptism, and typ ifies that which takes place within; not that which took place, a month or a year before, but that which takes place at one and the same time. The immersing, the burying of the body of the believer, typities not only the burying of the " old man" into Christ's death," but as it is in baptism also raised out of its watery grave, it therein typifies the res urrection of the "new man," the rising with Christ through the faith in the soul which grasps God in his resurrect ing power, with which he raised Jesus from the dead.

Raptism is the grafting in of the believer, into Christ, a branch into the True Vine; the being planted "together in the likeness of his death," in order that we may be also "in the likeness of his resurrection." But to be planted together in the likeness of Christ's death, we see that it is necessary that the "old man" first dies,—Christ was first cruci fied, and then he was buried. But mark, he was not first risen from the dead and then buried. So likewise must our "old man" be first cucified before he is to be Imried, but not risen with Christ.

But what is the "old man," and how is be crucified! The old man is our sinful nature, the inherited sinful inclinations and evil propensities. It is equivalent to the body of sins," the members of which are "fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affections, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry, anger, wrath, malice, ldasphemy, and filthy communication," Col. 3: 5-8, and to erneify it, is to forever renounce them; to cross the desires and appetites thereof by doing just the contrary to what they denigd us to do.

To "be dead with Christ," is not to Some hasten them back to their origin, | really have died; that our natural bodies are Jead, but " to be dead indeed unto sm," and to be dead indeed unto sin, is not that sin_itself is dead, but that we are dead unto sin; and to be dead unto sin, is to "have crucified the flesh, with the passions (margin) and lusts," Gal-5:24, to have forever renounced sin, and in our hearts, resolved, never, more to will unto sin. Hence our will, is the life of the "old man" or the "body of sins," and when we no more will unto sin for Christ's sake, then are we indeed dead unto sin. Not that sin is dead hodies, strives for the mastery, wars against the spirit, trying to get the sway indeed unto sin, but alive unto God sake, whose will unto sin is dead, he i a Gospel subject to be "buried with Christ in haptism," in order that he man also rise " with him through the faith , the operation of God. who raised him from the dead." He who divorces the buried with Christ in baptism," the being haprized into his death, the bein planted together in the likeness of his death, the being also in the likeness of his resurrection, the rising of the new man to walk in newness of life, from the administration of the rite of bap. tism, the immersion of the body, the burying of the believer into the bap. tismal waters, and disconnectedly place it, without any Scriptural authority, a month, a year, or two years before it commits so great a crime as he who breaks the command, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," puts asunder that which God has joined together, or as he who takes the spirit of the body-com. mits murder.

The Gospel subject for baptism, truly must be dead unto sin, before he shall be larried with Christ in haptism, but he is not required to have risen with him. The thought of Christ being buried after he was risen from the dead! Who ever thought of burying the saints after they have risen from the dead when the Lord has descended from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God! Thess. 4: 16. Who does not see the inconsitency of such a thought, yea the absurdity? And yet it is no more so, than the doctrine that those who are risen with Christ, shall then be "buried with him in baptism." The truth is, the old man is buried with Christ, buried into Christ's death, in baptism, never more to rise, but to mortality and decay; and the new man risen with Christ to walk in newness of life, "Oh," says one, "Cornelius was risen with Christ before he was buried in baptism." I deny the assertion, and ask for its proof. He was no more buried with Christ, and risen with him when the Holy Spirit fell on him, than was Saul the son of Kish when he met the company of prophets and the Spirit of God came upon him, 1 Sam. 10; 10, and how could Saul have been buried in Christ's death and risen with him, seeing that Christ himself had not yet died and risen?

Receiving the Holy Spirit, is not rising in Christ. For that which rises is a ! new creature, a new man, not the Hely Spirit, though the latter possesses the new creature, the new man, and it is no greater miracle for the new man a Cornelius to receive the Holy Spirit be forche was born, though conceived, that it was for John the Baptist to be filled with the Holy Ghost, and leap for joy before he was born.

In the setting out of this article, I mentioned three ways that men deal with their dead, and new let us see whether it does not agree with the page tice of the present-day Christian professors, in a spiritual point of view. We find many who do not larry their converts, those who are seemingly dead up to sin, at all, but pass them through the quick process of eremation-anxions bench, revival excitement and thereby consume, and reduce the old man the looly of sins in them so completely, that for them to sin any more is simply impossible. (?) Others enbalm them first which frequently takes six or eight weeks before they deposit them in the tomb. This is done to keep them from

Others again, having sufficient evidence to believe that their converts have con cified the old man, are dead indeed unto sin, and that a new creature, a new man is conceived in the hearts, they bury them-their old man, the "body of sins," by Imptism, into Christ's death, there to mortify and decay, and finally to pass into oblivion; in order that they may, through the faith in the powerful oper ation of God in raising Christ from the dead, also rise with him and walk in newness of life; and by this resurrection, finally conquor death hell and the grave, and obtain the erown of life with the inheritance, incorruptible, and that fadeth not away, which is reserved for them in beaven.

THE LITERAL INTERPRETATION OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

BY ALEX W. REESE.

. But be answered and said, it is written thou shalt not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Matt. 4: 4

THE Scriptures of Divine truth comprise a revelation of the will of God to the human race. This revelation is addressed to moral, intelligent, accountable beings. It is the voice of algovernment of God. They are not the Creator, clothed in human language, addressing itself to the moral mature of man through the present facuties or mind. While the intimate connection between mind and master is too subtile for the finite conception of man -this we do know that we are brought into light of his Word, as to suppose that relation with external things, solely through the medium of the organs of special sense. Language is but the expression of thought-the medium, which by common consent, and the force of imperious circumstance is a col as the ered a fit subject for the lunatic asylum. the Holy Spirit. vehicle of communication between man and his fellow man. Wores are but the signs of ideas, they have no incom-level near special meaning in themselves. They are arbitrary terms employed for the expression of mental terms and forces, God, in communication his will to mon. employed the instrumentality or human language to convey the workings of the divine mind to the composhed-non of human intelligence, for this is the only agency, short of miraculeus intervention, by which he could reach the human mind,

It this view of the subject by correct, it then inevitally follows, as a logical of mankind. Some things are a pulpasequence to the proposition, that we are to accept the literal interpretation of the Hely Scriptures as the rule of thirb and practice. We are to accept what God says as being what he really means.

Some months ago the writer fell, incidently into a conversation with a learned divine of a paqualar demonization, in which he took occasion to compliment the Brethren, on their blameless life and conversation, on their devotion to the cause of Christ, and their veneration for the Word of God as they understood it strongly emphasising the latter clause.

He then added, that he had just fin ished reading a book defending the doc trues of the Brethren, which had been also of the cup, "this is my blood shed losated him by one of our preachers. "Yes," said he, " it is a very well written book, and logically conclusors, if you is figurative language. Ah, fau says the while the premises! "But," he continned, "I by no means admit Lix premis | prop sition, Christ says, this is my hody,

"Wherein," I asked, "are the premis a defection?" " Well, there are insuperable difficulties in the way of a liter.

tion, we entered into a friendly discuss. ion of the points involved, in which he endeavored to sustain his position against a literal interpretation of the Word, which continued for perhaps an hour. As many points of interest were brought out, and some of the objections introduced being rather novel to my mind, I was led into some reflections on the subject, which I embodied in a sermon shortly afterward, founded on the language of the text at the opening of this sketch. As I dislike the frequent use of the personal pronoun, the essence of the conversation above alluded to, will be given in the form of "objection," and " answer,"

1. Objection, The Brethren themselves, with all the stress they lay upon the subject, do not literally "obey" the Divine Word. Example: We are commanded to go into all the world and " preach the Gospel to every creature." Now, a horse is a creature—a mule—is a creature, but you do not preach the Gospel to them, hence you fail to do as the Gospel commands."

Answer. The Gospel is addressed to God's moral, intelligent, accountable creatures-not to the " heasts that perish." They are not subject to the morincluded in the list of intelligent, think ing creation, hence are not embraced in the command. To preach to them would Redeemer himself. Would not Christ's be a judgable absurdity,—and we cannot have so low an estimate of God, as his character is revealed to us in the to would impose an absurd obligation upon his creatures. The man, however incore he might be in attempting to abey the literal word, who would preach | to the horse and mule, would be consider

How the only one embraced, or comprehendcan we arrive at a just conclusion as to led in the command. In that sense we the intimate essence of what an absurd-

Answer. That there are degrees of absurdity, we cannot deny. That some minds have a keener perception of the Indictors than others, is equally true; every man and woman of the human but we arrive at all conclusions—we reach the truth by the general consent lde absurdity—by common consent they are accounted as absurd, because they strike the minds of the mass of mankind as absurd, therefore they are absurd. If I were to say, "the moon is made of green cheese," this would constitute an absurdity by the universal verdict of intelligent men. So in regard to the man who should preach to the horse, the ass etc., the universal verdiet would be "that man is a fool"—a greater one than the animal to whom he preaches.

Olijection. Christ says at the last supper, when he took bread and blessed, then brake and distributed to his disciples, "this is my body, broken for your for you." Do you believe this to be lit erally true! Answer - we do not. This objector, " we hold you strictly to the this is my ldood. You can't dodge off into figures! You must stick to the test?

Answer - Very well, You would not insult the intelligence of mankind, and [in this world, upon each other relativeso do us the injustice to assert that we by, and absolutely upon something that letter killeth, but the spirit maketh think there are no figures in the bittle, cannot belong to this world. of figures of speech, metaphors, allegories, parables, similes, etc., etc., many of which cannot be interpreted literally, but our position, is, that where the Bible teaches plain duty without the aid of figurative speech, it is our plain duty so to interpret it, and simply to obey it. Any contrary statement puts us in a false position, and one that does no credit either to our honesty or intelligence. We do not believe in the doctrine of transubstantiation, as taught by the Romish church, because it is neither supported by the Word of God, nor by common sense. It is a palpable absurdity in itself. Look at the circumstance where Christ uttered these memorable words. Was the body of Christ literally broken at the time? Did he not sit at the table in his entire personality at the very moment he gave utterance to this declaration? Was there a drop of his precious blood shed upon the occasion when he said, "this is my blood shed for you?" It is universally conceded that the age of miracles ceased with the mortal lives of the apostles, and yet if this doctrine were true, how many millions of times has this miracle been enacted within the past eighteen hundred years. Think of the unnumbered millions of nominal Christians all over the world who have celebrated this ordinance since the sad night of its institution by our adorable body have been consumed centuries ago, unless miraculously renewed? The doctrine is absurd, unworthy of Christ, and hence we reject it as unworthy of us.

Objection. You teach that baptism. the literal washing with water, is esential to salvation, while the ordinance really tenches, by its spiritual signification, the cleansing of our carnal matures by Answer. We are plainly command mission of sins. We believe that the spenitent believer is the only proper subdo believe that Daptism "is essential" to salvation. DEPENDENCE.

THIERE is no more important lesson Lefor men to learn than that of their agree dependence, as well as of all things nothing that exists of itself and is therefore entirely independent; nothing that has within itself all the means of its existence. But that there must be somewhere a cause, which has its own existence within itself, must be admitted. And more than this; it must be the cause of all other existence outside of it, in regular succession from the highest to the lowest. And since no cause can produce its own equal, this first or original cause, must be superior to its highest and all its production; hence a Being above all human beings that were and will be in all worlds, and to all other creatures and creation.

There is nothing in human life that is more constantly and clearly before man than his utter dependence; not only upon the things which surround him, and upon his fellows, but upon the almost innumerable parts of his own, being; as well as the dependence of all these things upon a First Cause. A person who is a perfect human being, with all the faculties complete, is nevertheless utrerly helpless without surroundings suited to his capacities; for what would the best eyes be worth without light? and the best ears without sound? And if a man's surroundings were ever so completely suited to a perfect human being, so far as there is a defect in him, are they useless.

From an increasing knowledge of this dependence, man is constantly discovering new issues in nature. All discoveries and inventious are thus made. The relation between things is their dependence upon each other. Human wants are evidences of human dependence, and these direct attention to the relation in tween man and man, and between man and other things; and continuing this investigation it must lead to a better knowledge of the relation Jetween crea tion and Creator, thus between cause and effect, until the first class is contamplat. ed. It must progress from 5 of mother to living spirit, and thence from spirituni ereation or effect, towards spiritual Cause, -Mt, Jug Herald.

RAY'S SENSATION.

THE editors of the Brethren at Work entered into a written agreement to publish our discussion in that paper. They began to publish it in that Tunker paper, according to agreement, but when hard pressed they have forfeited their word, contract, and honor by shutting it out! They have deliberately and wiltully violated their written obligation!! Yes, they know, that printing the discussion in that separate little slip only, is "shutting it out of the juper." By this trick their juper can be circulated without the debute. Why did they agree to publish the debate in the BRETHREN AT WORK, if they did not intend to do it? We demand that the discussion be pubh-hed in the Breibren at Work, according to contract.

Also, the editors of this Tunker paper refuse to "prove or withdraw" their personnd charges. that we have used "rough," "unbecoming and abusive expressions," in the discussion. They know that they cannot prove it, and they have not the kind of religion to prompt them to correct the mjory. The Tunker editors have turned "the boy" and shut out the discussion. They "love darkness rather than light."-- Ruptist Buttle Flag.

The great champion debater of the Baptist church is still laboring to save his lost cause by getting up a sensation, and wants to make his readers believe that he is doing wonders with our doctrine, and making havor in the ranks of our people. Not knowing anything else to get up a sen-ation over, he makes a drive at one supplement, and wants to make his readers believe that a supplement is not a part of the paper. Many of our readers expressed a desire to have the debate printed on a separate sheet so they could preserve it, and so far as we have beard from them they are well pleased with the plan, and did it not cost too much we would put the supplement up in a shape so it could be bound into a book after the debate is over. But it seems Mr. Ray does not want this done; he don't want it preserved, but wants it in the paper so that when the paper is torn up the delade will be destroyed too, While if was printed in the paper many of carr readers would cut it out and paste it in their scrap look in order to preserve it entire.

But there we some things being brought to light that does not please Mr. Ray. He has written a look, endeavoring to trace the Baptist Clurch to the times of the Apostles, and in doing so has run the line through the church that practiced time immersion, and m many the results of distributing pamphlets free, but offer respects were very much like the Breththink it not expedient. Now what say you, Iren. They weall not go to war, would not take eaths, and obeyed the commands of the Lord blamelessly. These things are being held up before the gaze of the public, we are puinting there in a form to be preserved, and that Ray does not want done. The supplement is ent out with each paper, and affour subscribas git it.

> As for his rough language, each render of our paper is a witness to that part. It needs no proof. He might as well ask as to prove that D. B. Ray is not a Baptist prescher. If he were to see some of the letters, we get at the other, and hear what some of our readers say about his trough, indomining and abusive expressions," he would be aslamed to ask for proof. We confess that we "have not the kind of reference to prompt as to correct the injury. that the champion debater of the Baptist Chicale does to Immedia J. H. M.

Abraham was commanded to take his son Issue and offer him to God on Mt. Moriah. It was his duty to go and obey God, though the thing commanded may have seemed clearly wrong in itself. Saul was communded to destroy all the Amalekites, men, women and children. In itself and apart from the command this may seem wrong, yet it was the duty of Saul to obey the command of God. Thus we see, what may appear wrong to as, is right with God. Whatever God commands, is right. The simple fact that He commands a thing makes it right.

"And he called the twelve, and begin to send them forth two and two; and gave them power wer unclean spirits." Mark 6; 7. 1. He calld the twelve. 2. He gave them authority over unclean spirits. 3. What the Lord Does.

1. The prayer of faith shall save the sick person. God answers the prayer of faith. The elders cannot answer their own prayer, but the Lord gives the effect—the answer, and that is, the sick person shall be saired. 2. And the Lord shall raise him, (the sick person) up. The elders cannot raise him up, but the Lord can, 3, If he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. If; but if not, then there are none to be forgiven. God does not even leave the guilty man on his dying couch without the promise of remission. These are to console the guilty, that if the prayer of faith, anointing with oil in the name of the lord, are complied with, he shall be free from his guilt. If he have not committed sins, (the negative side of the case,) he shall be saved, raised up also.

CHILDREN AT MEETING.

I R. Mondy, in a discourse recently delivered in Baltimore, says that he fails to see why people don't bring their babies to church. I have often pitied those poor mothers who cann 4 afford nurses, and who are kept from church because they have to mind the haby. Suppose they do cry; we don't mind it at home, and I don't see why it should be so awfullore. There are some lidgety people who don't like ladies, but then I think they are the ones who ought to stay at home. I hope the time is coming when it will be the fishion to bring balnes to etorek,"

This is about as good an opportunity as I shall blody have for making some remarks in regard to bringing clubbren to meeting. It is well enough to leave babies at home when it does not prevent the mother from attending services, but for mothers to stay at home all Their lives for fear the baby will cry in meeting. is not right. If there is anyhody in the world who ought to attend church it is a mother.

Let them come to meeting, bring their children, do their best to keep them quiet, and if they do cry a little that need not disturb any one. There are persons who can sleep soundly under good preaching, but if some hidly chances to make a little noise it seems to spoil the whole meeting for them. If these, as well as all others, would pay strict attention to the word preached, and let the mothers manage the children as best they can, they would derive more good from the meeting. Who ever heard of sheep feeling bal and running all from Heir book just because come of the lambs got to bleafing a little? We certainly eight to have as much judgment as sheep

Cluddren who are old enough to behave themselves should be encouraged to occupy froud scats, near the ministers. This will cause them to observe better order, and be more attentive to the preaching. Give them bynar books so they can take part in the singing. Chibbren love to sing, and should be encouraged in it.

In twelve there was frequently bleeding of the nose and ten had disturbed sleep, and twelve had slight nlceration of the mucous membrane of the mouth, which disappeared on ceasing from the use of tobacco for some days. Medical treatment was of little use till the smoking was discontinued, when health and strength were soon restored. This is no "old wife's talk." The facts are given under the authority of the Journal,

This is bad enough, but the effects to be thereby carried to the rising generation is still worse. Think of these thirty-eight boys when they grow up to manhood and marry. There are thirty-eight tender-hearted young wives to be annoyed by the offensive habit, and oh, the bitter heart aches to be thereby produced. Then think, these thirty-eight men are to become fathers and teach their cuildren the same hubit; and then look down a few generations and see the result; health lost, money spent, wives rendered sick and tired of life, and a whole generation of smokers, whose liabits are of no real benefit to anyheady. QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Please give your views of Hetc 12: 29 " For mo God is a consuming tree." J. W. Walle ITMLE upastle had been speaking of the neces ence and godly fear; now in the chaise under consideration. He gives the reason why they should thus serve Him. For, or or consideration of the fact, that God is a consuming fire. This language of the apostle is a quotation from 16 ut. 4: 24.

In the preceding part of the chapter Paul had labored to show the Hebrews the superiority of the Gospel system over the Jewish religion. The superiority of Jesus, the Mediator of the New Covenant, over Moses, the mediator of the Old Covenant. He had taught them that the crime of forsaking Christ and His law, was as much more homous, as their privileges were superior to these who lived under the law, and that in proportioners, their crime was greater, so would their journshment be greater. Then again, in the clarse we are considering He reiterates the great truth, that sin under the Gospel is as abonomable in God's sight as it was under the Low; and as God is a consuming fire' His grace, if we place ourselves beneath its rays, will consume our suis. Otherwise His judgments will consume us.

What is the meaning of the last two words of 1 a burdened heart is a loud ory in the ear of God.

Cor. 16: 22? "Anathema Maran atha," and what W. H. MILLER. language is it?

Anothema is Greek, it means accursed; i.e., a person devoted to destruction. The apostle did not, likely, say this in the way of a wish or imprecation, but as a prediction of what would come upon them, should they continue impenitent, and continue to hate and execrate the Lord Jesus Christ. Paul probably here alludes to some of the modes of excommunication among the Jews, of which there are said to have been three. One of these forms of excommunication is an almost exact counterpart of the forms of excommunication now in vogue in the Roman Catholic church.

Maran atha: This is a Syric word meaning, our Lord is coming, i. e., to execute the judgments denounced. The apostle here probably alludes to the last verse of Malachi: "Les-1 come and smite the earth with a curse," and perhaps intimates that the Lord was now soon to come and smite the Jewish nation with that curse, which prediction was fearfully fulfilled in a very few years. MATTER A. LEAR.

LIKENESS AND IMAGE.

We read in Gen. 1:26, " Let us make man in our own image after our likeness." Did God make man In the form of himself, or was the image spiritual? A. Holaissobia.

[11MHLTIJDE or likeness does not necessarily require a full resemblance in all, or even in part in the figure that illustrates the thing itself. For instance, the Lord is to come as a thief in the night. There is to be a resemblance, a likeness here, and how are we to apply it? We are not to look to the temper and alignise of the villain who breaks open houses in the right, but to the sudden and unexpected manuer in which he comes. Christ's conting is to be just ocumexpected, and here is where exists the samilitude. So also in regard to the query: there is not a positive identity nor a close as semblance existing thetween man and los Creafor, mit even in any one particular point. Main cumot be like God in a bodily form; for God is: resparit and exists every-where, fills even the vast immensity of space; is every where present. Neither do we resemble God spiritually, in spiritual parposes, in spiritual designs, and spiritus al accomplishments, from the fact that we are to be spiritually regenerated so as to become His spiritual children, and, too, we are dependent upon. Hun for the necomplishment of corspiritual world and he is responsible to none, he works and no one can brader.

But the likeness that exists between God and ! man, certainly consists in authority. God passed man in authority over all of the thing car confirmed by the apostle in Corinthians; by an word out of didocate the name of the Lord' He was present at feet-washing, and absent the is the image of God; God's power, or anthors the bose of many waxing solid we ought to per-the Lord's Support, or else he could not style never surrendered, neither should aming force every here. But he is to crop that power that is on his head to show. his inferiority to God, that his power is limited while God's is not; then he as to crop has lear (the power) to show the limits of his power. The woman is not to crop her bar, (the power), but to cover it, showing her entire and complete surrender of power until she is parimited to enjoy the enpacity and society of angels, and there and then made equal with all of God's created beings, to enjoy completely and fully the blessings of all that glorified state in heaven.

10 those ministers or Brethren who intend coming West, I will give a short sketch of our county. It is one of the largest in the or or of the sin a compact square form thirtythree miles north and south, by thirty-four est and west, and contains 4,500 quarter secpons of land, sufficient for an ordinary farming population of 25,000. Winfield is the county sent, located on the Walnut and Timber Creek; has a population of about 2,000, and is in a healthy and prosperous condition. West, eight males, is the Arkansas river. Twelve miles south, you will find Arkansas City, with a population of six hundred, and north, twelve miles, Douglas, and twenty miles cast, Dexter, and north of Dexter, twelve miles, hazette, and a number of post-offices dotted over the county.

Now about the soil; it is a deep, black loam, meting muon a high colored subsoil, consisting of loant, clay and gravel; both soil and sub-soil being so porous that surface water rapidly passes through them; and in no case is there any difficulty experienced in crossing with wagon or tock, any water course, or beds of greams. Teams may be driven moress springs or creeks or low bottoms fearlessly without danger of miring. Cowley county is well watered; no other county in the State has more streams or good pure clear running water. The grerage depth of wells is about twenty-five lect. Timber of various kinds on all streams. Wood is from three to four dollars per coul. Coal has been discovered in the castern part of the county at a depth of two hundred and fifty feet, but the cheapness of timber has given no inducements to prospect for coal. In all parts of the county the supply of the best magnesia limestone is inexhaustible. When first taken from the quarry it is soft and easily worked with the hammer or chisels and saw, but when exposed to the air and sun it hardens and becomes durable, appearing much like marble. The climate here is by no means a dry

This county contains one hundred and eleven school districts, nearly all of which have substantial school houses. There is a church orgamzation in nearly every neighborhood in the county. Most of these hold their services m school-houses. The Brethren have located on Silver Creek, in what is termed the Base Valley school districts, about nine miles southeast of Winfield. We have about twenty-live members in this district. There were three laptized at our Love least, one a Baptist. He wished to follow the examples of our dear Savior fully. We can beest of one thing, that is the masty, filthy tobacco sin is no more with the Brethren. It is a sin to spend money for tobacca, when children need clothes, and with the same money we all can pay for the BRETH-RES AT WORK, and the Children at Work, and have some left to give to the poor.

DEOTHER Daniel Vaniman, one of the Deringelists of the Southern district of Iffineds, came to Berry, Pike county, about the arst of December, and preached seven sermons, with one addition. From thence he was conreved by brotherd. Clingingsmith to laborty. Adams county. He remained a few days with the Brethren, and preached twelve sermons, and nine precious sonly stood up for Jesus. From there he went to Concord church, same county, where he preached four sermons, and baptized three that had previously stood up. A) this time brother I) miel felent his duty to go home and see his family, one of whom was very sick with the lung tover. After remainby a few days, and acranging some affairs of his own, he set out again with a determined real to make his mark in the enemies' camp.

On the evening of the second of January I wet him in Camp Point, and the next day conreyed him to my place, some eighteen index distant. We have no meeting-house at this Place, but a school-house 26x48, where we commenced our meeting the same evening. Brother Daniel did not live much shell, but a good deal of shot in the enemies' camp. Two or three rounds, and one of the cramics found herself prostrate at Jesus feet. Brother Itanwhile his clear way of spenking, soon convincof the people that he doln't intend to pulldown their houses, lest they might complain. but that he would build them a letter house, and then invite them in, that they unght be from ten to thirty-tive bushels per acre. the guests of a crneified Savior in an upper and better kingdom; and right here, would say in the language of brother David, that this is the common way of preaching the Gospel. By this time the interest of the meeting grew intensely warm. The congregation increased, and the enemy began to be much alarmed, when he found many of his ranks had been already wounded. Two nights the house was so crowded that there was no standing room for any more, and I had to give up my scatand stand very close behind the speaker, and some, cold as it was, stood outsi'e and looked in at the windows. Our valiant brother kept up his preaching for twelve sound sermons, and found two more ready to come into the church, and two others greatly impressed. The next morning, after having dismissed the meeting, and had taken our leave for other fields of labor, and had gone, and was but a little way on the road, one of the convicted persons stopped us, and told us that he could hold out no longer, and to count him one of our candidates. Bidding him a hearty good-live, we went on a mile or more further, and another man stopped as on the read, and told as to enroll his name with the saints, making in all live applicants at this place. There is a territory here of twelve unles wide, and eighteen long, that has no religious organization. But thanks be to the Lord of heaven there is now the way opened for the Brethren, as there is now mae of us within one mile and a half of each other, and we have the sympathy of about all the surrounding neighborhood. Who will come and help us move, the ark along?

We then reached Cmup Point, where brother Daniel preached two telling discourses in the Christian church. There, too, I think, is a good opening for the Brethren. Who will go?

We then took the parling land, exchanging greetings of love, and was soon found on the way to our temporal homes, there to be faithful in our calling till the cold hand of death approaches us, when earthly powers shall fall, and even life itself shall lade away, and the summons for us to cross the river. Then may the Lord reach his hand and say, " Come ye blesed of my Pather, enter into the joys of your Lord." H. W. Stigerler.

Dear Brethren:—

PLDER D. Brower devotes much of his time 13 in preaching the Gospel, but his territory is too large, hence not able to fill, all, the calls, for preaching; besides Washington Territory s dependent upon him, where he is now spending about two months, looking after the scattered bombs of the fold, and has, since he is: gone, organized one church. We know this is his duty as an elder, but I feel like calling. the attention of the Brethren to the fact, that Oregon and Washington Territories are two extensive fields, and the churches in which the two elders live, are too weak to bear all the animended to Timothy. If he was to drink traveling expenses necessary for them to attend | no longer water, not likely the apostle Paul to the many argent calls in the various parts | would recommend any other. I am just as of the above Territory. They are willing and taithful workers, and often go and pay their drink with alcohol in it, as I am that He is my own expenses, but the calls are too many and Savior. the expense too great, and the cause of Christ has to suffer. Therefore 1 am constrained to ask the Brethren of the Atlantic States if there is not a fund raised in the church, for the purpose of carrying on the missionary work in the isolated district, or among the isolated Brethren? and it so, could it not be arranged so that some means could also be furnished to the Brethren of the Pacific States who have to carry on that part of the work, so that it might \dagger be carried on to a greater extent, and thereby many hungry starving souls for the want of the bread of life might be fed?

The cause of my writing in the manner I do. is the heavy impression, that was made upon my mind this Fall, when an orgent call came from Washington Territory from a small district, (partly turn to pieces by a woll) and the church here not belong themselves able to bear the expenses, they were refused, upon which they renewed their call, to which older Grower responded, took the burden on himself, besides to use, and to keep for use as a drink became spending several months true in the field. The lost; and the distinction between the blessing best account we had he was in Idaho, and of an I the curse was also lost. necessity should be in the field all the time. SAMUEL FORNEY,

From Old Brother Price.

Dear Brethrens-

THE blessing of the Lord be with you.

Thank the Lord my health is much improved; as well now as I ought to expect ever to be at my age, with the antecedents of my past experience. I am taking good care of myself. On good days 1 go to meeting. I enjoy meeting. Never get drowsy, The poorer the sermon the more wakeful I am. But thank the Lord we are well supplied at present. Our elder, brother Gottwalt is uneducated, but very zenlous, energetic and persevering. He is un excellent housekeeper. Brother J. T. Meyers is a zenlous brother; and has n free flow of words, and speaks distinctly.

I have ceased to preach. Even in exhortations my mind flits abruptly from one thing to quite a different one. My memory fails me in texts and in words. Discretion, O that blessed faculty in a public speaker, has been fuded out inmy mind; and I find myself flying from grave to comical in a sudden flit of the mind.

After meeting yesterday, and during the night, I was under serious exercises, whether I ought to rise at all in meeting.

The thought of passing away does not trouble me; but to remain with faculties fading cut, is not comfortable to me. I had always, for many years past, expected to die suddenly; while in full possession of my mental faculties. I thought I had heart disease, but two years ago when I put myself under the care of a physician for dropsey, (which he cured) I learned that my heart was perfectly sound. So now the prospect is I shall decline gradually in mind and body to the end. I try to say, the will of the Lord be done.

When a boy I was raised on a farm, on the bank of a river. (Schuylkill), and in June I often sat on the bank and saw the slind trying to go back to the ocean from whence they came. They were too old to swim below water, but would float partly on top and make continued efforts to keep under water, but in vam, The parallel is not strong, but I have oft of late had that rememberance come to my mind.

Before I pass away I would like to see our many papers all hoist the flag of freedom from all that intoxicates; and to see the Communion Unp freed from alcohol. The Bible appears to speak of two kinds of wine. One the figure of heaven, the other the figure of hell. It was no doubt in my mind the latter that Jesus when he turned water to wine. The word " Must" is a cavil, and the same that Paul recconfident that Jesus Christ did rad make a

In the days of the apostles there was a distinction between the world and the disciples: greater than now, in more things than dress, The worshipers of Buchus did use the alcoholic wine and the apostle call it the cup of devits When Jesus gave the cup He called it the fruit of the vine. Never is it called wine in reference to the cup of the encharist. Who originated the idea first that Christ made wine that would intoxicate? We know alcohol is one of the inventions. I mean when extracted from grain or fruit, when on the way to putres faction; and the josce of the grape when fermented is on that road, but can with cure bearrested. If not it goes on to the acetic, and becomes vinegar. Before distillation was discovered, it was difficult to keep wine from fermentation, and it could not be conveyed from place to place. To keep or to carry it, they add to it alcohol or spirits of wine.

The immediate result of his labors was, there was one made willing to come and join in with the children of God, and was received by baptism. We believe that many more were seriously impressed relative to their soul's salvation. While brother James pointed sinners to the Lamb of God, he did not full to instruct us as members, to love and faithfulness in our Christian duties: and I think we, as members, were edified by our meetings, which it was our happy privilege to be if we all give heed to what our dear brother has tried to teach us,

Dear Brethren:—

TE commenced a series of meetings on the 6th of January, and continued for three weeks. We expected brother Sterling, of Fayette county, to be with us, but as he did not come, we did the best we could ourselves. We had very interesting meetings; pretty good attendance, and the best of order through the entire meeting. The result was, four were made willing to be buried with Christ by haptism, to rise to walk with. Him in newness of life. There were also four reclaimed, making eight in all. May the Lord keep as all by His grace, that we may all be bright and shining lights through our day and generation, and finally stine forth in the kingdom of our God beyond the silent waters of death,

From Denmark,

"Il om Gospel is lad, it is hid for those that perish." 21 or. 41%.

IMIESE lew lines read with serious reflection I by an earnest believer may cause both joy and sorrow; for if any thing can gladden a heart, it must be this, that there is a saving Gospel given from heaven, and to have part in it for the welfare of our simils. What joy in this world can be compared to this? None at all; for not only do s it deliver from the fear of death, but rather makes one exclaim, "Death is to me a gain (" and moreover while we live it gives peace and joy to the soul, and fills the heart so it flows over with praise and thanksgiving to hum that brought it to falled man. But who is not pained to see that this glorious Gospel is hid from so many? Judging from the fruit whereby a tree is to be known, it is evident it is hid from the many. Cause and effect follow each other, and hence it profile but little to do as many do, speak about faith and repentance, and church salvation and perdition, etc. If those things we call from accompany not these things, which without we are empty, hollow sounds. The Gospel of peace will ever produce "fruit meet for repentance." God's true children are often said to judge others when they present the Gospel truth; but God's people know and admit that only one shall be the judge of all. But if | tant. we see a sign over a door representing a glass flowing over with poisened liquor, who would not suppose that inside that door was dealt out strong drink? So poor sinner, had actions show the heart to be corrupt and a stranger to grave. I tremble when I think of them. May God grant that the New Year bring great blessings, that the Gospel may be spread and believed of many. Lot the great harvest for those sent in the place of Jesus, may all hold hard to the form in which it is delivered, for unto all who do otherwise is promised a fearful curse. Lord of host, stand by thy poor children soil be with them everywere.

From Jesse Calvert,

WE closed a meeting last night in the out a Campbellite church. We combt only have the church four days. They got very amency, and I dropped the remark on the fext "bearn of me," Matt 11: 29, that we med not go be Peter; we ware buight to learn of Jesus. One of then Brethren went for me. I samply fold him, after answering his question, that no gentleman would do as be did at a protincted. meeting. I then preached them one sermon on haptism, and our time was out. The truth on that subject laid a felling effect on the audience. We hapfized three and have more apphennis, and restored one. Could we have had meeting longer we think much good would linve been necomplished.

This morning we accompanied brother Lett. Dickey to a brother Stalls, and found him very sick. His request was to be sumpinted. Thus was done for him. Afterward he said, "I am now ready to go to eternity, and feel safe and happy. I wish and hepe to meet my bounty O, what sweet comfort in a dying hom? All is well, because I have done all the community ments of my tical, and can die in peace." Can those who do not thus obey the fruth say as much?

From Christian Hope,

Dear Brethrea.

DEBHAPS you wonder at my salance, A Trave been from home for some time, I called together by our friend, the Methodist missionary. From there went to Old Scagen, the most northern point in Denmurk, where we held two meetings. Had large congregations. Here found some relatives of brother Eskiblsen. A young gul was number to see her sintal combiner, and believe on Jesus expects to pain the church of God soon. The meetings had a good effect here. This is a promising field for the work of the Lord.

From Old Sengen, we went two miles east to Sengen, where no missionary ever succeeded in doing any good. We went from loose to house to get a room to hold meeting in, and at last we got a small one by paying four crowns Held two meetings; many were moved by the word spoken. The interest mainly sted demands my return soon. From there I started home, but on the way hold meetings wherever I can. Have unde many warm friends, and are gladly welcomed by all. Thus we learn that the bitter opposition which first mel us, is rapidly subsiding. The church and mission are new respected, and our members loved by all. This is a change for the better. When we first came all hated us, and tried hard to withhold every inch of ground, but this is so no more. I will reach home Janury 8th, and leave on the 9th for the South, to remain one week. Then come home a few days, then start for Thyland. Thus is my time spent. All earnestly may for me, that soul and body may be sustained. My wife is still poorly, but is patient when she hears that the work of the Lord is prospering

Now since some have asked me along the country I traveled through, I will give a short description of it. About Scagen, the country is generally level, and not much above the level of the ocean. FUNERAL SERMON OF JOHN STUDEBAKER, OF SOUTH BEND, IND.

Make Childhood Sweet Never Failing Bank

BY R. H. MILLER.

"I have tought a good fight, I have timshed my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is acrowled righteousness which the Lord, the rightconsidudge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all then calso that love his appearing," 2 Tim, 4: 7, 8.

TIMIS text was selected by brother John Stadebaker, something near five years before his death, to be used at his funeral, because it would in some degree express the feelings of his uwn heart, which he wished to have impressed upon the minds of his family and friends, when they came to the last farewell to consign him to his resting place, to await the great resurrection when the glory of all his hopes will be fully realized.

There are several points in this text to which we refer in their order, hoping that these may, as the old father seemed to desire, be left a lasting monument in the memory of his children, on which is written the life, the experience. The hope of their father. It is not needed that we speak now of him personally as it has been done и the papers of your town.

The language of the text gives the impressive figure of an old-soldier when his warfare is lended, passing from his labor to his reward. It is his list look back over the many hard-fought battles of his life. He says first, "I have long ht a good fight." This language expresses the feeling of the apostle, when be contemplates the life of the Chistian with its trials and laborans a warfare ended, the victory won, and the old soldier lays his armor by. The soldier's life is mon lot; watching and fighting his great unshaken, unwavering, when he comes to cross sire of the apostle for the welfare of others; feather—even with artillery.

work. Though the battle be hard and long, the the river. Through all the misfortunes of life, fight is a good one, because it brings the victory at last. How well this thought in the text applies to father Studebaker; he could look back over a long life full of trials, misfortunes and sufferings, but deliverance and victory have come. The last battle is over. His passport sealed to go home. But ere he starts, he selects this text to tell us, the fight in all its troubles, has been a good one.

Our old father spent nearly fifty years in the service of the Master. In all that time the good fight has been the great work of his life-the cause of Christianity, the strictest honesty, charity to the poor, even beyond his ability, to do good to all around him, and ever contend for the faith once delivered to the saints, have made the great and unwavering features in his long life. Well might he look back over all his labors, and with the apostle say, "I have fought a good fight."

Another thought making this text impressive, is the warfare; it is not alone for the benefit of the soldiers, but mainly for the good of others. Thousands reap the reward of the suddier's suffering and victories. Many rejoice in peace and prosperity, where the soldier bled and died for the cause of others. So the apostle in many hard fights suffered long. And how many are richly blessed by the labors of that soldier of the Cross. So, too, our old father, a faithful soldier in his integrity, fought the battles of life for the good of others, teaching and defending the sacred principles of his religion, in industry and honesty, thus laying the foundation of prosperity for the family, who in business and influence are equal to any in the West. They, to-day, should look back to the life of their father and feel the truth of the text, that he has "fought a good fight" for them. This thought, too, sweetens the bitterest cup in the life of the soldier, to see his suffering is the coffin in which the richest jewels are kept. In the land of contest and trial, the golden sheaves are galliered for the angel harvest. So, too, the church as well as his family may also look back and see his labor for fifty years often more than he was able to bear, and witness too, that he has "fought a good fight."

Second, the apostle says, "I have finished my course." In this, is expressed the feelings of one who has haid down the cross and is ready, waiting to receive the crown. The work is finished; then comes the change from labor to reward. Oh, how sweet is rest to the worn out and affected soldier, when he receives his long furlow to go home; his final discharge signed; his passport sealed. He gently sings,

"When I can lay my armor by, And dwell with Christ at home."

The Christian sees much of God in the work when it is finished; trials, aflictions and sorrows may have made up its days and years, but God appointed them all, and his divine power sately keeps his faithful soldier when the storms of sorrow rage. The work is finished; how good it is for the soldier who can stay till his work is well done. He takes his passport and goes home; but he leaves the work he has finished, a blessing to all behind hum. The apostle has gone home, but what a glory in the work he has left us. How many bright Christian examples are left a shining monument where the work is finished and the laborer gone home? So it is with our old father; his place in the family circle is viicant, but his Christian example, still lives in the hearts of his family and friends—a treasure richer than jewels and more listing and bright than marble glass; and we pray that that example may ever live in all ics power and influence, when other years have come, still pointing the dear family to the Limb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

Third: "I have kept the faith." This is another look. Paul takes over his past life, and speaks of the great 10y and comfort in his faith love his appearing." This shows the ardent dein perils by land and sea, in prison, in stripes. and among false brothren. His eternal inheritance in saving faith never failed him. In the cold, damp dungeon at Philippi, his feet made fast in the stocks, faith could find songs at midnight to sing of redeeming love, and cheer the prisoner with the hope of immortal life, and the crown of righteousness soon to be given. His faith in God, he kept to the last, even when led to the block of Nero, and all men had forsaken him; "Nevertheless" said he, "the Lord stood by me to strengthen me."

How true, the same unwavering faith in the life of our old father. In adversity or in prosperity, in sickness or in health, his faith never failed in its strength, or wavered in its firmness. But in all his reverses in Ohio, when all was lost, faith was still his strong support. In poverity and want, he ever worked in the cause of the Master. His trust in God, sure and steadfast, and when nearly six long years, par lyzed and helpless, all his work turned into faith, it was all and all to him. When I visited him last, a little before his death, though our acquaintance was intimate for nearly twenty years, I could not be sure he knew me, for he was speechless. But when we got the Testament to read, and have a season of prayer with him, he would bow his head and point his palsied hand to the sacred Volume, showing us clearly that, while his body was sinking down under affliction, his faith would rise in its strength above all the weaknesses disease could bring, and stand his strong support when death's mantle was spread around him.

"Henceforth there is a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteons judge shall give me at that day." A crown implies all the honor, and power and wealth that can be conferred upon the conqueror when the warfare is ended. This Paul uses to represent the glory of eternal life given to the soldier of the Cross when the victory is won. "By henceforth" Paul means the crown is now ready, waiting for me not a crown of gold, pearls and diamonds to give earthly honors and power, but a crown of righteousness to give the heir of God; "an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled that fadeth not away reserved in heaven" given when crowns of gold and diamonds have lost their value.

Our old father would have this text at his funeral, because it points his Children to his hape in the crown of righteousness, richer than all earthly things, and waiting for him beyond the river. "The Land, the righteous judge shall give" that crown when the soldier gets his last discharge and comes home. It is not a bounty of a few acres of land, or a few dollars in money. But a right to sit with him on his throne. Oh, the crown of righteousness which gives the right of him who gives the crown, and made kings and priests in the resurrection made in the glorious likeness of the Son of God, crowned to reign with him forever.

This crown the Lord will give at that day. There is a day, a time appointed when the Judge shall give the crown. We may all soon change worlds, then go and take the crown. when the Judge says, " Come we blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom"-you are now crowned; for that your streets are paved with richer lewels, your jasper walls and gates of pearls finer than earthly kings have ever worn. As Abraham would look for a "city whose maker and builder is God," so our old father did, out of his afflictions, look to that city, and feel that the "crown is waiting for me." Out of his long afflictions on earth, he could look beyoud the river, to that city where no more sickness or sorrow, pain or death ever enter its jusper walls; no funeral trains ever walk its golden streets.

" And not to me only, but unto all them that still like the faithful soldier, his warfare is not for himself only, but also for the good of others: like this great government, is the fruit of the revolutionary struggle our fathers made. The soldier then fought and bled for our good as well as his own. So the apostle, in all his labor and work of life, toiled and suffered for his brethren, and when he left the field of battle to take his crown, would not go till he tells his brethren the same glory is waiting for them. This point in the text we can realize when we think how great are the blessings given to the church by the labors of the apostle. What a heritage for after generations has been given by the labors of this old apastle, to lead them on to righteousness and to victory, to lay down the cross and take up the crown. How truly this beautiful thought in our text, "not for me only" applies to the life of father Studebaker. Few men could be found who had more concern for the welfare of others than he. His charities were often more than his circumstances would allow; his family, the church, and the poor, were three great objects in the work of his lasy life; never forgotten in his poverty or affliction, or changed when better circumstances came; and we are glad to see, that after so much labor and love in his eventful life, plenty and peace crowned his old age. This text points his children back to all the labors of his life, with the thought, 'not for me only" and turns us to his crown of glory, taken with the words "not for me only."

In conclusion, a few words to the family, and we are done. To our old mother, who has been bereaved of her husband, we can turn with no earthly comforts sufficient to fill the heart left aching by death. In your declining years your pathway must be levely and drear, even amidst all the comforts earth can give. But you can turn from these sorrows of earth, where death is written upon all, to the brightest hopes of eternal life, and from the grave of a risen Savior, learn the glones of a resurrection in the likeness of the far off God. Go to the throne of grace, where the powers of the resurrection can reach you, and there "wait all the days of your appointed time till your change come." Trust in God for support and help when all the powers of earth have failed, for he is able to make "all things work together for good to them that love him."

And to you children, we would say, though it gems there is no need that we should tell you how great your duty to your weeping mother, for you whose kindness nover failed in the long afflictions of your father, cannot fail to appreciate all the importance of the duty you now owe to a good mother, when affliction, old age and weakness have come upon her. All her enjoyment in this life is shallow in the cup, and must be filled with the love and kindness of her children. And we are glad to see the Christian example of your father is brightly living in your memory, and we pray God that the busy scenes of coming years may never destroy the memory of such a father from your hearts. We would not tell you not to weep, but rather thank God that children have tears to shed, when bidding farewell to one who has done so much for them. But we pray you will long treasure in your hearts the bright example death cannot destroy, and may it turn your hearts more to the spirit world, when you go to his grave to weep. But O take with you the empty tomb of the risen Savior to cheer the darkness of death with the glories of a resurrection, "when this corruptible shall put on incorrugition, and this mortal put on immortality," and all the sorrows of death are swallowed up in the hope of eternal life. There you can find a reason not to sorrow as those who have no hope. May God bless you all.

OBJECTION. But "we are saved by grace, through faith, and that not of ourselves; it is the gift of God. It of faith, it is then no more of works " Such being the case, how then can baptism be essential to sulvation—the liter al act of washing by water?

Answer. Very time, we are saved by grace, not by water, and through faith, which is merely the instrument of prices (all per "spot cash.") our salvation one of the prime factors.

on the cross? He was not baptized, and yet Christ, on his expression of faith alone, declared to him in the agonies of death, "To-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise!"

Answer. There was no command given to the thief on the cross to be haptized. It was an impossibility for him to be baptized. He was a malefactor, suffering the extreme penalty of the law under a Pagan government. He was in the iron grip of a stern inexorable fate. There was no escape. Christ himself was " numbered with the transgressors," and a victim to the same despotic law. Had Christ commanded Imptism for the thief then must be have exerted his divine power, and worked a miracle in behalf of this violater of law in order to make it possible for him to obey.

But God demands no impossibilities of men. He only demands at their hands what he himself declares to be but their reasonable service. But he does command you and meto repent, believe, and be bap. fized, and there is no promise for as an less we do,

Besides all this, the Testator was then alive, he had not left his will behind. him, by compliance with the provisions of which we can only "inherit eternal life." Christ had 'the gift of eternal life in his own hands—he could bestow it upon whomsoever, and in what manner he chose, he could say to the woman, "Thy sins be forgiven thee" he could say, " Thy faith bath made the whole." But the Testator has gone from earth. He has left his will behind, and we are to come into heirship in accordance with the provisions of that will, and in no other way.

Objection. But we think you lay 100 ninch stressommbiormaffers – non essen tials, etc., such as dress, taking of oaths washing feet, wearing jewelry etc. while you are inclined to neglect "the weightier matters of the law." These little things we regard as the unint, the commin, the arise."

Answer. This is the great delusion of THE LITERAL INTERPRETATION [the age! So impermented with the "faith alone" doctrine is the popular mind, that the great doctrine of Gospel obedience is almost totally ignored, "Believe! only believe!" is proclaimed, not only from every sacred desk in village, hamlet and town, and re-echoed from the lowly log "meeting-house" of the illiterate negro, to the metropolitan whurch gorgeous in its imitation of pagen architecture, where

If one man may take liberties with the inspired text, wherefore not another? "My views are as good as yours." And Objection. But how about the thief this door once opened, no power on earth can shut!

> Is not the taking of oaths, of all description, positively forbidden in the Scriptures? With what sort of consistency then, can one calling himself a follower of Christ, do this God-forbidden thing? Is not the wearing of gold, and open and palpable violation of God's jewelry, and costly array equally forbidden to the follower of Christ? How then can a follower of the "meek and lowly Jesus" so disregard the command of his Master as to adora his perishing body with these idle gewgaws, which at hest, but minister to earthly vanity and pride? God says you must not do these things. Modern Christianity says, "these things are not essential to salvationwear them if you like". What mockery of Christ is this!

Sometime since, not very long ago, a great "revival" meeting-a "union" meeting, was started in this town by a couple of traveling evangelists, assisted to all the pastors of the local churches. The meeting continued for several conscentive weeks, and over two hundred conversions were claimed as the "net proceeds" of the work. Curiosity, per haps more than anything else, led me to attend one of the night meetings which was held in one of our large and fashionable churches. The structure was densely packed -1 was about to say from pit to gallery, and, indeed, the audienee looked not unlike that one might diserve at the opera or first class theatre. Answer. Has anything of the sort been intimated in the present discussion on my part! I think candor will com. pel von to say there has not. Are not the positions we assumed amply sustain. ed by the Scriptures of divine truth? As to mere opinions of men about the word! the difference amounts to but little; one man's opinion being about as good as an. other's. But when God speaks, why should man seek to evade, or explain away the plain meaning of the word! Is not this a perilons course?.

If Christ has commanded us to wash one another's feet, enforcing the command by personal example, what should we care what man may say, or do unto us! Do God's people need more than this? If so, then we may well doubt their professions of "faith alone" in Christ. If we are commanded in the Book of Inspiration—not once merely, but repeatedly, to "greet one another with a boly kiss!" What but human pride and rebellion against God, shall keep us from obeying the Word of God. Does it matter that we call ourselves the friends of Christ it we east contempt on of costly perfumes, the glitter of gold, this authority and Word? They have a number of out buildings, such as barns, shops, etc., also a mill, chapel and schoolpoon. Only a short time ago, they lost a barn by fire; supposed to have been set on fire by some one smoking in it, while lodging there for the night.

They are much imposed upon by the so-called tramps, and also by some who are known as being, "Winter Shakers," But although fully aware of the fact, they did not complain or say hard things as is very often done by others. And we were told by others, that they, the Shakers, are very good to lodge strangers and to feed the hungry.

Those who remain faithfol until death, have the fulness of the spirit, last those who fall away, have lost it, or had but a part of it. They claim that this spirit is obtained by confession of sins, and the taking of the cross, which is the giving up of all that is bad, to be led by it no more, but to be led by the good spirit, and then to have all things common

He said they did not invite others to eat | their charge, in connection with as with them because of the ceremonies while at table. These we did not see, but suppose the statements correct. He said that all of each family eat at the same time, and in the same room, but the males at one table and the females at another. All kneel and pray (in silence) both before and after meals. They regard every meal as a sacrament, and that while it is being eaten there is not a word spoken, unless something may be lacking to some, or something has been overlooked. He said that the food was spread on the table in sections, all the same, and each one in the same way, and that each section was just for four persons and no more; and these, scatcal in a square, had some of everything on the table. There was mostly one sister who did not sit at the first table. but served others supplying whatever was lacking. We were told that this is the order throughout the Home-each one sleeps by himself. After dinner, we returned to elder Ball's room, and there continued the conversation. We give first a sketch of his life. They assert that a special revelation Stephen Ball was born in Cornwall, England, in 1815. Came to America in 1832. For awhile he was a Methodist, and with others who looked for Christ's the way fully, for the males, and that glorious return, in 1843, (some say it as Millerites, at Cincinnatti, Ohio; and, was born in England, in 1732, and live on the day set for the long looked for ed about forty-eight years, that she event. The duty of elders, both male and female, is to govern the families under sistant elders of the same family, and the faith of the fraternity. The descons are required to look after the temporal affairs of the family, to oversee the farm, its stock, grain etc., and to see also that sufficient is obtained for the support of the family. Each one of the family is expected to do some part of the labor pertaining thereto, and we believe that no member is looked upon as an idler, but all have some useful employment.

The trustees aftend to all matters of the family, relative to trade and to finance. These are the business men of the Home. We did not see them in worship, but from what they told of it, we think it peculiar. We were in their service room, but saw in it little else than vacancy—a stove in the center, and but four or six short benches - each near, and along part of each wall.

We were told that at worship, which is on Sunday of each week, they come together and four persons who are singers, take their places in the center of the room, where they as a center, remain standing and singing, while the others in circles, the children nearest the center, and the oldest and largest, in circles outside, pass at a rapid rate around the singers, keeping time to the music, with both hands and feet. This, they say, is Ezekiel's " wheel within a wheel," and is continued in motion sometimes for half an hour. They use only vocal norsic, and are said to give considerable attention to the cultivation of this gift. the service is shared by both, and they have other meetings, also, whe full come together for social conversation upon all useful and general topics, but aside from this, there is not any or very little inter course between the sexes. Some meetings are for social enjoyment and others for religion.

They all arise at about the same time and at the ringing of the bell, and at this they all go to meals. If any are in any way rebellious, the elders of the family try to reason with them, but if they will not hear, they are then expelled. But forgiven. When any apply for member ship, an inventory of what they bring, is taken, and if they should in a year or so wish to withdraw, this much they can take, but if they stay until confirmed and then leave, they can take nothing but themselves. They hold that salvation is for none but the Shakers. To be saved from sin, is to deny ourselves of all sin. And they hold also that Christ did not recognize either the parental or marriage relation in his church, and therefore these do not belong to it and are not found in it.

> They oppose the use of all stimulants as mere beverage. Require all applicants to lay aside tobacco, but do allow it in some cases. Do not at all allow smoking. Their motto is, that he who will take offence will also give offence. They do not claim perfection. They are the most confirmed spiritualists we have ever met, and their reading matter was largely made up of this class. To our question, they replied, that all communications with spirits, here in the West, was only spiritual, but that in the East it was material and visible. But they admitted that one might bave all these evidences and still not be in a sayed condition.

They claim that Christ's life and reign was spiritual, but that they are now in the celestial state. Their church relation is heaven itself, and do not look for a better one on this earth. They do not believe in a resurrection of the dead, but believe that the elect immediately after death pass into the sternal home

We now close our sketch of our visit, feeling that the world affords its vanity in religion as in all other things. We give no comment further, and would say as we close that what we have given is near all in their own language. This will account for its short explanations.

AN APPEAL FROM A LADY TO THE GENTLEMAN.

To the Editor of the Chronick -Sir: MY curiosity, the curiosity of a woman, is aroused. Will you or some of your scientificially inclined readers try to satisfy it? I have sought in vain and must have help. I am recently from an interior city. There tobaccojuice and swearing were a never-ending source of trouble on the streets. In the house -whether that house was public or private-we were comparatively free from either misance. On coming here the infrequency of profane language and tobacro-juice on the street was a source of surprise and pleasure to me, but I find that no place of aniisement or of instruction, not even a private parlor, is sacred from the invasion of tobacco, and ladies in public business have assured me they are oldiged cover to the center of their earpets to save them from the greatest enemy of neatness and cleanliness known to woman. Why, a year-old baby with a cup of syrup and tea spacer will not injure a parlor worse in half an hour than will a man with ten cents' worth of to lacco. Why can't they use it in their offices, work-rooms, salooms, etc., and keep it out of our way? That's what we want to know. If you must be dirty, gentleman, please don't make us suffor at home and abroad for your ill

THE ELDERS AND YOUNGER.

"The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and above partaker of the glory that shall he revealed: Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for fithy force, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage but being ensamples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yes, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility; for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble,"—1 Pet. 5: 1-5.

DETER was amply qualified to properly instruct the elders in relation to all their duties. He was an elder bi-nself and could therefore speak from experience. Yea, he was more than elder; he was a divinely appointed apostle of the Lord, and inspired by the Holy Ghost to preach and write, and therefore his writing should be regarded as the words of the Holy Ghost.

He instructs the elders to "feed the flock of God "over which they have been appointed, and to take the oversight of the church willingly, and to do the work with a ready mind. But while doing so they should not become "lords over God's heritage," for it was not only becoming, but a special duty that they should be "ensamples to the flock," The younger is instructed to submit himself to the elder of the congregation, as his "teacher," "pastor," "shepherd," 'overseer," "housekeeper," and "bishop."

To the clurch has been given the authority to set apart certain persons, who are to take the oversight of the congregation; to watch over it as a shepherd careth for his flock; to feed it, that the members may grow in grace and the knowledge of the truth. If he is the kind of a man the Holy Ghost wants, and possesses the qualifications the Scriptures require, he will be a fit "ensample to the flock," hence those who submit to his government will be doing that which is well pleasing to the Lord.

Properly there can be no church government without officers, whose duty it is to take charge of, and look after the wants of the church. In one sense elders are rulers, but not lords. They are to lead the flock, not drive it. As "ensamples to the flock" they are to fallor to keep in advance of the congregation in every good word and work, not for the purpose of excelling, but in order to lead the flock to higher and nolder plains of Christian virtue. He who seeks to elevate the affections, and parify the morals of his congregation, by setting them good examples, will, by the grace of God, succeed; and long after he has closed his labors on earth, his mone will be mentioned with respect and he regarded as a tather. But he who stands behind his congregation and commands them to do this, and to do that, this lording it over God's heritnge will soon find very little piety in either himself or his congregation. Christians, like sheep, will follow untell better than drive.

When it comes to Christian pacty and true holmess the elder should lead—he should be a more who stands in advance of his congregation, otherwise be cannot be an ensample to the flock. Sad is the condition of that congregation whose housekeeper is looked down upon by the church and the world. lamentable the condition when the chloc's light is eclipsed by the surrounding darkness. "If therefore the light that is in three be darkness, how great is that darkness!" Matt. 6, 2%. But when it comes to authority the wants of the congregation should be consulted; every member should have a voice. Care should be taken to instruct their properly recarding their duties that their voice may be governed by the Scriptures.

Not only the younger should submit themselves unto the elder, but says. Peter, "All of you be support one to another." This includes every member in the congregation. Each one should consult the welfare of his brother or sister, for all belong to one family, and their interest in the great salvation, is a common one, It your brother and sister are weak and disheartened, encourage and help them along. Hyonr namisters should err, or do that which is not a ["Not I was married by a Justice of the Peace." credit to the cause, go to them, and admonish (Condition third reads, "Each noist be married them gently; this do for the good of the cause by a preacher." Each one should labor to cause no trouble, and assist in settling the troubles others cause. No one should be "self-willed," especially elders, hut let each one labor for the good of the cause, constantly keeping the welfare of the church in view. Every member should feel free to talk with the elder about that which pertains to the good of the church, and offer such suggestions as they may think prudent. Their advice will often come good, and serve as a great help in church government. And any elder, who has the meck spirit of his Master will gladly entertain well-meant suggestions from any member of bis flock. Brethren, help one another,

THE OLD ORDER

NUMBER VIII.

TO forcibly impress the idea that God has a Will-a written Pinn by which men must come to Hun, is the business of every Gospel minister. What is sounded ont, becomes a serious question when we know that so much depends on hearing. That God has a Will, is evident. That He gave this to us by His Son is also evident. That it is written-put in form of words-is accepted by all who believe in Jesus. Being so much of one mind we pass to the further consideration of the conditions of that

Let us suppose that there resides in a beautiful part of the country, a very rich nobleman. He is surrounded with all that can make him comfortable and happy. He knows no want; no poverty ever pinched him, and unpaid bills never came dunning into his spacious mansion. He has no relatives, none upon which to bestow his vast possessions. But in his vicinity there are five poor orphan girls. He sees their poverty. There is no eye to pity, none to offer a helping hand. No words of sympathy are ever given them. They are considered "outcasts." and no kind hand is open to their griefs and sorrows. The nobleman sees them, and resolves to help them. They have not merited his sympathy, but he concludes to do them good. He begins to supply their wants, with or without conditions, as he sees fit. Being sole, owner of all that he possesses, he can do us be pleases, While alive he can give conditionally or unconditionally as he chooses. Finally he concludes that he should make his last will or testament. He understands the language he uses. He is of sound mind, and has a clear title to all his possessions. He then proceeds to bequeath his possessions to the five orphan girls on the following conditions. 1. All shall marry. 2. All shall marry turmers. 3. Each must be married by a preacher. 4 They must continue to live with their husbands. He then adds, "She that complies with said conditions shall inherit; but she that complies not, shall disinherit."

The testator dies. His will is read. The legatees come forward to be examined. The first is asked: "Are you married?" "No." she replies. The will reads, "4. All shall marry." You are not married, therefore are dismherited. The decision is just; the will cannot be set aside. The Infidel says, "I do not beheve." The Will of God says, "Believe" "He that believeth not shall be dainned." Mark 16: 16. This is the doom of the unbeliever.

The second orphan comes forward. "Are you married "" "I am," she answers. Then you have complied with condition first. Condition second reads: "All shall marry furniers." THE "LOVE OF."

THERE are some things which all men like and some things which all dislike. All the good which we can hope to do is based upon this truth. If this were not universally so by what means could we expect to stimuate and encourage men to do right? It is by unne of this, that we can have confidence in the claims of heaven's law, From a misappichension of a few passages of Scripture, bearisg on this point, some very gross errors have

"The rove of money is the root of all evil." 1 Tun. % 10. "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus; who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but MAIO, HIMSFLE of no reputation. Phil. 2: 5, 4, 7,

From these passages some have concluded that it is wrong to possess either money or repstation. Indeed, there are so many who believe the that I have often pitied those who had to endure their reliakes and bitter persecution. A man possessing means, is made a target at which the deadly arrows of denuncration and disapprobation are shot, with the full assurance that it is the will of Henven's Almighty lying. All the is the effect of ignorance. Ignorance lestrayed, condemned, spit upon, buffeted and scours of the Savnor of the world. Had it stoped here, however, we might apologize for what was done, and, with patience, endure it to the cud, but it never stops at half-way- it always. poshes its measures to the last extreme. In the case the work was not completed outil desus was naded to the cross, suspended between bearing and earth, and the barbarons and wicked yell pierced the air, "Hal, King of the dews! "But, hold on sir, you are going too far-you the leaving your justure in too strong colors, was the nestrament by which this harride deed (Wolcott, lad), was with us two days. He is by succeeded in establishing themselves in the selves as highly pleased with their visit.

a question for a Bible reader to ask! The last words of our blessed Master as he is expiring upon the cross, "Father forgive them, they KNOW NOT what they do," is how I know it.

It is not the possession of wealth, houor, glory, fame or reputation that is condemned, but the ever lusting, longing after them. The penniless widow may be as much a subject of condemuation in view of the Scripture, "The love of money is the root of all evil," as the Rothschilds. What a man has is a very uncertain criterion by which to decide whether he is "born of the spirit" or act. It is what he does that decides the question. We have known persons to rise from want and penury to wealth and opulence, by some uolooked for circumstance, who were actually the most cruel and oppressive people we ever knew. They always had the will to be so, but lacked the opportunity. Such persons are no better in want and penury, in the sight of God, than if they had millions. A great many poor console themselves with the thought, "I am poor, therefore I amsafe so far us the money question is concerned." Nothing can be a greater delusion. You are no better than if you had billions. Without one cent you can love money as much as though you had oceans of it; and it is the "love" of it that is condemned.

In reference to glory, honor, fame, popularity and reputation, the same is true.—It is not the possession, but the irrepressible, incersant desire for them that is condemned.

Christ "made himself of no reputation." How different from men now! "Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and be that humbleth himself shall be exalted." Just so; their husbands," Are you living with your and are we not all witnesses to the truth of it? What is more disgusting to sensible people than self-praise, self-laudation. Oh, how odious a person becomes who occupies our attention by talking about himself! "I did, I saw, I heard. h_{3} believed, repented and been baptized. I said, I preached, I wrote, I, I, I own, I control, I support." Do we not abase those who exalt themselves, and cralt those who humble themselves? Certainly it is not wrong to be exalted,—to have reputation, glory, honor, and fame, or Christ would not have taught us the means by which we can be exalted .-- He would certainly not teach us how we might obtain a thing if he did not want us to have it. " He that humbleth himself SHALL BE EXALTED."

FROM MONTICELLO, INDIANA.

I E are having a beautiful Winter in this part at God's creation. We are very thankful for these continued blessings. We notice that death is still among us as both old and young are called from this world of sin to try the realities of another. The church in this arm of the brotherhood is in a flourishing condition, as all the brethren and sisters seem to be laboring for their soul's satvation, and the welfare of the cause of Christ.

On Jan. 15th we commenced a series of meetings at the Carson and Shady Green schoolhouses, continuing a week. The reachings of our Idessed Savior were held forth unto a sucsick audience who mainfested a great desire to learn what was necessary for them to obtain sternal life, by our home ministers who preached the words of eternal truth auto them with great power and feeling, causing sinners to cry out, "What shall we do to be saved?" Praise be to our Father in heaven, for nine precious sonts were made to say, "I will arise and go to Jesus," They were received into the church by baptisms

From the above named places we further continued our labors by beginning a series of meetings at our church, where we had the ideasure of hearing the voice of our beloved brother Damel P. Slavely, of Pera, Ind., who preached five sermons for us. He labored earnestly in the cause of Christ. We were all made to feel that it was good to be there, and hear him portray untous the leantes of braven, also the terrible panashment that awarred those who and by linguistic attainments to deal with the would not heed the teachings had down in the Book of divine Truth. Being afflicted he could not remain any longer with us, but had to return to his home. However, we are happy to say that his labors were not truitless, as souls were made to feel that all was not well between them and their God. Also Brother Miller, id however, the only colonists who have practical-

Making us all feel that there is a great work for the Christian people to perform while upon this earth. Our meeting continued seven duys, only having meeting at night except on Sundays when we had it twice. By the active labors of our ministering brethren, and the united help of the members, especially the young members who worked earnestly for the cause of their Master, (my dear young brethren and sisters, let us continue to do more for Jesus than we ever have done before, for great will be our reward in heaven), much good was done in the name of the holy child Jesus, for ten souls were made willing to repent of their sins, and be baptized in the name of Jesus, and many more are thinking seriously about their soul's salvation. Our prayer is that they may be able to choose that good part which many choose while they have life and health.

> Our meetings closed with a good feeling prevailing among all. The members were made stronger in the faith, and sinners caused to feel that all was not well between them and their God.

RETURN OF THE JEWS.

DLACKWOOD'S EDENBURG MAGAZINE is noted for its superior collection of interesting reading matter. It deals with living subjects. A late number contains an ably prepared article on "The Haven of Carmel" from which the following interesting extract, in regard to the return of the Jews to Palestine, is made:

"There is another feature in the possible future of Palestine which is worthy of cousideration-namely, the Jewish immigration, which may be said already to have commenced. Hitherto the insecurity of the country and the obstructiveness of Turkish officials have deterred Jewish capitalists from employing their money in the land; but the Jewish population of the poorer class has for several years been increasing in Jernsalem at the rate of over a thousand souls per annum.

The number of Jews in the Holy City is now probably not far short of 10,000, or nearly half to Brother Miller that the suffering family the total of inhabitants.

Many reasons have been suggested for this influx of Jews into Palestine. The terror of the conscription has driven away a number of Polish and Russian Jews from those countries, and the Hallukuh or alms distributed to the poor in Jerusalem has also proved an attraction to many. Religious attachment to the Holy City has also been in many cases the reason of the return of the poor and more pions, and no one can visit the Wailing place on a Friday without being impressed with the reality of dewish devidion, and the vitality of their belief in the future, and of their sorrow for the past and estine is gradually growing up among the more impression. It is not prodent for tirms to pubinflocatial class of European Jows; and among the wonderful changes which are so rapidly developing in the East, we may perhaps be destined to witness an extensive movement in Palestine, by which the Jews would become the owners of the country and the chief employers of indive labor.

In such a case the town of Haifa would certrainly rise to a position of importance as the only good port within the limits of the Holy Land. From the Christian era downwards, it has been a favorite abode of the dews. In the twelfth century it is specially noted as having a large dewish population; and at the present time, its trade, which is growing steadily, is principally in the hands of the Jewish inhabitants, who number 1 000 souls, or about a quarter of the papalition.

Christian information with regard to the Jews, is, as a rule, so imperfect, that it is not easy to estimate the influence of sucle organization as is represented by the "Universal Israelites Alliance;" but it is indisputable that the Jews lower taken and are taking measures to promote industrial education and the employment of Jewish capatal in Palestine, and it can scarcely be doubted that they are well fitted by character native population of Syria.

The subject of colomization in Palestine excites much interest in certain classes of English society. Colonies have already been started in the country, and a society has been formed for the promotion of agriculture in the land.

The Germans who live at Haifa and Jathaure.

importance of giving to the world the example of a community living on the model of the apostolic society-building a "spiritual temple" of faith and good works in the very country where the actual Temple once stood, and raising a sacrifice of prayer where the aucient sacrifices were offered—these humble settlers have gathered from Germany, England, and America, and have established a society which in some respects resembles the well known American sects, Bible Communists, etc., but which is not distinguished from the rest of the world by any peculiar ideas on domestic matters."

COVETOUSNESS.

NOVETOUSNESS is undue desire of gaio. J The New Testament calls it idolatry. By referring to Dent. 13: 17, we learn that idolaters were to be stoned to double. The witnesses were to throw the first stones and afterwards the whole congregation to continue to stone them till they were stoned to death. If a town went into idolatry, every man and every beast was to be killed and the property of the town was to be burned to ashes.

It makes a man dishonest. He is a robber, for he robs God and robs society.

It prevents the spread of the Gospel.

It destroys natural affection. A man has no sympathy for the salvation of his children or of his neighborhood. Neither a covetous deacon nor a covetons minister is to be ordained. The covetous man is not to enter into heaven. (1 Cor. 6.) Says a minister, we are the poorest people in the world and we can't give a cent to missions of any kind. A wicked circus comes along and raises $1,000 in a few hours.—The Baptist.

HOUSE BURNED DOWN.

DROTBER Daniel Miller, writing from the Wisconsin mission field, under date of February 9th, says: "last night, when I was about half through with my sermon, the alarm of fire was given. Robert Normau's house was on fire, and burned down. We had no more preaching that night. Some furniture was saved. We want you to send us $50 at once." The money was borrowed here and forwarded might be relieved, as they are poor and have oo home of their own. Brother Miller said he and Brother Martin Meyer would stand good for the money, but it is too much for two men to pay, and we take this method of asking the members of Northern Illinois to hear the barden. Send to, or hand in your donations at this office and they will be paid over to Brothren Miller and Meyer. Brethren, remember the poor, and do them good as you have opportunity.

If the readers understood all the attending circumstances it would not make so touch difference.

As an explanation we will here say, that there being quite a teeling for less papers in the Brotherhood, a business correspondence was entered into between the Primitive Christian editors, Brother Sharp and ourselves, to see if we could not hit upon a plan to have less juvenile papers, and thus concentrate forces, believing it would be for the good of the general Brotherhood. The idea seemed plausible, and we were very lavorable to it. But Brother Sharp having written us that he intended to start a youths' paper at Ashland, thus increasing instead of diminishing papers, we fear the project is not teasible, however much it may be desired.

TMIE apostle is not alone in saying that "Our God is a consuming fire; " for it had been idrendy immonified through Moses; "For the Lord thy God is a consuming fire; even a jealone God." Dent. 4: 24. Even the best men, like Moses, are in their finiteness so very much interior to infinite, divine perfection, that God, in His glory (Ex. 33; 18-23), and in His holimess (Dent. 3; 5), would interly destroy them. But in His condescending love of "God with us " (Matt. 1; 21, 23; John 3; 16; Rev. 3; 20), He is not consuming as a destroyer of men, but at sm and that in man which is opposed to His glory and holiness. Who is referred to?

J. L. Brows. 1110 is referred to? These who believed on Cheeren et on Christ in the setting up, or establishing the system of Christianity. God saw proper to accompany His works of grace with signs and wonders, while He was establishing it on earth, as He did the Mosaic dispensation. Moses and Aaron wrought wonders until it was proven beyond doubt that they were appointed of God to deliver the Israelites, and then when the design of the miracle was fully accomplished they cered. We learn a desson, here: that God gave power to His believers to do those eigns and wonders in order focconvince the peoper that Christ was the Messah. Poul terms it a witness. In speaking of the preaching of the Word he says, that "God bore them witness with signs and woulders and divers miracles, by the gift of the Holy Chost." This makes it plain, and shows clearly the purpose of these signs, &c. God does not hold the witness in the stand always, but when he has fully testified the witness retired, the miracles ceased when they had fully accomplished their work. DAVID L. WILLIAY-.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Was Judas present when feet-washing, the Lord's Supper, and the Communion were instituted? Some one will please explain. J. M. Detrick.

UDAS evidently was present when feetwashing, and the Lord's Supper were instituted, as it was while they were at supper that Jesus gave him the sop, and hade him do quickly what he had to do. See John 13; 26. Feet-washing had certainly taken place before the supper, as we learn by the reading of the former part of this chapter. It is equally certain that Andas was not present at the Communion, for we read in verse 30, "He then. Inving reserved the sop, went immediately out: and it was night." Now if we turn to Lake 22; 20, we find that the holy Communion was instituted after supper. The above is my nuderstanding of the matter; nevertheless there are some difficulties, for in verse 21 we root. " But, behold, the hand of Jum that letrayeth. me is with time on the table." From this liet quidation, many take it for certain that Julias was present at the Communion.

Solomon informs us that he had found that God-made man apright; but be had sought out many inventions. Man was originally a representation of his Maker, in moral and spiritual perfections.

Please give an explanation on I Cor. 5: 5: "To deliver such an one unto Satza for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus." M. W. Kinw

The apostle here refers to one who was a momber of the church, but who had been guilty of a most bemouse misdemesmor, namely, having his father's wife. The pure soul of the apostle revolts at such gross conduct, and he denounced against it the severest paraishment known in the apostobe church. The species of punishment here referred to was wholly confined to that age of the church. It was unknown in the Jewish church, and discontinued in the Christian church after the age of the up offes, It was a kind of punishment administered in xtraordinary cases, in which the body and the mind of an incorrigible transgressor were delivered by the command of God, into the power of Satan, to be fortured with diseases and terrors, but while the looly and mind were thus formented, the spirit was in the hands of a merciful God, who was waiting to be gracious. This affliction was generally, in all probability, only for a season, though sometimes it was evidently. unto death, as the phrase, "destruction of the Hesh" seems to imply. A person thus given over by the power of flod into the hands, or under the influence of Satur, could not nelp but | experience the deepest contribut, remorse and humbity of spirit, so that in the end this dire! jumishment would be for his good. Though it was for the destruction of the flesh, yet it was for salvation of the spirit. It was this species of joints liment that was meted, out to Anamas. and Sapphira, and to Elymas the Sorcerer.

Dear Brethren:--

WILL give a short sketch of our meetings here in the Licking Creek church. Brother Buckalew, of Clifton Mill, Virginia, came to us on the 7th of December. Commenced a series of meetings, which lasted until the 11th. He preached nine sermons, holding forth the Word with power, and encouraging the church to press onward, and warning sinners to flee the wrath to come. May the Lord reward him for his labors of love. Three precions souls were made to feel the need of a Savior, and came out on the Lord's side and were buried in the rolling stream, and arose to walk in newness of life. Afterward two more.

Dn the 18th of January, brethren James R. Lame and W. L. Spanogle, of Hill Valley, Bontingdon, county, Penn., came and labored until the evening of the 22nd. On the morning of the 22ml, two were made willing to come and take passage on the old Ship of Zion. After premining and the Gospel rules were laid before them, we repaired to a place where the ice was removed and baptism was administered. Hope that all these lambs may be nourished in a proper manner. May they become as a city set upon a hill, that others seeing their good works might glority their Father, which is in heaven, and be constrained to do His will How precious it is for Brothren to dwell together; and often we were made to feel if not like, yet similar to a Peter of old "It was good to be there. AST September, myself and family were yesiting the brethren and sisters and friends in Christian county, in the neighborhood where we had lived for tiffeen years, and where, as I verily believe, I heard the the first Clospel sermon. It was preached by bridber A. S. Leer and brother Henry Binbaker, many years ago. When we came here there was but one incinher except my wife. We now number eight members, and ic we could have preaching regularly, we would soon have many more. When and to labor with them a while; and latter conne this neighborhood, where we met at speak their min', but really their duty to speak I was in Christian county, I had the ideasure sulling with some of our Brethren here, we of heaving brother A. I AVING been requested forcome and preach 11 a funeral for sister Himes' sister's a hild, good order and attention. So we continud and after we had talked to the people, we gave an invitation, and three persons came out on the bond's side, to go with the people of God. So we announced another meeting for the following night and the next day at brother John Files. After services we went to the waterside, where prayer was wont to be made; the brethren having ent the ice open, which was about fifteen nickes thick, and were buried with Christ in baptism. May the good hard bless them and enable them to hold out Buthful to the end.

At might we went back again to give them a barewell discourse, which resulted in the best of DERITIANS a little news from this part of order and attention. Many good increasions our prayer. Staid with them until Saturday afternoon; then went to our social meeting, to meet with our dear Brethren at home. The next day attended regular meeting, and after services we started home.

Will say to to the brethren and sisters, that we met with in our travels, and especially those that live in Lacon, that they have our best thanks and well wishes for their kindness shown to us while with them. We arrived bome Sunday evening the 26th. Found all K. Heckman. well.

Cornell, Ill., Jan. 27th, 1879.

From Pike Creek Church, Illinois,

WE have had meetings twice almost every day for over one week; brother Stauffer and Kuntz having volunteered to sow the good seed among us. It has taken root, indeed much more so than they are probably aware of; two were baptized, and others were only deterred through fear of the cold snow water. In justice to the Brethren, I beg leave to state, that without one single exception, all those who were fortunate enough to hear brother Stauffer speak, cannot find words proper, to express their satisfaction, and unbounded admiration, for his talent as a spiritual speaker; and let me add further, that your humble servant has seen the world in times gone by; has heard ever so many of the so much ranked eminent speakers, of almost every other denomination known; and during a residence of five years at Rome, while an officer in the French army, I have had occasion daily to listen to the sermons of the highest and most talented dignituries of the Roman church, not excepting Pope Pius IX; but never, no, never before, have I heard words us beautiful, and arguments more convincing than those of our beloved brother Stauffer. Every syllable of which, the listener could trace from his lips to the very bottom of his heart. Many a time during his sermons, a desire arose within me, that I might be able to launch as I have in times past, the soldiers under my command, this plain servant of our Lord, against these modern theatrical performers of certain sects, whose high-tuned, studied sentences are but calculated to confuse, instead of enlighten the mind of their hourers. Verily, verily, our Lord Jesus from over there, not from Rome, appoints his fisherman here below.

Brother Kuntz's remarks were short, convincing and to the point. He is also an excellent vocalist.

Once more, beloved Brethren, necept the most heartfelt thunks from your brethren, and sisters here; and rest assured that we shall ever remember you, and the good time we enjoyed with you, while in our midst.

CANNOT withdrold from you the emotion I of my heart produced by any late soponra among you in Northern III and andy because of the general good will and kindness shown me lar beyond my deserving but merch more because of the vial of the Lord-the cause of suffering humanity, with which every limit seemed to be filled, and the readiness to do and to act, as well as to submit to one another in have, Oh! that all our beloved Frateristy could tradize the bliss enjoyed by those who live nat for themselves only, but for him who lived and and for a rebellion-ray, and left a pattern to be mutated by all that are been anew by a spiritsel both. Yes, if it were only possible, that all such could see and understead that all they are and here, is the Lard's, whether they be intellectual or temporal gifts, and that ill the members of that mystical body-the church of It has their see in duty bound to serve one attdisplaymentine members of our naturally dy, Without to luctance, serve each other. There is no Thestian asked if the lost or to be clothed, the band will readily do it. This seemed to be so largely exhibited among you that it observed me up and gave me new impulse to devote all remaining powers within me to the cause of my Master.

My heart was often throlled with joyful emotions in looking ever the attentive congregations & anself Sil.

composed of so many young and bright looking children, who had already submitted themselves under the banner of King Emmanuel, despising the gay follies of a wicked and perverse world. I wish to say to them in particular, be encouraged, be firm, be steadfast, be immovable; you are doing a great—a noble work; your meek and modest appearance speaks volumes in favor of a self-denying Savior. It is easy preaching and talking about humility to a mixed congregation when the samples of humility are before the eyes. Let me repeat the words of encouragement, my dear young brethren and sisters; if you stand firm and true, and walk consistent with your profession, you will not only gain to yourselves the esteem and love of all the children of God, but also that of the children of the world, and thereby create an influence in favor of the much despised religion of desus Christ. If your daily walk and conduct is in harmony, then you are an epistle known and read by all around you.

Now while I addressed myself particularly to the members of Illinois, I wish whatever encouragement is given them may be appropriated to every one deserving in all our widespread Fraternity. Wherever true merit is lacking. I pray you, my brothren and sisters in the Lord, resolve with me to double our diligence, and devote more of our time, if possible, more of our means, which God has blessed as with, to the alleviation of human misery and depravity.

FAITH.

BY M. MYERS.

Now, faith, the substance is of gain, We hope beyond this life Poblain: The witness, though unseen we know, That Christ doth dwell with us below.

By faith the world and all was made, And heaven with beauties overlaid; By faith the saints of old did waik With God, and of his truth did talk.

By faith we quit our sin and shune, And own our Savior's gracious name; By faith we live and praise our Gotl. And pass beneath the chastening rod.

By faith we strive to walk the way That leads from darkness unto day: By faith the way is clear and bright And lit with rays of blissful light.

By faith we seek a hone above, And dwell below in Jesus love: By faith his Word we do obey, And travel in the narrow way,

By faith we find the mercy seat, And ever sit at Jesus' feet; By faith we keep the word he spoke, And gladly bear his easy vide.

And now more faithful should we prove. While dwelling in this world below; And them a crown of life he'll give, And take us home with him tolive.

A WARNING AND INVITATION

BY W. H. MILLER.

TMOUGH I am young in years, and in the service of my Idessed Master, yet 1 feel it my duly to give you, my dear inteniverted friends, a little advice and warting. Every true man and werman know that they have a soul to save, or to be forever het. I have that all who read this article, are Bilde readers.

There lived about 1800 years ago a man for in the days of thy youth." whose name is above every mane, and that was Jesus. When everything was ruined and ondone by reason of an anot forly, God sent this man, desus, down into this lower world of sorrow to sufer and die, that you and I might have everlasting life. He left the shiming courts of heaven, where all is love, joy and peace to be the sacrifice for our salvation. He spent his Ast ve young, in the prime of manhood don't lime in teaching the people the way to elernaleate by the way; go forward while the Mace- | glary | He was rejected, betrayed and delivered into the hands of wacked men, a crown of thorns was put on his head; he was led away to last moment changes, less mond, that the is or fielgotha, was maled to the rigged Cross, expanded between heaven and earth and suffered memor glory, and is now scated at the right! hand of God, the Eather, there interceding for you and for me, that we may be spared a little longer and return to the great Redeemer.

"Tu-day, if you hear his voice, harden not istered a powerful untidote, your hearts." I have no doubt in my mind but that you have heard that still, small voice whisparing, Come anto me, and I will give you rest." A previous cost-glory to God for such a rest. Come, sinner, and enjoy that rest; it is prepared for you be that same desus, who died for your sins. Why will you not come when he has done so in ich for you? Toolay is the day of salvation, come, now, let us reason to-Suppose that great and notable day of the bord should come while you are engaged in all revellings and alcommadde sports of the wested, what do you think your condition would had In you not think it would be endical? I think you would call for the rocks and mountains to tall on you and hide you trum the face of him noe or nope and sent that street in the street of the stre (Lamb forever - There will be a trying time for jung soul of my fellow-more with Him from whose you if you are not prepared to meet food. will be a sorrowful separation. Percuts will be separated from their children; brother from sister; wife from husband. Some will be thrust out into darkness, and others will go away into life everlasting.

The apostle John says, "He that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sm." All those who can distinguish good from evil, know what it is to do good. If you know how to do good, why not do it? It will be no disgrace, That same Jesus that we have been talking about, says, "He that is ashemed of me, and of my words of him will my Father also be ashamed,''

" O turn ye, O turn ye, for why will ye die. When Gud in great mercy is coming so nigh?"

Now I entreat you, as one that wishes your soul's well, to come to the lord Jesus Christ; embrace the truth, hold to the truth and stand firm in it. Do not put it off till to-morrow, or next day, or some other time in the future, but come now. The spirit and the bride say, come;" Christ says, come; the charch says, come; and he that is athirst let him come and drink of the water of life freely. Come and go along with us, and hand in bond, we will go Zaonward, "toward the mask for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus " We will go onward and upward to the city -th. New Jernsalem. There is plenty of your to spare; there are thousands and multiplied thousands of the heavenly hosts praising Gad, and there is room for thousands more. "There is more rejotemy over one shorer that repenteth, thus over nanety-nine just persons that need no repentance." Come to desis just now. ) EPENT, believe, and be baptized, All my commands obey, Is what Christ taught his people here, Before he went away.

If words have any meaning, this Is what the Scriptures teach; But there are those, who in this day, A different doctrine preach.

They preach that faith, and faith alone, Is all that is essential; Have faith and then you are assured, Your heart is penitential.

Obedience then is not required; Oh, how they do dissemble! For we are told the devils, do Also believe and tremble.

Tremble, but why, if they believe? Because we find it given, The Lord's communds they disobeyed, While they were yet in heaven,

Angels they were, in heaven once, But disabedient grew; God spared them not, but god them down. Into hell's darkness threw,

If angels, they who dwell with God, Were from his presence driven, For not obeying the commands, That auto them were given,

How can his servants here on earth, Expect to enter there, If Christ's commands they fall to keep He gave to them while here?

The relyocates of "faith alone," Perchance too late will learn, Paith with good works they must possess, The heavenly crown to earn.

Dear friends, if you a home would gain With Chard beyond the sky, All his commands you should obey, As far is in you lie,

For we are on prolation here, To us a Law as given, By Christ, to guide us in the way, That leads from earth to heaven.

But if we fail this Law to keep, And from its teachings stray; Christ will not charm as as hor own. In that great judgment day.

And there: Christopher Sower also settled on his arrival in America, and lived there till in the Spring of 1726, he says they moved to Lancaster Co., Pa., and settled on what was then called the Muhlbach or (Mill Creek) where they lived till sometime in April 1731. He says they moved back again to Germantown and bought a six acre town lot of Mr. G. A. Gruber (the writer has the original title of it), there he built for himself an unusually large, fine house for that time. His object in building it so large, was to accommodate the Brethren with a place to hold their meetings, as they bud no church house then, and the most of their dwelling houses were too small to have meetings in; for they being, with a few exceptions, all poor. Here they lived, and here both of the old people died, and were buried in a corner of their lot, us they had no graveyard at that time, The mother died in December 1752, and the Father in September 1758. And as Christopher junior was the only child, he inherited everything they had, and continued the various trades and occupations just as the old man had left them, until the Revolution broke out. When Germantown became so disturbed that for the sake of peace and safety, he took refuge in Philadelphia where he staid from the 9th of October 1777, till the 23rd of May 1778, he came back, and the next night he was taken prisoner and murched bureheaded and barefooted to wards Valley Forge. But the night being so dark that they could not get along, so they crept into a farmer's barn till next morning, and arrived at the camp on the 26th. Was a prisoner there till the 29th when General Washington ordered his release, and General Gillespie gave him a permit or pass to go to his brethren in Methatchy, but not to Ger. mantown as he would still be ansafe there. So he did not return home till the 23rd of June, and on the 28th he was warned out of his own house by lawless maramlers who began to sell his goods.

He then took refuse with his thiner in law, Brother Henry Sharps, ak, where he staid till the 7th of April 1780, he moved to Methately with three of his least one lumbred per cent to the Cape 1. The following year he printed a neat hymn book for the Fraternity at Ephrata, of 818 pages. But as soon as the office was established, he was carnestly solicited to print a newspaper, but he refused on the plea that the press had been procured by the Brethren for the glory of God, and he would therefore not profanc it by publishing a newspaper. But he changed his mind and agreed to publish a paper about four times in a year. The first number of which was issued on the 20th of August 1739, under the title of "The Pennsyl vania Historigrapher" or Reporter of events in the kingdom of nature and of the church. It was so well patronized that he soon issued it monthly, then semimonthly, then weekly, and in size more

From the above, it is seen that the as sertion of printing a magazine in 1735, is also an error, as the press had not yet arrived, and did not attempt printing a magazine until 1764, he published one under the title of "Das Geisthiche Magazine." i. e., The Spiritual Magazine, or Things New and Old from the treasure of the scribes instructed unto the kingdom of heaven. And instead of print ing the second Bible as asserted, he did actually print the first ever attempted in any European language; and considering the circumstances under which it was brought forth, it may well be regarded as the work of Providence, as well as a monument to his ingenuity. EVANGELIZING THE CITIES,

BY D. C. MOONAW,

T should be gratifying to every lover of apostolical religion, embellished with apostolical usages, to see that the embryo proposition to include the cities in our work of evangelism soon meets with such practical and substantial responses as are indicated in No. 4, of the current volume of the BRETHREN AT WORK. This is as it should be. When we gonsider the fact that the morals and tastes and religion of a country, are powerfully influenced by adjoining cit. ies, we have the key to the fact that the evangelizing of the cities was the most prominent feature in the apostolic sys. tem of missions.

An attentive review of the labors of the primitive missionaries, shows that the cities were the centres of their operations, and that the rural districts receiv. ed their knowledge of the new religion from the cities.

Our church has reversed the proman Colonies were yet almost in their gramme, hence the enquiries are frequent. infancy, and that there was no paper- ly propounded us. anduct themselves toward each other. Had we the doctrines of that chapter ingrained into our hearts. I verily believe nine-tenths of the troubles that afgiet our own congregations would never escape the brain of Satun.

There should be no fears of failgre in the ultimate success of the work, either as to the building up of churches in the cities, or the support of the work-I do not think the first missionarice expended large sums in their oper-They did not disdam to work with their own hands, for their own support, when they had the opportunity to do it, neither should our missionaries, Behold St. Paul assisting Aquilla, the hani-hed Roman to fill a large contract for tents, at a reasonable compensation. Now how would that suit a modern missionary! I presume our missionaries would not disdain to copy the course of that eminent apostle under similar circonstances, but a proper discharge of the duties incumbent on them would have little leisure for secular work. As to the funds necessary for the work, it occurs to me the church ought surely comprehend the responsibility of contributing promptly to it,

I think I do not over-estimate the financial status of the brethren when I compute the number of brethren whose annual income is $500 and upward, at 2,000; and of that number, do not 700 realize an income of from $1,000 to $5.000 annually?

If there are two thousand members with an income of $500, are there not 100 (one twentieth) who would contribute one fiftieth (the Jews 2sed to consecrate one tenth to the Lord), to the conversion of the cities? If we do not, remember the following prophecy: Wickedness will continue to increase in proportion to the increase of popula tion as two is to one, that is, as the pop ulation is doubled, sin will be quadrupled, and the money we withhold from the Lord's work will be used by Satan to corrupt the church and to destroy the sonls of our children. The ministers who should either be in the vineyard themselves or working up the cause and interests of missions in their own congregations, will fritter the precious moments away, either biting and devouring one another, or selling their own souls and the souls of their fellow-members for the poor "pottage" of men's flatteries and official advancements, etc.

And the sequel of such a state of affairs will be, an outpouring of divine rengeance on our country, in pestilence or war or famine. Woe be unto us then when God begins to make inquisition for sin.

Let the names and vouchers continue to pour into the office of the BRETHRES AT WORK until one hundred are on the Lord's register, and then we will proceed to elect two of the Lord's messengers and send them out into the whited harvest field, to gather the ripened sheaves. If it would not be premature I would suggest that brethren should be chosen who are unencumbered by large families, and who have been found valiant in defence of our doctrine. Could Paul firmed that Jesus was alive. we transfer Brother J. W. Stein to that field? The interests of Christ's kingdown could be safely entrusted to his hands. Brother A. Hutchinson of Mo., has been found faithful. What do you think of the following as the plan of election? Let each contributor signify his or her choice in a private vote addressed to Brother J. H. Moore, and the two brethren receiving the highest numher of votes be declared elected, and if worknot the necessary work."

either could not accept, then let the next highest take his place, etc.

Let a brother at some central point, say Brother Moore, of Lanack, 111., be chosen for treasurer and dishurser and secretary, and let the prayers of the churches serve as canvassing agents to keep the treasury supplied.

Now brethren, don't fight against this work, lest you be found fighting against the Lord, and his mighty millstone fall on you and mash you to powder. If it be not of the Lord, it will fail. Just wait and see, in the meantime send along your X and your prayers, and if only one soul is converted, you have a lifted up his hand and requested me to one hundredth share therein, the value of which will be estimated and paid at the office of the Secretary of the treasury in the kingdom of God, when your souls is summoned up there to enter into that rest prepared for his people.

Let us hear what the brothren have to say. We don't want much discussion. The command is, "Go into the vincyard and work," not discuss.

'VE been in sight of the city here, ↓ Unioum the place of rest, Where many mouldering millions lie, Returning into dust.

But at the resurrection day, The first one and the best, Who know which ones will then arise. And be forever blest.

Who knows who will lie silent still, Till the last trump shall sound: No mortal here, but God can know, And no one under ground.

For God has said that silence reigns, In that last resting-place, Until they meet their Savior here, And see him face to face.

Oh, that how we pour mortals here On earth should spend our breath, So we with Jesus may arise, And'scape the second death.

The suit came off a few weeks ago, when I was summoned several hundred miles from home as a witness for the State. When many witnesses had given their testimony before me, one by one, they would march toward the witness-stand, lift up their hands, and say after the one who qualifies them, "so help me God." When I was called, I came forward and approached the clerk and said that I would nffirm. He was so bothered that he hardly know the affirmation. Then he do so too, which, of course I refused, and auswered him, "yea, yea, instead of" so help me God." After I got through, I was asked, why I did not take an oath, I answered, that the Master said we should not, and so also did the apostle James. The answer was, "yes that is right, I believe the same as you do, only I believe in my form which our church believes in, that is the church of the United Brethren." - We-had quite an interesting talk, when another made this remark, " well, what would you do told to do. XXE talk of born poets, which is all right. But sometimes we are inclined to talk of born. Christians, and born ministers. Is this right? When I hear a man preach a good sermon, I always think he has been a worker, and not only a worker, but that he is, to a greater or less degree, an inspired man. Λ man may speak fluently, he may speak jearnedly, but he cannot speak with that power, or God cannot speak through him, unless he is a man in whom the Holy Ghost abides. Ministers must be born of the Holy Ghost if they would instruct their listners in the right way. It is God's work and not man's. A man may be well informed, he may be con sidered a wise man by the world, yet he must count it all as nothing in comparison with Christ. Again, a man may know but little, he may be considered ignorant, yet be very wise, be very

His education may have been receiv ed from that great Teacher. "Verily, verily I say unto you, he that believeth on me the works that I do, shall be do also," John 14: 12. To be born a Christian, or be a natural speaker, I things is that stated that think is a wrong idea. All have to become believers, to be Christians, and no matter how easy it may be for some to speak they have necessarily got to learn what to say and how to say it. Some have more talents than others, but then more will be required of them. So there is no excuse for any.

Sometimes the church calls a brother have nother form of doing it-" It to the work of the ministry, who thinks does a make so much difference what he has no talent for serving in this di rection. He never should think so: necer. He may have no taste for it, but if | ing left worth keeping.

for speaking either. Sometimes they did not wish to go when they were called upon to go and preach to the people. Perhaps Christ would rather not have come into this world and suffered persecution and death; but he nobly said to his Father, "not my will, but thine be done." Then if we wish to be Chris tians, we must work the works of Christ, Please read the adventure of Jonah. He was fleeing from the presence of the Lord. He did not wish to go where he was sent, but after all his delay, see with what success his labors were blessed; yet it seems even with that, he was not pleased. Success could not lift him up. He was a true man—a true prophet. He honestly told the shipmen, that he was fleeing from the Lord, and also that because of him the storm was upon the waters, and he told them to throw him out into the sea, and he was three days and three nights in deep water, because he tried to run away from duty. The success of Jonah may teach us a good lesson. He did, simply what he was and easy one. No high education was required to tell the tidings. Any one with the right spirit could have done the same work, he had been sent to do. His to be his.

BETTER BEEN BURIED.

TME well-known anti-tobacco man, George Trask, tells the following of himself:

"About fifteen years ago we gave a lecture in which we aimed to show that, as the common use of tobacco takes away desire for food, blood, muscle, health and strength, it must, without fail, shorten life, and if so, the habit would at last lead to the person killing himself, hence a breaking of the command of God, 'Thou shalt not kill.'

"As we closed, the preacher rose and said: 'I believe the argument in this lecture is final; I believe thousands who use tobacco are poisoned to death and cut short their lives. But I have a hard case to solve, and I wish Mr. Trask to solve it. I know a man within ten miles of this place who smoked his pipe to the day of his death; and he lived to be 104 years of age.'

"We confess we were puzzled. The question was to the point, and the penple hughed at our expense. At last we hit upon the Socratic style of reasoning, and questions helped us out of the trouble. 'Sir,' I asked, 'are you sure the old man lived and smoked till he was 104? 'Yes,' he replied. 'How did he look?' 'He looked like an Egyptian muniny.' 'Had be moral feelings?' 'O no; he seemed to have no sense of God or religion whatever.' Did be manifest any publie spirit? Did he like good schools, good roads, good order and the like? (O no; no more than a mud turtle or oyster.' 'Had be a family ('Yes, a large one and a mean one-altogether too large.' Did he love his family?' No, I think not.' Did he hate his family!' 'No, I think not.' All in a word did he love anylody or hate anybody,

THE "DEACON'S" MISTAKE.

IMROUGH the kindness of a brother, who lives in Ohio, we are in receipt of a copy of the January number of The Deacon, containing the objectional article referred to a few weeks ago. Referring to the BESTIERS AT WORK it

"One of our weekly papers now has a subscription list of over ten thousand names, we are fold, the net profits on which makes a yearly income of clear profit of full four thousand.

In reply to the above we state: It is self-evident that we know more about the business and condition of this office than any body else, and therefore what we say ought to be regarded as correct beyond doubt.

Regarding our circulation, it is likely that the BIGETHERN AT WORK has as large a sub-respiror. list as any paper in the Brotherhood, but it is not ten thousand, though we hope it soon will

The ascertion about our net profits being yearly full four thousand dollars is false from beginning to end. Our income is not half that amount. We think that we are doing reasonably well in losaness, but to say that we are making " lots of money " is incorrect. Brethren should not publish things they know nothing about, and thus set us in a false light before the Brotherhood. As the L'indicator eigned in part of said article from the Decem, and in substance endorsed what was said, we respectfully suggest to the editors of both of these paper the propriety of taking back what they have to above, on the ground that we deary it being

THE WAY YOU SAY IT.

LYVERYTHING which we do is either right or wrong; if it be not wrong, then it is nght; if it be not right, then it is wrong; if it be right, then it is not wrong; and if it he wrong, then it cannot be right. hight and wrong are opposite in meaning, therefore what is the one cannot be the other.

There is just one thing in the world and that is power. This is either positive or negative We decide which of these two it is by its application. Whenever it is applied to promote truth, piety, virtue, peace, prosperity, it is posirive, but when opposed to these, it is negative, tood is positive; the devil, negative, Chris. tions are positive; sinners, negative. God dies good; the devil, evil. Christians are kind and merciful; sinners, rough and idurate. The posstive loads up, the negative tears down. Whatover is not positive is of the devil, whatever is positive is of God. A man is more excusable for doing what, in itself-according to the lefter of the law-is wrong, under some circumstances than others, It is even right to violate the letter of the law when necessity demands it. We learn this from what Christ said to the Pharisers when they found hult with his disciples for doing "that which is not lawful to de upon the Saldath day," Christ calls attention (1) to what David had done, which was in open violation to the letter of the law, and yet no one had ever suspecked he did any wrong. (2) "The priests ' profane the Sabbath, and are blamebess." We regard this as conclusive proof that circumstances of necessity make it right to violate the letter of the law. But circumstances were make it right to do wrong. If circumstances make it right to violate law, then it is right to violate, and icrony not to do it.

The Scripture is profitable for doctrine, reproof and correction. It is, not only the privilege, but the duty, of the minister, with the Scriptures, to reprove his hearers of any sins of which they are girlly, and correct any errors which they commit. So with the contributors to our religious journals -- in short, so we ought to do with each other: but it is very important that it be done in a proper way-that a good spirit pervade the work.

We are all human and prone to evil - all come short of perfection. We aught, therefor, to hear in mind, that those with which we deal and associate, are made better or worse by our conduct. If some id our triends do wrong, we can only prove that we are letter than they by doing right. If our friends do wrong by usitis our duty, as Christians, to tell them of it, but not be abuse them. If we think our friends neglect their duty towards us we should inform Huddoostan, in Calestine, if he continueste yield | them of it in a kind and after tomate way, then chedaence. A DANGEROUS COURSE.

MaXG the papers published in our brotherbond, we fear a spirit of contention will rug up, tending be make division and discord. is ne of the greatest dangers is that if misstrentation. Since I have been here no one place to discuss these rital issues, not in our shen intentionally neglected. Occasionally papers. The editors believe it right to disshell occurs, but we always correct it us cass them in their papers, as well as at A. M., The are putified of it. However, we are only with this difference: at A. M. both sides are discussed while in their papers they would discuss only me side, and continue the discussion from year to year just as done at A. M., only they have but one side of it in the paper. To get the idea clearly before you, suppose at our common church meeting some matters of differ ence come up, and are investigated, discussed and settled, the best that can be done by the church. Bu one party says, we will not let that decision of the church alone, but publicly write and speak against the devision of the church, just as they did at church meeting; they will be governed by their own opinion, not by the decision of the church, either publicly or privately, in the church or before the world. Now, suppose that course is continued, from year to year, when would the church have peace? Never while time lasts. But in that church is another party, who say, we will accept the decision of the church as the best that canbe done now; we will not write or speak joinhely against it before the world, but want till another meeting, if there be anything wrong, then bring it up in a legal manner and try and get it better, and not be all the time fassing from week to week about the vital issues, or any other issues.

> Now we belong to this latter party, who her lieve our differ necs should be discussed at charch meetings, District meetings and Annual Meetings. We believe when these rital issues are discussed it should be a free discussion for both sides. A discussion of one side only, in any case, will be more likely to produce prejuthice and hard feeling, than it will of wisdom. and knowledge; a continual discussion of both sides may be a source of knowledge, but it would produce division in some of its forms. Then we think our position is clear in this matter, when we advise the B. At W. to go to A. M., discuss and argue all these rital issues, as much as you choose, get the best decision, you can, then accept that decision for the time being, and wait till another year, then better it if you know how. But for the great of the church, for the peace of the brotherhood, don't be continually discussing these differences on rital issues in your paper. He settled and fixed in the work for peace and ionon, and leve in the church; do not be led into this contention among bretimen, or moved from your purpo a by these nermations that you work to please all and hart none. Let the brotherhood decide this matter, let them decide final warfare on somebody, even on the A.M., I hope they will not find it in the B. AT W. But I am confident the brotherhood wants and needs, papers that respect and accept the decise nons of A. M. on all vital issues. They will support such papers, and they will be a great | means to keep undon and harmony in the because we are brethren. elmreh.

We have tried to make our views plan in this matter, and have done so with due respect to the Deacon and Vindicator. are such questions as the Missionaries, the Sabbath School, 'Education,' Non-conformity, &c Now if we have guessed the meaning, all of these questions have been before A. M., and decided by it. And we advise the B. AT W. not to fight against the decision of A. M. on these subjects, not to publish mything against them in the paper, not that we believe the A, M, infallible, but there is a right way-a legal way, to bring all of them up again and discuss them at A. M., and have them changed. But further the B. AT W., and all other brethren have a right to carry out and advocate publicly and in the church all the decisions of A. M., but no brother has a right to oppose them publicly, except in their discussion at church, District, or A. M. To grant the right of every brother to oppose publicly every decision of the church and A. M., would be virtually destroying the A. M. itself, and setting up not only congregationalism, but individualism, and destroy all the union and oneness of the church.

Here another matter is brought up incidentglly. That is, the nature of the decisions of A. M. Some brethren have held the A. M. as a legislative body-that is not correct. They might just as well call a church meeting a law nesking body. The A. M., and all church meetings are judiciary, merely as a court to deende upon all questions brought before it. The A. M. has no power to originate bills, and pass them as a law; but hear the case brought up from a lower court, or District Meeting, and decide it, as a Supreme Court would do. His decisions are to our brotherhood, as the decisions of the Supreme Court to the citizens of the United States, not as the Congress, to make laws, but to decide the case according to the haws already made. So our A. M. decides the case brought before it, according to the Gospel. -the law God has made for the government of his church. All these cases that come up must be decided by some hody, either each individual must decide for himself-that would be individ- | throughout the large cities of the United States. unlism; or the church must decide it - that I fully indurse that move. I think that is acwould be congregationalism; or each District Meeting must decide for itself-that would be division at once on the principle of State rights or secession; or the A. M. must decide it according to the 15th of Acts. That is union and Gospel, and the order of our brotherhood -the only safe ground there is forms. Tried and proven for more than a century, it has held our church together as one hody, and we shall sustain it as our fathers have done, and our jupers. should walk in their factsteps. Search the old juiths-support the way we know gives peace, union and strength, and appose any course that brings division, weakness and discord. While whether they want this continual debating in | we have so many papers multiplying in our our papers, let them decide if they want these brotherhood, it requires more cantion to guard questions discussed at A. We would be pleased to publish all the encouraging letters received at this office, but can spare room for a few extracts only;

Arthur Brubaker: "I am poor, but tliank the Lord, I can' work with my hands and earn enough to help the proposition one dollar."

Catharine Suplee: "O, that such may be sent who are willing to preach to the lowly, and the onteast in the highways and hedges, and if possible, 'compel' them to come in while time and opportunity are offered."

James L. Switzer: "I think our little memsership here of 40, will put at least one thousand cents into the work. Brethren, every-where, rouse up! Put your shoulders to the wheel."

A. A. Kepner: " The subject of spreading the Gospel has been much handled, pro and con, and is, perhaps, not well understood by some, We are inclined to think that it depends on several things. In the first place, it depends largely on the motives. If the proper motive be kept in view, the blessing of the Lord will follow, I am fully persuaded, in my mind, that if the church, as one man, would unite in the cause of spreading the Gospel, that the Lord would be pleased, and his blessing would surely follow, Some of us, who are quite well advanced in years, and have been thinking over these things for a number of years, are so firmly convinced that the Brotherhood has been somewhat slack in that respect, that it needs no comment at this time. But when I think back over the past history of the church, think what has been done, and what might have been drue, and even what the church is doing now, and then think what the church might do, I am made to fremble, to think of the responsibility that rests upon us, especially so when I look around and see how the Lord hus blessed us. So, Brethren, go on in the work of spreading the Gropel, and be assured that the boad will bless you for all the good work you do, and when our labors are over with us here, then we shall hear the welsome invitation, 'come up hither,'

J. G. Harley; "I see Brother Maomaw makes a proposition to have the Gospel preached cording to the Scriptures, for the Master said, that the Gospel should be preached throughout the whole world, in every creature; but then we want to send men who are sound in the faithmen who will preach the cross of Christ, fearless of what men shall do anto them: who will not shim to declare the whom counsel of God —men who are filled with the layer of God in their hearts, who will know nothing but desus Christ and him crucified. Men like Lemuel Hillery or John Stein or Mexander Reese or hundreds of others like them. We don't want money seekers, or men pleasers in this work. They would he of no use; now, if you send men like those, I will give my order for ten dollars. I know the Lord will bless the work."

The following letter from Atchism, Kansas, also approves of the missionary move. The writer says:

JUDAS AND FEET-WASHING.

Wies Judac present when feel-washing, the Lord's Support and the Communion were instituted? Some one will please explain. J. M. DETRICK.

M Y opinion is that he was present at the first two only, John 43. "After that, he poureth water into a busin, and began to wash his disciple's feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded." Jesus saith to him, "He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all. For he knew who should betray him; therefore be said, Ye are not all clean," Verses 10, 11, "Jesus mawered, He it is, to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sore he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon." Vorse 26. "He then, having received the sop, went immediately out; and it was night." Verse 30. From the above we would conclude that he was present during feet-wishing and part of the supper, but went out before it was over. Neither would we suppose that after he had conceived to betray his Lord he would be a fit subject to partake of the Communion.

THE FOUR BIRTHS.

Please explain John 1: 18: "Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of non, lost of God." What bitths are here referred to, natural or spiritual?

J. Y. SNAVELY.

HERE are four births named, but only one with promise. I. "Of blood"—such as the Jews chained from Abraham, being blood kindsed and descondants of the line of Abraham. Upon this pretext, John the Baptist rejected many of them who came to his baptism.

2. "Of the will of the flesh." Choosing a way religiously, in which there is the least cross, or self-denial, and in which the flesh can be most gratified, and where the carnal mind keeps the ascendency; whatever the form or pretensions may be.

3. "Of the will of man," Following the multitude; being led by popular opinion, or taking up such a kind of religion as will please the most people, and by which you may secure the most friends and honors. All these are without promise.

4. "But of God." Those who repent of their sins, renounce everything the Word of God forbids, submit to all the Lord's commands, take up the cross, deny themselves of all sinful lusts, obey the Lord in paterence to the nearest friends in the world, and thereby declare that they love Him most; thus being born of the Spirit, led by the Spirit, and sanctified by the Spirit, the promise is everlasting life.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Please give an explanation of Rev. 22:2. It rends thus: "In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of frints, and yielded her fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were furthe healing of the nations."

A BROTHER,

THE prophet Ezekiel describes the scene thus: "And by the river, upon the bank thereof. on this side and on that side, shall grow all trees for meat, whose leaf shall not fade, neither shall the fruit thereof be consumed; it shall bring forth new fruit according to his months, because their waters they issued out of the sanctuary; and the fruit thereof shall be for ment, and the leaf thereof for medicine." The prophet gives the plural number trees, as tree in the singular is here used, it must be what is called an cantlage of the singular for the plural number. The trees of life were distributed througout the city, along the streets, and along the banks of the river. Street is also un emillage or substitution of the singular for the plural number.

Manner is an interpolation, it does not belong to the text, it is simply twelve fruits, that is, fruit twelve times in the year, as is explained by the clause, "yielded her fruit every month." By the leaves of the tree are perhaps meant the truths of God's Word, which are the only anti-dotes to sin. But thank God, these leaves are a sufficient antidote; if properly applied, they will heal the nations of that terrible leprosy of sin.

Will some one be so kind as to explain Matt. 5: 29, 39: "And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and east it from thee; for it is prolitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cust into hell.

And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off," etc.

S. A. FLICKINGER.

"Causes thee to offend," Bible Union Translation. The word "offend" is skandabethra in the original, and appears to be compounded of skandalom a stambling-block, and lathera, private or bidden. It is then something concealed, and placed in one's pathway, over which he may stumble and fall.

If the right hand or right eye, which, no doubt, means the profitable, or honorable employment, or the durling lifel, be the occasion of this standiling, plack it out, or cut it off. Leave the employment, tear the ideal from you. Whatever loss the one may occasion, whatever pain the other, better, far better suffer in this world, than to suffer eternally.

The river me tey and cold;
To dwell in third city of glory,
Whose streets are all covered with gold.

Assist me, dear Savior, to ever Be faithful my duty to do; In word and in deed and in action, My daily vocation pursue.

So when my last breath I am broathing, And my days on earth are all o'er; I'll meet These in peace up in heaven, To dwell on that beautiful shore.

Help me to be instant in praying, And faithful to every trust; So when from this earth I'm departing I'll pass to the home of the just,

The river of death is so chilly,

That many its waters do fear,
But all must pass over that river,

No matter how gloomy and drear.

I should that all now were preparing.
To cross the cold river of death.
Before the dack stream they are nearing.
Before they must draw their list breath.

So when they come down to this river, There Jesus will be their best triend, And with Him to rost upon heaven, They then shall in triumph ascend.

Come brother, come sister, come signer; Come great, and come small, and come all, This river of death you're approaching Then do hear the Savior's kind call.

INFLUENCE OF THE STUDY AND OBSERVATION OF NATURAL OBJECTS UPON THE MIND.

BY B. STUVER.

If OW few, how very few indeed, there are who can appreciate the great soul culture that is derived from a careful study and observation of the natural objects which surround us in such great profusion on every side! or have any adequate idea of the tender and elevated emotions experienced when surrounded by these mute, though instructive, teachers which proclaim in the most unequivocal and irrefutable manner the power, wisdom, grandeur, sublimity, love and beneficence of the Ruler of the universe. Who can stand on a starry night,—gaze up into the clear canopy of heaven, and behold the glittering stars, countless in number, illuminating, by their pale and mellow light, the earth below, without having createdwithin him an indebble impression of the greatness and wisdom of their Creator? Who car gaze upou the ocean, now one boiling, seething mass of water, threatening destruction to everything within the range of its power, nows calm and placid surface on which the smallestboat could float with impunity, and not be filld with awe at the manifestations of the laws of nature and the unbounded power of their Autlor? Who, I say, can penetrate the bowels of the earth and there behold the beauties and worders hidden from external view, and the various minerals for the n-e and comfort of mankind, without acknowledging the design of ther Creator? Who can gaze upon the majestic forst, composed, as it is, of stately monarchs, the growth of which was only accomplished in certuries, and of smaller growths covered with verlant foliage. and many with the most delicious fruits, and from whose foliage issue forth straim of delightful music, and not feel that their Creator has most wisely and bounteously provided for man's comfort and pleasure? Look at the orchard now covered with heartcous blossums which exhale delightful pertumes succeeded by fruits. Look at the field and meadow now clothed with vernal foliage interspersed with flowers, whose beauteous colors and delightful exhalations make a most pleasing scene; see these glasses grow up changing their color from a green, to a goldon bue and bearing upon their stalks the grain which forms the nutrient materials that sustain our beings, we are almost instinctively led to exclaim, truly the Author and Bestower of all these blessings is a powerful, benedicent and loving Being, whom to honor and serve should he the delight of our lives.

In view of these facts, I would say to every young person, and all indeed, observe and contemplate the objects which God has given for our study; let all the objects of His creation with which you come in contact, be an open book from which you can learn a lesson of trust and lumility, and by conjoining with this, a careful study and practice of His Word, you will be truly enabled "to look from Nature, up to Nature's God."

THOUGHTS AGAINST INFIDELI-TY--ITS CURE.

BY H. C. LUCAS.

THERE is a remedy for unbelief of the authenticity and truthfulness of the Sacred Oracles. Men who deny the inspiration of the Word of God, are wilfully ignorant of Bible language, and facts connected with the fulfillment of prophecies of the Bible.

Ask them concerning the destruction of Babylon, Tyre, Damascus, Egypt, &c., and the seemingly singular fulfillment of the words of the prophet in every instance, and they are not informed on those things at all, or but very imperfectly.

If suitable works on the subject of the cause of unbelief and means of rescue, could be placed in their bands, and they could be induced to read them carefully and investigate the subject with fairness and fulness, we could have abundant reason to hope for their full recovery from their terrible thralldom in the darkness of unbelief.

For some time I have thought it would be well for followers of the Master, and friends of this Word, to keep a small library of suitable books in their respective neighborhoods, and circulate these wherever they could induce their neighbors to read them, no difference whether they were avowed dishelievers or not; for many times there are serious doubts that are not expressed. And it would doubtless be beneficial to all to read these works, having a tendency to strengthen and establish more firmly the faith of believers.

THERE IS A LAND OF PURE DELIGHT.

E learn from an American writer that the author of this familiar bymn (Isaac Watts) wrote it at South Hampton, his native town, while sitting at the window of a parlor which overlooked the river Itshen, and in full view of the Isle of Wight, "beyond the swelling flood," representing "the land of pure delight."

"Where everlasting spring abides, And hever withering flowers."

And then we suppose, as the poet looked upon the waters then before him, he thought of the final passage of the Christian,—

"Death like a mar or sea divides.
That heavenly land from ours."

Here we spoke on Sunday and Sunday night. Brother James came on Monday noon. Here we remained for two weeks. Had preaching twice each duy, with a few exceptions; and mostly large and attentive andiences.

We visited elder Moses Shoup, now in his ighty-sixth year; and found this old father, a rioneer in the State and church, to be in hetter health, than for months past, and feels much interest in the final success of the Word, Were also to the house of brother Daniel Shoup, when it was thought that his family of twelve children, and as yet unbroken, must give up one of their number. The disease was diphtheria, and very bad, but it is now thought that the little daughter will recover. We also visited the school of brother William Shoup, and as well that of a Miss Darst, and find in both, every faculty for making the tender plant both, wise and good. These teachers seem to prize their calling, and both scem well qualified to till it.

We left the meeting on Sunday the 26, and came over to Lower Miami, elder George Holler's charge, and brother James staid at Zimmerman till Monday, 27th, when the meeting closed, with thirteen additions and three applicants. May the Lord's blessing attend this body of believers, and as well all others who love the name of Jesus. LANDON WEST, and I hope there will still be a greater effort than has yet been made, for we see that in every country where we get our papers circulated, that the result is good. Seeing this, I am induced to work for the Brethreu's papers in every section I visit, hence there are many names sent in by others that do not come on our list. I hope all the Brethren will work in this way, and thereby we will get a wider circulation for our papers, and if we can't get those who don't belong to us, to subscribe, just hand them your papers, and you will in that way, preach some telling sermons, sowing some seed that will after while bring forth much good fruit. May the Lord continue to bless our dear editors in their great and noble enterprise. But while I am thinking over the good that is, and can be done by preaching and sending our papers and tracts out, it does appear to me that our efforts are confined too much in one direction, that is north and north-west, and the south too much neglected. Why is this? The cry is, "go west," Yes, the cry comes hurling back, "come west," and why? "Here you can get grent gain." I do not see any wrong in this, but why is there so little said about going South? It is not because the people in the South are not as precious in the sight of the hord is any where else, no, the blessed Lord shed as much blood for them as for any other people; and for them He says, "go ye," and now who will go? There are States having no preacher of the Brethren. The dear Brethren of the South are doing all they can. I know their zeal for the cause, for that is my native home. They have too much to do; they need help; the territory is too large for them to cultivate. Now who will go to some place down there, where there are no Brethren, and help to spread the Gospel farther South? I feel confident that there are many places where much good could be done, if some Brethren would settle there, and preach the Gospel as taught and practiced by our people. Oh, I think so much about it, that if I were able to go, and had means to sustain my family, I would go and spend the remainder of my days in preaching the Gospel of our blessed hord to those people. But I am poor, and cannot do as I would wish in this respect. Should I ever be blessed with the means to enable me to preach the Gospel where it has not yet been prenched, I certainly would go South. May the Lord speed on the time that large churches may be planted all over the Southern States, is my connest prayer,

Burned to Death,

D. R. CONLEY.

BURNED to death on Christmas' day, little Cora Hunter, aged nearly six years. Just after returning from a visit to grandfather and grandmother, little Corn was taking care of her two younger brothers in the house, while her mother was doing the evening milking, a few paces from the door. Suddenly the door opened, and Cora ran out into the wind with her clothes all ablaze, crying, "O, mamma! manuma! I am burning." The strong wind made the bluze burn fiercer, and her mother in trying to put out the fire, came very near burning herself. All the clothes were burned off of the child in three minutes. She was then carried into the house, and after midnight, breathed her last. What seems remarkable, is that after the first fierce heat she did not appear to suffer much pain, and passed quietly and pencefully away, Brother Burman preached the funeral sermon on the 27th, from Solomon's language, "Boast not thyself of to-morrow," will remember the strong appeals and telling applications he made. We laid little Cora in the grave, and turned sadly away, thinking of her last agonizing and prophetic cry, "O mammu! namma! I am hurning.'

decline, and certain parties in the neighborhood talked of wiping out "that little Dankard church." But the Brethren, not being quite ready to be wiped out, and having yet a little strength, and having kept. His word and not denied His name, went to work and built a meeting-house. Last Fall the Brethren went and held a series of meetings there. The Lord revived them, and confirmed them in their faith; and fifteen were added to their number. The members of this church live mostly among the hills and knobs. Some of these hills are quite rich to the top, while others are thin and slaty. After meeting with the Brethren here four days and three nights, I took my journey up the country, accompanied by brethren Bartly Harris and Jacob Lemberg, the latter being a minister in the second degree since last October.

On the night of the 16th we preached to a goodly congregation, at the house of brother Sannel Wells, in the Lounds of the Cedar Grove church. This sub-congregation was also built up since the close of the war.

On the night of the Lith, we stayed with a family in which the mother is the only member of the church, while her husband, though kind and hospitable, is not quite farvorable to the strict discipline and doctrines of the church. Here the family is growing up, the oldest daughter about grown, and I think about ready to side with her mother, on whose brow are traces of surrow and struggles that can be better imagined than described. May the Lord strengthen and sustain her, that by a chaste wilk, she may win those to the cross of Christ, who are endeared to her by the strongest, ties of nature. May she realize in the Inture the full fruition of Psalms 126; 6, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with hom?

From brother Wellis we went to Cedar Grove, where we stayed four days and nights, and had eight meetings. Here, as at the other places, we met warm hearts and bambs. Among them, a young sister, seeming strong in the faith and only twelve years old, having joined the church over в уемт вдо. There are other propous sheaves there, which I think are almost ready to be guilliered. Thus church extends over a large territory, and they have a number of ministering brethren, three of whom are yet young. in the ministry.

The meetings continued until Sanday evening, Pehrugery 2nd. The Word was presched with such convincing power that four souls were convinced of the duty they owe to their Lord and Master, and solemn impressions were made upon others. If the brothren could have remained with us a while longer offers would have I enlisted under the banner of King Emanuel.

We felt sorry and lost when the two dear brothren and sister who was with them, left us, but we will put our trust in the Lord, and live in hopes that some dear numstering brother will come over and help us to labor in the Master's Smeyard.

I will say to readers of your paper, that this is a good country, and I am not adraid to advise Brethren to locate here. There are now sixteen members here, earnestly praying for a minister to settle among them. I will gladly give any information desired concerning the country, to any one that wishes to address me at the above JOHN J. JOBBIAN. named place. Exiter, Neb., Feb. 6, 1879.

Dear Brethren:-DROTHER William Dester came to Locust B Grove, Nettle Creek church, on the 27th of December, and held forth the doctrine for nine or ten days. The immediate result' was three additions. Many deep, and we hope, lasting impressions were made; some of which are likely to bear fruit in the immediate future.

Brother Dester is a zealous defeuder of the Truth, and has his heart in the work; and as he intends devoting all his time to preaching. the Brethren would do well to keep him in the field. Give willing hands a chance to work.

Nettle Creek church is in a prosperous condition, numerically, yet much room for spiritunl improvement. It numbers over four hundred, including eight ministers.

Notice to the Brethren of the Maple Grove Colony.

W E hope all our members will secure their certificates of certificates of membership before leaving the church in which they are living, as it is much easier to obtain a letter while present in person, than to get one by writing back for it, and more especially if there should be some little difficulty in the way, which had to be settled before a letter could be obtained. We have had some experience in matters of this kind, and we have a case now in this arm of church, wherein the members lailed or neglected to get their letter before leaving. There now seems to be some difficulty in the way, which will require considerable writing between the parties before the matter will be settled. We theretorendy seall our members that expect to locate with the colony this Spring, or at any infore time, to secure their letters before leaving. There is a number of families in this neighborhood that will start in a few weeks for Norton county, Kansas, the location of the colony, and will organize a chruch as soon as located, or they will, rather, take their organization with them. But the majority of the colony memhers will not go until September or October

There see strong probability that there will he a radroad through the colony and less than twelve months. There is no backward action or backword tending in all the duties enjoined upon the Christian.

The commission is given by the bord to his disciples, (see Matt. 28:10), is the acknowledged formula for baptism, by all the professed Christran churches; so far as my knowledge extends, and what does it teach? It teaches that the believer must be baptized "into the name of the Father, and into the name of the Son, and into the name of the Holy Ghost." Now in order to get into each of the names of the Gollhead, it requires a forward action for each of the divine names. Into implies a forward motion. To illustrate: When you enter into a contract with neighbor B., you make a forward move, in order to meet his propositions. But it you draw back, or out, your contract will not be consummated, hence there will be no contract.

The forward action in this case, means contract, or in other words compliance. The backward aution, means, no contract; so also is it the case with baptism. The forward action, means observer, or brightism. The backward action disobedience, being no Suptem. The forward action is caused by attraction, or a drawing sparit, and is plways connected with idedience. But the backward action is produced by a repulsive spirit, or spirit of displicalizates, with which it is connected. For example: When Classes said muto his less pars, " no man con come ondo me, except the Father draw him, or a ware given him or nor Pather." "Promather tune many of his disciples went back and wath-A no mero with him " John 6: 65, 66. Why and they we buch? In conclusion: Who would desire to enter into heaven backward? I think none would desire that posture, for they would not be able to see the bord's face, in that position. If you start for heaven backward, will you not enter there backward, (if you enter there at all) except you turn about?

POOR IN THE SPIRIT.

kingdom, theirs are its comforts and consolntions-"Peace and joy in the Holy Ghost." Though they are poor yet are they rich. Though they mourn, yet are they comforted. Though they weep, yet can they rejoice. For " whether Paul, or Appollos, or Coplins, or the world, or life, or death, or things to come," all are theirs. But though all things are theirs, they are not their own, for they are bought with a great price. The head having purchased them through his own preficus blood, and they having hombly submitted their all unto him, and surrendered themselves ancombitounally to his sovereignty, they are his. Whether they live or die, they are nevertheless the Lord's. Thus to know the depravity of one's own heart, the inability of pleasing God according to our sinful nature, and at the same time having the blessed assurance of being adopted into the family of God, limily to be heirs and joint heirs with Christ, we experience the promised blessing, "There is the kingdom of heaven." The promise is not theirs shall be the kingdom of heaven, in some future time; but theirs is the knigdom of heaven, though not in its personally manifested state, in its aumortalized power and glory, but in its heavenly principles which mold and prepare us to be legal subjects for the inheritance of it in its munifested power and glory at immortalized bodies; in its comforts and consolations of bying in " rightconsness," having "peace with God and towards all men, and under all ercounstances, " my in the Holy Ghost."

But there is another state of being poor in spirit, but with which no promise is connected. We sometimes find persons who have much to say about the poverty of their spirits; but when we search into the secrets of their lives, and find the finits of lineing their hearts filled with jealousy, envy and malice towards their fellowliengs; we wonder no more at their complaining about the poorness of their spirits.

Nothing renders man more unserable than the oper from or the Spirit of God, and assume tine principles or the hingdom of heaven, 6 forethean realize the promise, "Then's is the kingdom of heaven" "Theurs is peace and Joy in the Hely Ghost.' [This beautiful poem was composed years ago by Henry Shodon, Marysville, Kv. Such gems of poetry are not often met with, written by authors whose names are never known in history],

IS there no place on the face of the earth, Where charity dwelleth, where virtue has

Where bosons in kindness and mercy will heave, And the poor and the wretched shall ask and receive?

Is there no place on earth where a knock from the poor

Will bring some bright angel to open the door? Ah! search the wide world wherever you can, There is no open door for the moneyless man,

Go look in the hall where the chandelier light Drives off with splender the durkness of night: Where the rich lunging velvet in shadowy fold Sweeps gracefully down with its trimming of gold And mirrors of silver take up and renew. In long lighted vistas, the wildering view;

Go there in your patches and find if you can, A welcoming smile for the moneyless man.

OF PRAYER,

BY B. P. MOORAW,

"I exhort therefore, that, first of all, suppl. entions, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men " -1 Pim, 2: 4.

m Y}$ this, we learn that it is meet and right to pray and give thanks for all men, and the reason why. Proceed ing in his charge to Timothy, the apos the exhorted and enjoined that, " first of all" as a matter of the highest importance: "Supplications, prayers, and in tercessions satisfied to every emergency, and accompanied with thanksgiving should be made in behalf of themselves each other, and for all men without dis finction, and without exception of their enemies and persecutors, in the spirit of genuine philanthrophy.

Prayer is an expression of our desires to God, with an humble confidence that we shall obtain them through the mediation of Christ. The object of prayer is God alone through Jesus Christiac the Mediator. All supplications, therefore, to saints or angels, and all worship of the creature, however exalted, is use.

less and idolatrons; but we should address the Father through the Son, depending on the Spirit to help our infirmities, Rom. 8; 26; Eph. 2; 18.

- The different kinds of prayer may he public or private, in the family or closet, consisting of invocations or intercessions, ejaculatory or occasional.

Public prayer is proper and useful, is an imperative duty, and a glorious privilege, enjoined by the highest authority, and encouraged by the most illustrious examples, and precious promises, espec ially when practiced with becoming sincerity, when mainly intended for the ear of God, with a pure desire for the benefit of the audience, without any desire for self-aggrandizement or intention of pandering to the partialities of the hear. ers, but with an eye single to the glory of God and the good of souls. The surest j gnarantee for success in the service, is a clear conscience with which we can bring. ourselves into immediate presence of | tion. God, and talk to him as a man would talk, face to face, with his friend, and feel as if we were present with God alone, "the spirit helping our infirmities" there will be no such thing as vain repetitions. multiplying synonymous words to express an idea, as though God did not "know the same we mean before the thought is formed within." There will be then no humming and having to fill up time between sentences; but with a knowledge of our own sincerity and honesty of purpose, and that God is present with us, and a knowledge of our wants, we can tell him all in the most plain and simple language, and "we know that he heareth us, if we ask necording to his will,"

Private or closet prayer consists in the secret breathings of our soul the holy aspirations of our minds, the spontaneous promptings of the Hely Spirit within us, never influenced or induced by outward circumstances, as may be the ease in puldic prayer. This kind of lonyer may be either ejaculatory or occasional; thus the Christian prays always, as exhorted by the Master, Luke 18: 1, and may be performed either mentally of vocally.

In our calm and undisturbed moments, while musing upon the mercies of Goal, and contemplating our dependence upon him, the uncertainty of life, the dangers attending us, and the temptations to which, we are exposed, we may silently invoke God's carefulness over us by his supervising and protective providence, and to grant us the exercise of wisdom and prudence, so that we may in no way dishonor the profession of his name, or provoke his displeasure. But when exposed to sudden danger or taken by surprise by accident, or the approach of an enemy, in the hour of trial or temptation, m our social, political, religious or commercial intercourse, we may ask God to suggest, control and overrule all for our idvantage and for the glorifying of his name; this may be done mentally or yountly. Resides this, occasional seasons should be set apart for private or closer prayer, to retire from the outside world for secret and solemn, devotion. This is the native element in which the true Christian lives, the atmosphere he love to breathe. This sentiment is beautifully expressed in the 124th hymn:

"I love to steal awhole away From every cambering care, And spend the hour of setting day In humble grateful prayer in its effects. We are commanded to be hear." found, not only always, but every-where praying, and as the places are not especially mentioned, we are at liberty to make our own appointments, and we cannot think of any place more suitable, than in the family circle, and in no way hetter calculated to benefit ourselves by thus securing the continual presence of God with us, his Spirit permeating our whole being, a continual growth in grace. and a means by which we may bring upmonition of the Lord, the result of which] is, when other things in the family regulations are in harmony, with the sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit, the children are at an early day brought into the fold of Christ. This is true, as the rule demonstrates by many examples, anything to the contrary is the excep-

I love in solitude to shed The penitenfiel tear And all his promises to plead Where none but Gol can hear,

To illustrate: I recently had a conversation with a young brother on this subject, whose father kept up this service in the family. He says to me, that, "once in the days of my youth, father was away from home to be absent for a season, and one evening after dark I was returning home, being out a little late on duty, and the thought occurred to me, that now there will be no gathering of the family around the altar; no prayer going up to God from that altar until father returns. This thought so distressed me in that dark lonely night, that my heart was filled with emotion, and the hig unbidden tear rolled down over my cheeks." How sad the thought that at that great day, when the books are opened and the nations are judged, that there will be, then and there, parents whose lost children, will approach them for a dereliction of this important duty.

The quotation at the head of this article, enjoins that intercessions be made for all men, especially for the rulers of the nations. Oh, how earnestly ought we to be engaged in this exercise! Seeing that the prosperity, happiness and religious liberty, of the people are so much dependent upon the character of those who are in authority; seeing that the blessings of heaven have atways attended the nations over which righteous severeigns presided, and the indignation and wrath over those that were other wise, and in this, as well as other things, ought we not watch as well as pray, and to do all that we can do to secure such, Christ your Savior, and I will remark without sacrificing our Christian princi- that it is impossible to follow him and

Under this section of our subject, we may present our duty to pray or inter-Author of our blessed Christianity, to pray for them that "hate and despitefulin collision with our nature and requires more lumility and more grace than any It occurs to me that the only way that where it can be safely done, without the with shunefacedness and soloriety; not risk of having them trampled underfoot, with total led ladr, or gold, or pearls, or and being turned upon and rem, and each, array," I Tim, 21 s, 0. It is sometimes the case, that men, through the mediation of the spirit of jealousy or envy, and other of the worst of passions belonging to our poor, frail and fallen human nature, that we may be guilty of instituting and waging a re. lentless warfare against the object that we have selected and prosecuted so vig. orously, and continually, until patience and forbearance ceases to be a virtue on their part, and they are driven away our children in the fear, nurture and ad from us; confidence is totally destroyed and they are compelled for self protec. tion to withdraw their fellowship from ns, and because in all this we fail to accomplish our object, and if they are, or are not provoked to expose our deform. ity, we are likely to construe every act of theirs into an intention against our interest, or our designs. We therefore count them our enemies, and by soft words and fair speeches, induce the unwarry to believe and sympathize with us. Such is human nature or human depravity, and has been exemplified in many instances, and abounds upon the page of history, both sacred and profane, and has been the fruitful cause of the destruction of kingdoms and empires, and the flowing of rivers of the vital fluid of human existence.

I sometime since heard a lecture upon this subject, and the speaker dwelt at consideralde length on the point of pray. ing for enemies, and assuming that it was a powerful instrument in the accomplishment of a reconciliation, and doubt less it is so if properly applied. The preliminaries as stated above, having been attended to, but while listening to the lecture my mind was led to enquire in the circle of my acquaintance for examples to which the lecture might be applied, and they were found, -cases of various forms, and among them, some of the peculiarities of which I thought I understood, and was led to believe that if the aggressor would cease to be an enemy, and so to net as to restore lost confidence, it would not require much prayer to secure an amicable adjustment and a perfect reconciliation.

ECHOES FROM THE WEST.

A Short Lecture By D B Gibson, in the Falls City Church-Winter.

MY dear young friends, you have now neade up your minds to follow at the same time follow the world. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Ye cannot serve God acceptably and follow code for our enemies. This is a duty Baal too. God's people are a separate most positively commanded by the great | people-always were and always will be. When we see a people claiming to he Christians and following the worldly treat us," and I opane comes as much its maxims and fashious, we have an absaidity and impossibility.

I shall ask nothing of you that is not duty required at our hands. How, then, required by the Word of God. Notice shall we commence this archeors work! Paul's instruction to Timothy -- a bishop. "I will that men pray every where, liftwe will be likely to succeed for good, is inguje holy hands without wrath or first to take the beam out of our own doubting." "In like manner, that weeye, and by returning good for evil, mentadorn the asolves in modest apparel,

Family prayer, though not passively to scorely to scorely, to the presence of our suppose to The Scriptures to principlainness and gon-conformity to the world. 1 Pet. 3: and harvest, cold and heat, and Sum-2, 3; 1 Tim. 2; 8, 9; Rom. 12; 1, 2, Our people require prainness and non-conformity to the world; therefore our people are God's people.

Again Paul says, "every woman praying or prophesying with her head uncovered, dishonoreth her head." 2 Cor. 11. Therefore we require of our sisters that they cover their heads at time of worship with a plain covering, and thereby prove their subjection to the Gospel. Again, we read in God's Law-not from human discipline-"Swear not at all." Matt. 5:34. Again, James says," Above all thing, my brethren, swear not. Our Brethren do not swear because God's Word forbids it. A church that allows onth-taking contrary to God's Word, is not God's church.

Again, we read, "Dearly beloved, gveuge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath; for it is written, vengeance is mine and I will repay saith the Lord." Rom. 12: 19-21. Christ's sermon on the Monnt, Matt. 5: 6, 7, also forbids war and retaliatiation. God's Word does not allow fighting. See John 18: 36. "My kingdom is not of this world." * * * or else "my servants would fight." Our members are not allawed to avenge themselves, nor go to war, because God's Word forbids it. Gol, for a wise purpose, reserved for himself, the right of dealing out vengeance. We would be poor objects to deal out vengeance; we would not know when to stop. We see men will sometimes undertake to deal ont, who do not know, when to stope but kill their fellow-man: become murderers, and "we know that no murderer shall inherit the kingdom of God." Our church is opposed to secret societies. We read in God's Book, "Be ye not unequally yoked together" with imbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteonsness with unrighteonsness. and what communion bath light with darkness! and what concord hath Christ! with Belial! or what part both he that believeth with an infidel; and what agreement lorth the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living (iod) as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. and be ve separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." 2 Cor. 6: 14 18. This passage of Scripture, with a unmber of others, forlids secret societies. Our cluttch is opposed to secret societies; therefore, we are the church of Christ.

We regard these passages of Scripture. as an essential first teaching to our applicants, in order that you, as well as all our applicants, may know what will be required of you before you unite with the church of God wife ground and pillar of the truth.

WINTER

While the earth remaineth, seedime (magistrate dismissed the charge, mer and Winter, and day and night shall not cease." Gen. 8: 22. Winter comes because God has ordered it so, and it continues to come because God said it should not cease. Winter, like all other seasons of the year, has its advantages and disadvantages; its joys and its sorrows. While we may suffer much under the hammer of frost and piercing winds, it makes enjoyable the home and fireside. At no season of the year enn home be more fully appreciated than when we are driven together by the howling storms of Winter to enjoy the genial warmth of a comfortable stove in some humble cottage. It is then that we can realize how pleasantly we are situated, and more especially when the temperature of the weather sinks mercury down to twenty degrees below ze-

Such as have plenty of everything necessary to render themselves comfortable and happy in cold weather, no doubt, wish at times that Winter was here already. While others, less favored with the comforts of life, dread its re-

Reader, this season of the year affords an excellent opportunity to do good to suffering humanity. It is now, that a poor lad and his suffering sister, would duly appreciate a comfortable home,a warm and comfortalde garment. Few of us, comparatively speaking, know anything of the amount of suffering for the want of sufficient clothing and shelter from the chilly winds of icy Winter. "I was naked and ye clothed me," Matt. 25. Again, Winter seems to be the time employed for acquiring knowledge. It affords a time for study and meditation, not only to the rising generation as they are making preparation for future use fulness, but it also affords much useful time for ministerial work.

The work of evangelism seems to be more energetically carried on in the Winter than any other season of the year. This is fully verified by the work that is being done, of which we have a report in almost every paper. We do not know as people are more likely to die in the Winter than in the Summer, but it seems sometimes as if the Lord had to wait a ing, but would shortly return, and Wherefore come out from among them, little with his work for a more convenient season. This season, if ever it comes, must be in the Winter.

> per better in Winter than Summer. This | better be imagined than described, is not so because God favors this season. of the year more, but because any cause dependent upon human agency, prospers in proportion to the time and energy employed in the cause.

OUR HEAVENLY KING.

BY J. W. SUPTHWOOD,

() UR heavenly King To Him we sing Our songs of grateful praise; While here we stay We'll Him obey,-Tions spend our earthly days.

So when we die With Him on high We'll reign forevermore; And sing His praise Through endless days, On heaven's golden shore,

For there's sweet rest For all the blest, And none shall weary be, Who dwell in love With those above, And Christ their Savior see.

Then let us strive While we're alive To gain that happy land; Unceasing pray Both night and day For His protecting hand.

For Christ is all And those who call On Him shall live in peace, Where love is pure, And friendship sure, And pleasures never cease.

Then let us try To live on high, With Christ who's all in all, Which we can do If we'll be true, And heed His gracious call.

THE INFIDEL AND THE BIBLE

VIRGINIA banker, who was chairman of a noted infidel club, was once traveling on horseback through Kentucky, having with him bank-bills to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars, when he came to a lonely forest. where rolderies and murders were said to be frequent, he was soon lost through taking a wrong road. The darkness of night came quickly over him, and how to escape the threatened danger he knew not. In his about be suddenly espied in the distance a dim light, and inrging his horse forward, he at length came to a wretched looking cabin. He knocked, and the door was opened by a woman who said that her husband was out hunt she was sure that he would cheerfully give him shelter for the night. The banker tied up his horse and entered Religious work always seems to pros. the cabin, but with feelings that could

There he was with a large sum of money, and perhaps in the house of one of the roldbers whose name, was terror to the country. In a short time, the man of the house returned; he had a deer skin cap, seemed much fatigued, and in no ralkative mood; all this foreboded the infidel no good. He felt for his pistols in his packets, and placed them so as to the ready for instant use.

self an infidel, he now had confidence in the Bible. He felt safe; the felt that the man who kept an old Bible in the house and read it, and bent his knees in prayer, was no robber or murderer.

He listened to the simple prayer of the good man, and at once dismissed all his fears, and lay down in that rude cabin and slept as calmly as ever he had under his father's roof. From that night he ceased to revile the good old Bible. He became a sincere Christian, and often related the story of his eventful journey to prove the folly of infidelity,—,Sel,

A DIALOGUE ON MASONRY.

THE following conversation is said to have taken place between two neighbors—P, and D.:

P.—Good morning, Mr. D. What seems to be the matter? You look so downcast.

D.—It is no wonder. I suppose you have heard that my son John has joined the Free Masons.

P.—Yes, but that is nothing strange. I rather looked for it before this,

D,-Why so, Mr. P.!

P.—Because he has been taught from his childhood that Masonry is both profitable and popular,

D.—Mr. P., are you trying to insult me more than my son did? From a child I have taught him that Masonry is both selfish and sinful. I have also been to the expense of getting for him all the anti-masonic books I could hear of, even the Christian Cynosure. I have done all in my power to get his mind fixed against Masonry.

P. -Mr. D., let me explain the matter to you more clearly, and then see if we cannot find where you have taught your lacy contrary to what you think you did. There are some things stranger than either words or books. Are there not in our town produce merchants who are Christians, and at the same time antimasons? Are there not in our town all kinds of merchants who are anti-masons?

D_e=Yes, but what has that to do with the case?

P. A good deal. Have you not for the last twenty years sold all your grain to Mr. A., a rank Mason! Do you not lary all your groceries of Mr. W., and your dry goods of Mr. B., and are they not both Masons! It is not only you, but nearly every pretended anti-mason will deal with Masons in preference to men of their own minds. Your son is ambitious, just going into business, and is not blind about such things. He knows that the Masons are sworn to support one another, and also have the patronage of most all anti-masons. If all the anti-masons would stop supporting Masons, the thing would not stand two years. Were I a young man, just going into business, and had nothing in view but making money. I would join the Masons. Now Mr. D., 1 presume you can see why I was not surprised when your sou joined the Masons.

D. Usee the point. I have done wrong, and many others are doing the same and do not know it.

Many have yielded to go a mile

Whiting from May Hill, Adam's county, Ohio, W. Q. Calvert says: " We (the home ministers) closed our series of meetings here to-day, Feb. 16th, it having been in progress two weeks. Five young men of good character and standing made application to be received into the church. The brethren and sisters are very much encouraged. Thank God for the blessings which he ndds to our labors."

Our aged Brother, John Metzger, is in the field, and hard at work again. It seems that nothing but death will stop him. He always says, "It is better to wear out than to rust out." If some of those, who are rusting out for the want of a systematic plan to carry on missionary work, would follow this old brother's example they would have but little time left to gramble about plans or any thing else.

THE FREE Discussion is the title of a monthly, published by Brother L.O. Hummer, of Topeka, Kansas. Our impression is that the paper is a little too "tree" for the good of our humble and self-denial religion. It is enough that we be as our Master, whose langdom is not of this world. Care should be taken to avoid the mixing of the church and world. The paper is edited with ability, and contains some solid thought, Buotinia Jesse Culvert, writing from Herring. Obio, under date of February 21st, says: 24 came here Saturday the 15th, and on the 16th. dedicated the new church, a very good building, 10x53. It was filled to averflowing, and good attention given to the preaching, which continned till to-day with good interest. Nine were added to the church by bapti-m, one restored, and another to be restored to-morrow. I left the meeting in the hands of Brother D. Brower, as I was compelled to leave for other fields."

Brother John Metzger, under date of February 22nd, says: "On the 30th of January, myself and wife left home for Indiana, where I have lived for a number of years, and on the 31st met with the Brethven in church meeting in the old meeting-house. > The editor of the Woodlarry (Md.) News says: "We attended a church in Baltimore not long since, when the prescher prayed carnestly that God would bless him in his serimon and direct him what to say, that he would dictate every word that he should after. When the time came for him to preach, he pulled a manuscript out of his pocket and rend a sermon that he had written months ago and preached a dozen times. We should pronounce actions of this kind sacrdegious? hypocritical, and mockery of God of the worst type. This thing is often done and we think calls loadly for a reform in our fashionable pulpits."

Tug following shows whether it does any good to send out tracts and pamphlets; "I do not belong to your church, still I am a faithful reader of your papers and books. I read all the compilets and tracts I can get hold of, and some of them have made lasting impressions on my mind. I wish I had more of them; they are the very thing to do good. Send them out all over the land, into places where they do not have preaching. You know not what good they do. There is one brother living in my in ighborhood, and we like to hear your people preach. I am almost a believer of your doctrine. I am trying to learn more of your church, and what I know, I believe to be right. I wish I had the tract, called the "Railroad Sermon;" I think I will send and get a lot of them -REивосу Л. Поневта

This is the way a log writes; "I have been a reader of your paper, and was beginning to get quite interested in it, and the principles that it advocates, but I have not seen its colmmas in my parents' house this year. I am a boy flurteen years of age, and my parents are members of the church, and we are poor. I know there is a poor fund containing money to be used for sending the paper to those who are not able to pay for it, but I have a dollar, and I will send it in this letter, so send the paper Had meeting near bornine last evening; good along to eight months." FUTURE RECOGNITION.

Please give us your views on future recognition, Will we know each other to the inture? By answelling you will oblige many brethren.

A BROTHER, WE have much faith in the doctrine of future recognition. Indissing it recognition, believing it clearly taught in the Scriptures. The following, spoken by the Savior to the Jews, is satisfactory evidence to that effect:

"Strive to enter in at the strait gate; for many. I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are: Then shall ye begin to say, We have caten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets. But he shall say, I fell you, I know you not whence ye me; depart from me, all ye workers of imquity, There shall be weeping and grashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out." Luke 13: 23-28.

Here, we are taught that the disobedient Jews, who rejected the Savior, shall weep and gnash their teeth when they see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom, and they themselves thrust out. As they shall see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, it follows that they will be able to recognize them, either by former acquaintance. or by their being pointed out to them. This is one proof of biture recognition.

The translight at on is our next point of exi-

QUERIES ANSWERED.

I would like to ask you a few questions, to be gaswered through the paper; (4) Was Christ himsuff a componier by trade? (2) In what did the Misler mean the disciples had followed him in Most 10, 28? (3) Why do the elders break the grad the same as the brethren? (4) Did Christ drink the contents of the cup, when he said, "But 150y unto you, I will not dirak henceforth of this fmit of the vine, until that day when I drink it gen with you in my Father's kingdom?" Matt 20.29. Your brother in Christ, H. W. LANDIS.

THRIST was a carpenter by trade, for Mark $[-n_0/3]$ says: "Is not this the carpenter, the soll of Mary, the brother of James, and Joses, and of Juda, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were offended at him.' This is decisive proof that he, who made the world did not think himself too exalted to work at a useful employment the greater part of his ble on earth, thus setting a good example before his followers who should come after him. [dle ministers, and idle professors, are not true Christians. They are of but little benefit to either the church or the world.

2. Matt. 19; 28 reads as follows: " And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you. That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in in the throne of his clary, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones julying the twelve tribes of Israel."

The rendering of this passage, as it stands in the common version, is not good. Christ himall was not regenerated, hence no one care fola blan in the regan ration. Below we give a lew randerings, which will likely throw some light on the passage:

Anderson's Translation. " Jesus said to them Youly I say to you, That, in the restoration, where the Son of man shall sit on his glorious throne, you also who have followed me shall on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Frael.

Wilson's Translation. "And Jesus said to then, Indeed, I say to you, That in the renovatoo, when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of les glory, you, my followers, shall sit makely flagores, judging the twelve tribes of supper, but that in all these things there be neither male nor female, neither bond nor free, but that we all be one in Christ. We might present a number of reasons for our views on this question, but think that the BRETHREN AT WORK is not the place to discuss matters of this

4. We think not; for the Savior took the cup. gave thanks, and gave it to the disciples, telling them to drink all of it. Matt. 26; 29. A careful reading of the narative, as recorded in Mutthew, Mark and Luke would seem to indicate that he did not partake of either the bread or cup after the giving of thanks.

CHILDREN'S MEETINGS.

NE evening after meeting in Lanark, some little boys and girls came to the writer and wanted a children's meeting just as soon as possible. Well, the brethren thought it "possible" to name Monday evening, Feb. 17th, for such a meeting; so when the time came there were about fifty little boys and girls present, and quite a number who were not so little. After singing a few good hymns, Brother D. F. Eby spoke to them about singing with the spirit. Some hymns teach joy, hence should be song in a joyful spirit; some are solemn, hence should be sung in a solemn spirit. Brother Moore then told them something about the life and times of the Savior. Brother M. V. Sword followed with some Bible incidents with which the little boys and girls seemed quite familiar. The course was a short review of Bible stories taught the lufant Class. This class is composed of about thirty little hoys and girls who are not supplied with books, but who are taught Bible facts by Brother Sword, in a plain conversational way. The writer then spoke to them a few minutes, closing with the following: Two men went from Jerusalem to tell king David what Absalom intended doing; after they had gone a little ways, a boy saw them and went and told Absalom, who sent men after them to arrest them. The two friends of David went to a man's house in Bahurim. This man had a well in his yard, so the two friends went down into the well, and the woman "took and spread a covering over the well's month, and spread ground corn thereon; " and the men who were after them could not find them. Question; Who were the two men who hid in the well?

Before the meeting closed, the children requested another meeting, hence an appointment was made for Monday evening, Feb. 24th. This was a pleasant meeting; about seventy-five children were present, besides many older people. One thing which forcibly impressed my manl was this: Brother Harrison was at neetand about ten or twelve minutes before the time, and many children being there also, he said, "Let us sing." All were ready at once, and joined in singing a hymn. Another hymn was selected (the children doing that part promptly), and Brother H. asked how many were loave enough to start it. A few hands went up. "All right, ready, sing," said he. A few voices were heard at first, but before a line was sung, all were quiet. Then said he, "How many are willing, not only to start, but to sing the poles through? How many are, not only willing to tecolution, or change in the aniverse when the Aa st, but how many are brace enough to go deal shall rise, and there shall be a general through " More hands went up now than thance and a new order of though start up (before, "All right, ready, sing," said he, and The meaning of the passage would seem to be boundy all tried. FIRST ANNUAL MEETING.

Will some one be so kind as to explain, through he BRETHREN AT WORK, when and where the first Annual Meeting was held? — A Brothen, NNUAL Meetings, among the Brethren, are but a little over a hundred years old, tbey having been introduced, or rather came into use, gradually,

Soon after the Breihren commenced settling in this country, and organizing churches, they found it necessary to hold church meetings for the purpose of attending to such business as pertained to the good of the cause. They were remarkable students of the Bible, it being their only rule of faith and practice. They were humble, and had a disposition to learn from each other. At their church meetings, they were free to talk over the points of difference between them, in order that they might come to a greater unanimity of practice. Questions of importance were introduced and talked over in a Christian spirit. Sometimes grave difficulties came up, and were disposed of according to the hest light and knowledge they possessed, always pointing to the Bible as their standard of truth, and their only hand of union

At first, the churches were confined to a small portion of territory, and held their yearly Feasts, which seem to have been preceded by council meetings, which were attended by members and ministers from every church. This method was found sufficient for every purpose for the first thirty or forty years, but as the churches multiplied and spread into other States, thus rendering it impracticable for all the churches to be represented at every feast, it became necessury to set apart every year a certain time and place for this general council meeting. In this way our Annual Meetings were introduced among the Brethren, but just when we are not able to tell. We know of no history giving the date of the first Annual Meeting among us save what we gather from the Brethren's Encyclopedia, page 10. Brother Kurtz gives the date of the First Love-least in Germantown, Pa., on Christmas' day, December 25th, 1723, but says nothing definitely about when and where the first Annual Meeting was held. Likely brother Abram Cassel can supply our lack of information on this point. As the Brethren first settled in the vicinity of Germantown, Pa., it would seem reasonable that their first Annual Meeting was also held in that vicinity.

In those early days these meetings were held is a very simple manner; very much like our present council meetings. They had no eleck, nor were any minutes, kept. Every thing was asked and answered by the word of month. Important cases were frequently answered by letters, which were sent to the churches where such difficulties existed, or from where the gase came. The object of these yearly meetings was not to legislate, or make laws, but to ascertain what the Scriptures taught on all ques" tions that came before the meeting. With them every thing was settled by the Bible-they referred to chapter and verse, if it were possilife to do so. They did their best to reproduce the Apostolic order of church government, and conformed, as best they knew, to the exact teachings of the Scriptures.

This is what we are pleased to call the old order, or pather the Apostolic order. It is the original ground occupied by our nuclent Brethren one bondred years ago, and by the spostles more than eighteen hundred years, ago, and is the only ground that is intallibly safe.

To us the privilege of talking to the children, is highly appreciated. From them will come the future church, or rather by them will the house of God be perpetuated. They will constitute a link in God's great chain which he is making for his own glory.

These children are living in a reading age, and it is important what they read. It is by reading that many minds will be moulded, hence grent care should be taken to give them the right material with which to shape and polish their minds. The Bible is the only Book that can do this work right; all other works are only helps to get to the Bible.

Up to the present we have been laboring under some disadvantages in publishing the Children at Work, and the income barely paid expenses. These things, however, are of little weight when compared to the benefits accruing to the youth. We are still willing "to spend and he spent" for the good of the youth. And in order more fully to reach their minds, and to give room for much good matter that has been sent to us, we some time ugo concluded to enlarge the paper; hence shall soon send the readers of the Children at B'ork a larger paper at the same price - fifty cents a year. We hope our renders will do what they can to extend its circulation. Send, for sample copies, and for price list to those who want to distribute the paper free. Do not think to go into the lusiness to make money, for there is not "lots of money" in it, but if you want to work, looking to Jesus for your reward, come and help us, There is plenty of vexation and labor in the publication of a paper, but the consciousness of doing good, and leading souls to Christ, is sufficient incentive to overcome all the trials. Come, then, and help in the great work of leading souls to Christ.

THE TRACT WORK.

DROTHER G. W. Hoxie, of Applegate, Jack-D son county, Oregon, says: "According to offers unde for sending pumphlets free for distribution, I request you to send some to me, for I am the only brother here in the ministry. I tell you I need all the help I can get to make the doctrine known. As fast as I read your papers I send them forth for others to read, and when they tell me that they have read them, and re-read them three or four times, it does me good. My soul does bless the Lord for the kind offers made by the Tract Association. Asent you money for leacts before, but my money is about out, and I am poor, but still I am willing to work for the salvation of souls. Oh! brethren, if you could only soul some one to labor with me in the Gospel, how glad I would feel,"

The money appropriated by the Association for the free distribution of tracts, was all used before this brother's order reached as, yet his call was too argent to be refused, so we sent him a package of pamiddlets at our expense. May God bless him in his efforts at doing good,

New York, Prn. 14. — The Herald's letter from Brazil gives a frightful picture of the drought, forme, and postdence raging in the northern portion of that country for more than a year past. It is said to be the greatest calumity known in two hundred years. Half a million people have been swept away by starvation. and disease. The small pox and black plague carried off victors in appalling numbers, and thousands of bodies are rotting on the open crenches at Ladoga, Funda - Thousands of othcreategs are torn and devoured by wild animals. The starving peasants eat up their own offspring. Some places, including the city of Peres, are depopulated. There are terrible struggles for life. The children are abandoned, and the young souls sold for bread. Thousands of loring skeleton, were to be seen. Government aid is pardy. The letter presents a picture of xow such as con hardly be paralleled in histor ry, except by the siego of derusals in and the this is death, which desolated European Hertourteroth century.

TWHS is a question I doubt whether a person may living can answer correctly, as I know of no history, either sucred or profane, that tells us the amount of time used in its construction If Brother Penral would have usked the question, How long do you suppose Nonh was building the ark? I would answer thus:

According to the dimensions and specifications of that building, as laid down in the Bible. I would presume it would take four men about seven years to construct it. And as the numher "seven" seems to be shered throughout the swered writings of the Bible, I suppose Nonli was engaged seven years in building the ark. We often hear it said from the pulpit, that Nonli was preaching to the Antideliuvians one hundred and twenty years, and that the ack was under construction the same length of time. I find no such Scripture, and ministers should be careful, and not make Scriptures of their own.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Přegac expladu John 1: 43; "Which were born not of blood, and of the will of the fiesh, nor of the will of man, but of God". What littles are here referred to, initiable a spiritual?

IMIE relative pronoun which refers, as its andecident, to them in the preceding werks who had received Christ, and to whom he gave power to become the sons of God. Persons who become the roused God are land of the spirit. The dews set givent value on their unitural descent from Abraham. And pedraps no people ever had more to be proud of, in the unifier of ancestry, than had the Jews. Some of the noblest and grandest characters that grace the pages of bistory are numbered in Abraham's line. But much as they valued thus, this birth of blood, this royal, noble blood, or much as they valued their legal rites, their birtles of the will of the flesh, the apostle arforms them, that these baths will avail them nothing, but if they will be saved they must be born of God, and they could only thus be bean through faith in Jesus Christ.

Will some one give us an explanation one (cor 3; 42, 43% 4. Who is the builder? 2. What the not terrad? 3, Thow should main's work be trivil by tire? (a. 1) a man's work he burned, how shall be he sayed yet so as by mac?". B. B. William K.

has answered that, any mon, an indefinite monher, whoever wishes to use the material, may do

2. What the mederial? It is optional with the builder to use good or bud material, it he select the gold, silver, precious stones, meaning good, sound doctrine and practices, such as are provided in God's great storehouse, the precious Scriptures, be can, with there, erect a building that will adule the test of any fiery ordeal. But if he select the wood, hay, or studdie, reprewriting the laber and permuous doctrine and detriment of this holy building, then when the plang worse all the timeflery test comes these human creeds, human opinions, false glesses, no matter what they may be, how venerable they may be, will be consumed by the devouring fire.

3. How shall a man's work be tried by fire? It is not literal fire here spoken of, but the fire of God's judgments. Fire being the most penetrating and searching thing known in nature, the metaphor is frequently employed in Scripture to denote the penetrating nature of God's tests, as gold, silver, and precious stones can endure the lire, they can stand the ordeal, wood, hay, or stubble will be consumed. Just what the judgments are to which the apostle alludes, cannot perhaps be determined. Some think that the day, he speaks of, is the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, and the sweeping away of the Jewish polity; if so, then we may know what the apostle means by the term fire. The term points out the extreme rigor, and totally destructive nature of those judgments.

If a man's work be burned, how shall be be saved so as by fire? If the uniterial used were wood, liny, or stubble, meaning doctrines not drawn from God's holy Word, then, of course, they must perish in the fiery test, but the builder, what of him? First, he shall suffer loss; great indeed will be his loss. He may have prenched with great earnestness, he may have endured many hardships, he may have labored very diligently, no matter, if his teachings were not joire, unadulterated truth, all his labor will be in vain, all his work, no matter how noich labor they may have cost him, must and will peace of this kind. In our lives should be exbe burned up.

" Yet be himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." His personal salvation will be a hair's breadth deliverance if he be saved, a merc escape. If his false teaching be the result of ignorance, God, in his mercy, will extend salvation to him, but it will be barely salvation, if, however, there be a portion of willful and obstinute. ignorance in him his ease is far more critical. The above is certainly a solumn warning against error. The man who teaches or practices an error is exposed to immunent danger. Unless his misconceptions be the result of sheer ignorance, and he be very sincere, he has not one particle of ground for hope. Oh, let us, by God's grace, disabase our minds of error.

Gospel peace implies the removal of cause. It is healing in its nature and permanent in its cure. Instead of being deceptive and smuggling in disposition it is open-hearted and frank. It seeks the good of all, and hence when it sees any one jumping over the precipice of sin, it will lift the warning voice, though it may be spurned and repulsed barshly. It will keep on laboring for the good of others whether their labor is appreciated or repulsed. They will tell the people their sins and the house of Jacob its transgressions whether the people or the house of Jacob like it or not. Their object is peace on a permanent basis. They recognize the correctness of Solomon's saying: "Open rebuke is better than secret love." O, brethren, let us labor for this kind of peace. It may hart for the time being, but will most assuredly afterwards yield the peaceable fruit of righteousness. If we make enemies by telling men the truth, we have Jesus in our company; he did the Peaceful men, according to the Gospel, are men of principle, and instead of seeking their own praise, honor, and applause, they seek the glory of God, and find honor only in the principle of truth and love. They seek not their own, but the good of others; and as no one's good consisteth in being wrong, they will not llatter the wrong doer. Their speech will be sensoned with Gospel salt. They will be controlled by the scrpent's wisdom, and the dove's harmlessness. We should always labor for emplified the song of the heavenly choir at the time of our Savior's birth: "Glory to God in the highest; peace on earth and good will toward men." God should be glorified in our bodies and our spirits for they are his. "Hallowed be thy name" should shipe forth conspicuously in our character. That peace is our object-should be exemplified in all our intercourse with our tellow-men. Our speech, our conduct, our all, should exemplify the fact that good will towards all men reigns in our hearts.

If Gospel power reigns in our hearts, we will have no pleasure in the destruction of any; not even of our engines. Such peace never kicks the falling, but does all in its power to reach forth the helping hand to the needy. This kin I of peace is taught by Christ, in example and precept. When he addressed the scribes and Phorisees as hypocrites, &c., he aimed to do them good. When he told the sellers and buyers in the temple, that they had made the Lord's house a den of thieves, he intended their good, though he brought upon lamself their displeasmre. He sought not los own, last the good of others. In Memoriam,

ILLIS Lyon Sager, son of John and Emily Sager, of the Hudson congregation, was born May 16th, 1877, and died January 20th,

This durling boy was one of remarkable brightness and sweetness of disposition. The indescribable and irresistable charm which attached to his every act, and his intelligence so for beyond one of his years, rendered him the idol of the neighborhood. Before his spirit caught one taint from earth, it spread its light wings and soared to God. The bud in which so many found hopes centered, must bloom in eternity. Although he was the object of much love and affection while with us, yet we bless the hand which has taken him from us, because it is the hand of a Futher, whose providences may often be mysterious, but are ever kind.

Since the first wild burst of grief is over, and we are able to think more calmly of our loss, we are becoming gradually persuaded that his removal at this time is but an exhibition of that perfect propriety and fitness of things which (could we but intelligently observe it) is never violated in the disposition of events.

Death, which introduced him to heaven, to its Savior and to its sinless angels, at no other period would have found him so allied to them in character.—so fitted for their society. Unable to speak, one of his latest acts was to pull away, with evident effort, his mother's hands from her face, accompanying the act with a look, which coming, as it did, almost from the other shore, spoke infinitely more than could have been expressed in words, unplying a perfect conclousness of the nature of the change already taking place, and more, a look, remarked by all present, which is a source of inexhaustible comfort to the good mother.

The funeral services were combucted by brother Lemnel Hillery on the 21st, from Murk 10: 14, after which the remains were followed by the whole community, to the Hadson cometery, where they were interred near those of half brother and other relatives. Side by side they sleep in the city of the dead.

missive, is no more in the flesh. She has been stripped of mortality and clothed from that house in heaven, made by hands nuseen.

Was just about to board the train for the mission field, when a messenger approached me, requesting my services in the last act of kindness towards the departed, and to give words of consolation to the bereft.

The dear sister suffered long and oft expressa desire to depart but waited patiently until the angel of peace beckened her to come, when quietly and calmly, she departed for the Elysian fields, obscured from mortal sight. About two years ago, we led her down in the liquid stream, where, in accordance to the divine command, she put on Christ, and now she has died, as we believe, a-faithiùl Christian,

Mother, may God bless you in your widowhood. Be joyous amidst your sorrow; all your children have entered the church militant, and three, the church triumphant. With your two remaining lambs, oh, live faithful to Christ! Cleave close to his bleeding side; it will not be long until He will relieve you of earth, and say, "It is enough, come up higher." Then a happy and unending reunion will be yours to enjoy within the frescoed almbaster walls of the New Jerusalem.

My contemplated trip being thus delayed, I started for the mission field on the 1st inst. near Sydney, Ohio. Met our dear brother, O. F. Yount, at the depot. He boarded the train for his home. From a hasty conversation with him learned he had lubored with the Brethren here for a few days, already, and that the meetings were growing in interest. We continued them until the 4th, when I received a dispatch to return home next day. Our meetings continned to grow in interest, and the waters were troubled. One expressed his desire to join the church at last meeting, and more were counting the cost. Having to leave the meeting so abruptly, I hope some soldier of the cross will drop in 300n and revive and carry on the good

In compliance to the message, returned next day and visited the house of monrning, and found Mr. George W. Wise had departed this life. Funeral services in the U.B. church, by the writer, assisted by Mr. Johnston, pastor of said church,

The deceased was the son of elder Christian Wise, of Mansfield, Ohio. He was visiting his brother, Dr. Wise, of our village and while here took sick and died. A sister and aged mother, from Mansfield, were present at the funeral. Thus other hearts are pained and mourn the loss of dear ones. Ah, who has not stood by the bedside of a dying friend? Who has not stood by the gaping tomb, where laved ones were hidden from mortal view? In this, humanily stands on one common basis, all have their sorrows, all have tears to shed, all have an interest in the spirit world. This should be to us an incentive to greater holmess, greater love and greater piety.

The Brethren commenced a series of meetings in the Eagle Creek church, on the evenng of the 8th inst., expecting foreign aid. But as is the case with the many Macedonian calls, we were disappointed. We, by the grace of God, held the first until the 11th, when our dear brother desse Calvert came to our relief. Remanning with us three days only, having engagements ahead, he had to leave. The interest is growing and we perpose, God willing, to continue a few days yet, and see what the Lord will do for us. We expect, ere the meets ing closes, that some will be willing to take up ! tory of holy legitism.

This is another beautiful Lord's day, and the labor is divided again. Brother E. Bosserman continued the meeting in the Old church to-Ray, Brother W. C. with us. Brother Brubaker preached in th evening of the above named day. The attendance was fair. The meetings were continued for seven succeeding evenings. Four souls were made to see their condition, and came over on the Lord's side. They were haptized, and rose, we hope, to walk in newness of life. We think there is a good prospect for more. One made application who could not be received on account of domestic troubles. We hope the difficulty will soon be removed and the dear soul become a shining light in the church militant. Two were received by letter. This makes us a flock of sixteen with no shepherd. We pray that some ministering brother will move here and help build up a church.

We, the brethren and sisters here are very thankful to those who came and preached to us. We hope we shall not be forgotten in their prayers and intercessions to God.

Since they departed, we have been holding social meeting each Sunday evening. We sing and pray and encourage each other in the way leading from earth to heaven.

Brethren in the East, do not forget us Western people. We have souls to save as well as you. You have generally plenty of help, but we have not and cannot get it. Other denominutions soul preachers wherever they are wanted. Think of this, Brethren, and see if you cannot devise a plan by which we can have meetings. We cannot take our money beyond the grave, and there is danger of its standing against us in the day of judgment.

Your Brother in Christ,

D. R. Kelly.

WE left. Akron Feb. 3rd, and arrived in the evening of the same day at Ashland. Here we visited brothren and friends until the evening of the 12th inst. We also had a look at the college building. It is firm in structure and plain in appearance. We hope righteousness may dwell in its gignntic. The Brethren will be blessed if they train the rising generation in the nurture and adomonition of the Lord.

Evenening of the 12th, we left Ashbund and arrived at Lanark the 14th. Found all well. God bless all the Brethren, sisters and friends to whom these lines may come,

Ten Days at Naperville.

N the 10th of January I left my home to visit Naperville church, arriving in the evening at brother John Hollinger's, where they had arranged for a night meeting, and quite a number of the neighbors attended. I found this family well; had an enjoyable night with bridber John and family, but had to leave early next morning, in company with brother John, who gave me a seat in bis sleigh, for Naperville. Passing through deliet, Lockport, and other places of interest, we finally arrived in Naperville, stopped at the house of brother Burkiloll till meeting time, when we went to the meeting-house, two miles in the country, where we found the people assembling for worship. At this place we met twelve times, also held one meeting at Batavia, ten miles away.

I must confess that I was encouraged and strengthened, by the interview with the brethron and sisters in Naperville. They surely give unmistikable signs of being living branchseem the true vine. O, it does me good to read the cross, and then to the waterside we go to those hving epistles that are known and read take them into the church through the limitia- of all men. As one man said to me while there, Your people are the best people that we have." He, too, had been reading. Oh, brethren and sisters, just think of the thousands looking over the wall, reading, reading, according and and only this, but their conclusions are formed by what they read; and our children perhaps stand at the head of this class of readers; we are writing, they are reading. Children, rethe evening we concentrated our torces to the member that you should run as you read the race is heloroyou, and you must run it. Oh!

But the time came at last to return home, then came the trying time. To leave such kind triends and such lovely children, is more than I can describe; but I had to start. A telegram from home was received by one of the Brethren for me; but the train was gone and I was with it. To one home with a lighter beart than if ${f L}$ had received the telegram. I arrived only to Kind my family in deep mostraling over the death of a dear little grandson, Willis L. Sager. upon this occasion. Thus we have it, joy and trouble, tears and smiles by littles. I had to recollect the tears I saw in Naperville, when the mere mention of brethren Mourer and Hollinger's removal to Kansas was referred to: surely they keenly feel it, and will more keenly feel it when the time comes to say "forewell." Take courage, brethren, we are nearing the shores where no farewell tears are shed. Be faithful a few more days-it will not be long, we'll anchor by and by. THOMAS D. LYON. Hudson, Ill.

From a Methodist Lady.

DERMIT me to say a few words. I have been reading the BRETHREN AT WORK for over a year, and an highly pleased with it, and think it brings many useful instructions, if we are willing to put them in practice, which we all should do.

I am a Methodist budy. When I joined the church, I thought the Methodist church was the only true church there was, had since I have read the BRETHIGS AT WORK, and studied the Scriptures more, I find that they leave out a great many things that are in the Holy Book, and since I became acquainted with the Brethren church, I feel well convinced that it is the most strict and true church. I ever saw or loard of. I guess they do everything (according to my theology) that the Lord has commanded us to do, while the Methodists are fur from it.

I am quite young, but there never was a person too young to tollow Jesos, and I feel as though I wanted more of the love of desus in my heart. I do not feel near enough to my blewed Savior, I want to get nearer.

Rest for my soul I long to find: Savior of all, if more Thou art, Give me thy meek and lowly mind, And shamp Thine image on my heart

I have beard people say, "I am too young to become a Christian, I will wait until I got older." Sinners, you are mustaken, the sooner you lay away all your foolish habits and strive to do the commandments of the One that sees every thought or move you make, the better off you will be; for we know not the hour when our Lord will come, to take us to His home above, where all is love and Imppliness, if we are only ready; and if we are not prepared, what a thought it is to think of being put in that cold grave! But we have all got to go there sooner or later; and so let us all strive to the what is right. Pray for me, Christian friends, that I may live a life so that when my hour comes, I will be prepared to meet you all in ! that benulaful home above.

Wount to see loving smile, she said "The Lord does all though churches over the country. well."

In a short time Emma's health began to fail. We saw the grim monster coming closer and closer until he had fastened his cold icy hands upon her. Physician after physician was consulted, but none did any good. Still, she thought her health would be restored. She desired so much to live for the sake of her husband and little son. Before her death, she called for the elders of the church and was anointed with oil in the name of our Lord.

For awhile, she seemed to be better, and we thought, perhaps, she might be spared, but not so. She began to grow worse. She set her house in order, bade farewell to all that were dear to her. She desired to be absent from the body and present with the Lord.

We feel to sympathize with brother Joseph in his sad bereavement, but we sorrow, not a others do that have no hope, for we feel that Emma has gone to rest. Oh, brethren and sixters, think of the loved ones over there. We know not what hour, soon it may be, some of us may be called away. Oh, may we be prepared to meet it like those loved ones that have gone before us.

Emma's grandfather and great-grandfather still survive her. Her great-grandtather is in his ninety-sixth year; he has a good mind, and reasonable health. He belongs to the church, and is waiting, patiently, for the Master's call.

Emma has several uncles and mints still living. Some of them belong to the church and some do not. But we hope all will take Emma's advice and follow the footsleps of Jesus.

Oh, may we all do right that we shall meet in that heavenly land, where there will be no more sorrow, where the Savior will impel tears from our eyes.

Figural exercises were conducted by brethren Haywood and Younce and others, to a large congregation of sympathizing friends. Text, 2 Cor. 5: 1. Hymn was selected, "Tear friends, farewell, I go to dwell."

Dearest Emmi, thou hast left us; Here thy loss we deeply leel: But 'tis God that hath hereft as: He can all our sorrows heal.

Yet again we hope to need thee, When the day of life is flede Then in heaven with pay to great thee, Where no tarewell tear is shed.

EAST OF THE JORDAN

BY SELAH MERBILL, D. To. Archardogist of American Palestin Explorethom Society.

TMLE ruins in the country cast of the Jordan, 1 , and especially those artize Haaran are frequently spoken of by traveters and writers as 'giant esties." But to one who has never visited this region, this phrase is somwhat misleading. Indeed, the runs, with the exception of those at Palicyra. Barbbec, Gerash, Kamawa and the Castle at Salchad, are writher massive nor very imposing still, the varyon the need only none the less remarkable and into paragraphical way. But the parase "syram besert" which is much more inequally used than the rare just referred to, is also much more medicalings for the country from Mount Hermon and Damescus on the north almost to the Arabian desert on the south, and from the Jeedice costs and a far as men have explored, is for the most part. ers of great in fund britishin, and should have bandry under the protection of a good government could suste at one of the gardens of the Tive and a half centuries later in the time of Moses and Joshou, those people, although spoken on as a resonant, so still prosperous and provectal, and analysis topamplidde resist mor to the hosts of the Invietner Helicews. We learn from the Considering occords that several times between the seell and the muth centuries, before Uniest, the region was invaded by Assyrian armies, who is turned thence being with immense spoil, or with gold and silver and costly articles that had been and as tribute or ransom to the conquerous sing-All of which shows the great weathe or timecities and hours whose sites are constrol took with the runs of a lider but still increation iszation.

If we come down to the

we find that this land is dotted with cities, and villages, some of which are important centers of political and religious influence: that substantial reads, the great thoroughfures of travel and commerce, cross and recross it in various direcfound to see who it was, after being reproved tions; and that besides the many temples of the old religion, the churches of the new both are numbered liere by the handreds. The resources of the soil must have been immense to lave supported the deuse population which floorished here in the early centuries of the Chastian era, to say nothing of the multitudes that had flour- | (imate of the yearly production of a given farmished and passed away previous to that time.

The remains show that this population was farmer that the production seldom reaches that not only vast in numbers, but that it was also one of wealth and intelligence. And as to it is probably true that the soil can never be exhousted. A prairie may be in time, unless it is kept up by fertilizers; but the Hauran plains and hillsides are kept fertile by the perpetual decay of the lava, rock and ashes, from which source the waste of the soil by cultivation is constantly replemshed. (Even under the wretched system of husbandry which prevails at present, the productions of the country east of the Jordan, are surprising, and the wheat of the Housan plains is by far the finest that is raised in Syrm). The principal market for the Haucan wheat, is Acre, and during the shipping season three thousand to five thousand camels arrive there in a single week, loaded with grain, six to eight bushels forming a camel load. Ontons also are raised in great quantities, and are universally used as an article of diet. Besides the large home consumption, the surplus automit of products that are shipped from Syrian ports every year, is really surprising when compared with the popular idea of the harrenness and powerty of the country. Take, for instance, as apricols, isosme, wine, until olives and lolive od, farley, wheat, folsoe q potash, woul, and lades, and the surplus amount shipped yearly from the country reaches as high as several nollion pounds for the leaf the products named. To these should be added the thousands of cattle and shorp that are shipped to Egypt (although) the Turkish government tries to prevent this afar as pessibles, and the vast quantity of now dicthat is sent to Europe. (This idd Syria toric and runned and fought over as it has been a to or too sand years, with all its wild monictions, and deep garges, and square unless of sole. of cock, and deserts and desolation and wreteloelbosbandry, is still comparatively a ferfile and productive haid, as its yearly products alimidon't shows.

amount. But that fact is not considered. The farmer is obliged to pay taxes for that amount every year, even though his crops fall far below it, or, as sometimes happens, if they have failed altogether. The result is, that a year seldom passes when the farmer is not in distress.

Take as another instance, the

which do not begin to bear until long after they are planted; but every tree is taxed yearly, whether it bears or not. The consequence is, that no new dive orchards are planted. The man who should do it, would be made bankrupt by the taxes he must pay on the trees long before they had begun to produce any fruit at all, If the crops are poor and the farmer cannot fory his tax, soldiers are sent and the unia's goods me taken and sold, and his family left thereby, perhaps, in destribution. The whole system of Turkish faxation, including their customshouse regulations, is one of bribery, robbery, and extertion, oppressive to the people, and minous to the government.

BE KIND, BOYS

OU are made to be kind, logs—generours, magnammous. If there is a boy in school who has a club-food, don't let han know you ever saw it. If there is a poor boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy, assign from some part of the grone which does not require running. If there is a hungry one, give him a park of your dunier. If there is a dail one, help him to get his lesson. If there is a bright sac, be not onvious of him; for it one boy is proud of his balrate, and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more falent than be-Lore. Ha Larger or stronger hay has improdyou, and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show, by their countenances, how nowle better it is than behave a great fist.

The Brethren never could see how a bit of bread and a sip of wine, taken before dinner, could constitute any supper, much less the Lord's Supper, hence they practice the Fect-washing, the Lord's Supper, and the Communion, all in connection, and in the night, as the Lord. instituted them, and as Paul received it of the Lord, and delivered it to the Corinthians.

The Brethren practice the salutation if the holy kiss; because, five times commanded by the apostles in their letters to the saints—three times by Paul, and twice by Peter. From all the various salutations practiced among the various nations of the earth, the Lord chose this to be the manner in which his followers should salute one another. It contains, in it, the tenderest expression of love known among men. The tenderest mother, in every nation, kisses her little. darting. one. So the Lord knew, that in every nation, his true followers would have an inward love one for another, that would willingly find an outward expression one to another, in the dearest token of love known to the race, and he has, therefore, not only granted them the privilege of expressing their love, one to another, but five times commanded it.

The elders of the Brethren church, anoint sick members with oil in the name of the Lord, when they call for them to do so: because, so commanded by the Holy Spirit, James 5; 14. "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of fioth shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him." Here are three things required, and three things promised. I. To call for the elders of the church, 2. To pray over him, 3. To anoint him with oil in the name of the ford. The three things promised are, 1. To be saved, 2. To be raised up. 3. If he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. They anointed many with oil that were siek; and healed them." Mark 6: 13.

It stands every one maland desiring to be saved, to do the best he knows, and the Brethren cannot see any safer course to pursue than simply to obey all the requirements of the New Testament, in all their simplicity; believing that the better we succeed in doing this, the better we will grow in grace, and the knowledge of the truth, and the greater will be our power for good.

Here is where we five. Examine our house carefully; compare it with yours; and if you are convinced that it is safer, come over. Thousands have come, and yet there is room for more,

WHY DO THE SISTERS NOT BREAK THE BREAD OF COMMUNIONS

BY W. P. SELL.

ITHE above is a question often asked by brethren and sisters. I will say, (a) Theodoret, says, "Brugham charges En- that I am perfectly satisfied with the in barmony with the Word of God. By the breaking of the bread, is represented the broken body and emelfied Sayior, and since the Savior was erucified by man alone, and not by the woman, it looks consistent with the Word of field, for the brethren to break the brend. The Savior says, "as oft as ye cut this brend, we do show the Lord's death till he come." All take part in cating, hence all show his death.

There is some testimony in Paul's first letter to Timothy, 2: 44, I wish to bring to bear in favor of the above. Paul says, $^{\circ}\mathrm{Adam}$ was not descrived, but the way man being deceived was in the transgression." Adam was not deceived, but because he loved his wife, he partook of that which was given him by her, hence the way to the tree of life, was opened. to him by his wife. Christ was born of awoman the very part that brought the evil mon mankind.

Man has nothing to do in this matter, yet he aceded a Savior, and the benefits of divine favor as much as the woman. Broshien, I submit the above to your judgment, if you think that theremight largery reorishment for the rore mind to digest, and would afford good and wholesome thoughts, you can give it a place in the paper.

Orac people must not forget the importance of contributing to the support of the Danish Mission. The mission is now in a presperous condition and should be well sustained. It would be well to bring the matter before the different District Meetings, through which the various congregations could be arged to do their part towards delraying the expenses of the mission. Brethren and sisters, let us keep the work nowing.

Ar look over fifteen hundred years to write the Bilde. From Moses, who wrote the first book, to John, whicewrote the Revelation, was a long period of time. More than thirty-live persons helped to write it. Some were shepherds, some hirmers, some fishermen, one a tent-maker, some kings, some judges, some princes; some were learned, some were unlearned; and yet all agree in what they wrote, hecause guided by the same Spirit.

BROTHER R. H. Miller's article on Sundayschools, published in this issue, deserves a carefal reading. After reading it do not set up the ery, "something new," for the method of instructure children, as advocated by him, is as odd as the church itself. It is time the Brethgen were forming their attention more in that direction. Brother Miller promises other articles on this subject, and we trust to see a general awakening up among our people. Of late, we have made children's meetings a speciality. and it is encouraging to see how the little folks enjoy the preaching, and we tell you it makes smae of the older ones feel good. That which the young people can understand, because of its simplicity, can be understood by those who are older. We need more Bible-schools adapted to the wants of the young — schools in which the Bilde is taught in all its original purity.

The temple, which stood on Mt. Moriah when the Savior was on earth, was not the temple built by Solomon. Solomon's temple was destroyed about five hundred and eightyeight, years before Christ, and the nation itself carried into empliyity. Fifty-two years after this, the relatilding of the temple was commenced, and was completed five hundred and fifteen years before Christ, or about seventy-three years after the destruction of the former temple. In breadth and height it was twice the size of Sidomen's. In the time of Herod this temple had become much decayed, and he undertook the repairing of it, which work occupied forty-six years. John 11: 20. Strictly speaking, it was not a new edilice, but rather a complete repairing of the second temple. In this temple Judas. threw down the pieces of silver, and not in Solomon's temple, as has been supposed.

There is going the newspaper rounds, an article, stating that in Pennsylvania a sick woman was taken into ice cold water, immersed three times after the custom of the German Baptists, then tainfed and was supposed dead. She was then wrapped in blankets, carried to a house, and after several hours' work, was brought to consciousness, though it took much longer to thaw out her haif, which was a mass of ice. Now, we have no faith in such glaring assertions. They are published for mere effect, and when once investigated, are usually found to be without foundation. When our renders see such in secular, or any other kind of papers, it is best to pay no regard to them, for our neceple generally have sense enough tocknow how to hardle and care for sick persons who are baptized. Amowing this, we can rest assured that they will do their work right, and to the

Mr. Judson, a learned Baptist historian, says; "Immersion, however, maintained its ground antil the middle of the seventeenth century when the Westminster Assembly of Diving voted, by a majority of one, that immersion and sprinkling were indifferent. Previously to that period, the Esptists had formed churches a different parts of the country; and having al. ways seen infants, when Jacptized, taken in the hands of the administrator, and laid under water, in the baptismal font, and not having much if any, communication with the Baptists on the continent, they thought, of course, that a candidate for baptism, though a grown person should be treated in the same manner, and lad backward under the water. ANOINTING THE SICK.

IN a late number of the Battle Flag, Mr Webber, speaking against the ancinting of the ack with oil in the name of the Lord, says: when the miraculous healings ceased, the custom of anomaing with oil, connected with it, ceastone of also. The Roman Catholics practice the oil monding, and call it 'extreme metion,'. The Monmons, Advents, and Tunkers keep up a smilar supersistion. However, we think that it is eminerally person to pray for the recovery of the sigh, through peers of the means. Many persons, doubtless are now living in answer to prayer."

If " miraculous healings " have entirely "ceased how does it happen that "many persons, doubtless, are now living in answer to prayer?" If there are persons " now living in answer to prayer," why reject the apostolic order of anointing the sick with oil in the name of the Lord?

James says; "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anothting him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him." Jas. 5: 14, 15. Why have confidence in "the prayer of faith," and yet reject the anointing, which was commanded in connection with it? If we must do away with the anomating because "miraculous healings ceased," why not do away with "the prayer of faith?" Why should it be "eminently proper to may for the recovery of the sick, through the use of means" and yet reject what the Lord

Why call it a "superstition?" Did James teach superstitions? " Was it a "superstition" when James wrote? if not, when did it become a "superstition?" Is the anointing with oil, in the name of the Lord, any more of a "superstition" than to " pray for the recovery of the sick, through the use of the means?" If so, why? SOMETHING ABOUT SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

THEIR effect on the church is a matter of no 1 little importance. It may be good or it may be evil. The popular Sunday-school is an institution half way between the church and the world. It is a kind of separate or distinct in-litation to itself. Though professing to feach Scriptural truth, it does that with so much latitude, so much liberty, and on such general terms, that the church is considered a very different institution from it.

The popular Saldarth school, to be acceptable with all, must leave out, or keep silent on many things the Scriptures teach and the church holds sacrod. How could such a school be a benefit to the church? Would it not rather be an injury? For if any truth he left out in Sald ath-school teaching, the children are then learned to consuler that truth of but little, if any, importance. Every truth of the Gospel, everything held sacrod by the church, must be twight in the Sabbath-school to make it a beneffeto the church. We say this because it is a growing evil in Salibath-schools to give latitude enough to phence atl. What is taught in Sale both school is of as much inquotance, if not more, than what is taught in the church; for the way children are taught when young, they will hisely go when they are old. It all the treas a the Gospel, as held by the church. come of our lacthion of pose it.

The popular Sabbath-school is too far from hymns, and our tunes suited to them. As they to tangle them. It is easier to earn than to the church to do it much good: it is too near stres and there is a vast difference between the world. If children are brought up and army and hoarding. There is such a thing as taught in the Sabbath-school just like the world, the by giving; but to hoard for selfish pur- they will then require a church to be like the Policy is not saving in a Bible sense. Do not world before they will accept it; for the tendenpermit your loops to loaf in town. If you live ey avidently is that the church becomes like the the country, keep them at work, and when Subhath-school that teaches its children. If they go to town, give them business to attend the Saldath-school has picnics, festivals, and all Let them begin early to do business for the vanities of the world, it will train the chilroll, at i learn valuable lessons. Be manly to- dren to them, and they will want a church of the same kind. Such a Saldouth-school will tend to pull the church over to the world, and it has seldom failed to do so; for the training of the children is making the church, whether in the Sabbath-school or out of it.

To benefit the church the Sabbath-school must be brought nearer to it. The primitive order in the church was to make the teaching of children a church work. That is the best plan ever known, though it has been sadly neglected. The Sabbath-school, as a separate institution from the church, will fail in doing what is needed to be done for our children, unless it is brought nearer the church than often is done. What we mean here, is this: that in the Saboath-school, as we have often seen, the teaching is only a kind of morality the world can accept as readily as the church. The singing, a kind of glee music as well, if not better, suited to the world than the church. The school, a kind of pastime with nothing more solemn or sacred than worldly people fully enjoy. Such a Sabbath-school is too far from the church to be of much benefit to it. For such a school will generally take the back seats and take but little, if any part in singing in church; in fact, they feel like the church is a very different institution from the Sabbath-school, and no connection between them; hence they have as little thought or interest in the church as if there was no Sabbath-school at all.

When we say we want a Sabbath-school nearer the church, we mean one that teaches the same things; one that sings the same; oue that not only reads and studies the Scriptures, but with the same sacred object and feeling of reverence; one that would teach the children to feel that the church, like all the truths of the Gospel, was for them; one that would teach them to love the church as well as the Sabbathschool, or even better; to love its songs, its prayer, its teaching, and feel such interest in the church that they would want the front seats. there as well as in the Sabbath-school; one that would teach them to love the church and all its sacred truths, - more than the vanities and pleasures of the world.

We will notice some things further that tends to make the Sabbath-school too much like the world. One is the use of other books beside the Bible. This separates it more from the church, and brings it more under the influence of popular sentiment. It should use the same books the church uses; that would bring it nearer the church. Another thing is the music, and probably there is nothing else has more tendency to separate the Sabbath-school from the church than its music. Singing is a part of divine worship and has been much abused and turned from its sacred use. The importance of it is not fully approximated by the clinich. The singing in the church is almost a matter of chance, every one selecting such tunes, and singing as it suits them. We have taken much pains in selecting hymns, three revisions probably, to loave the best of hymns, but almost nothing in selecting suitable tunes. On accound of this neglect on our part, others have given us our music, and often such as seem to be of the world is chosen—one class for the church, another for the Sabbath-school.

Our church should have its music as it has its hymns. The times are as important as the liymins, and should be selected with as much care, and suited to all the wants of the church. Why he so careful about the hymn and so careless about the time? If we have hymnis for certain occasions we should have turns sinted to the same occasion.

You should have nearly half our prescions, our sindy to illustrate and prove your dectrine to are suited to almost every condition of the old, so should they suit every condition of the young. Our music should be varied and suited to the young as well if not even more than the old. In fact, the young should be taught and depended upon to do nearly all our singing in church. Often the singing is done by a few of the old, the young take no part in it, no preaching snited to them, no hymns for them, they sit as strangers in the farther end of the church, because it seems little is intended for them to do until they get old. It is not a wonder, that under such circumstances, some of the Brethren's children should go to other churches, or the world. When their spiritual instruction and wants are not supplied in our own church, they will often go some where else.

Though we have been talking about Subbathschools, we are not as strong in favor of them as some, because we believe there is a better thing than they are; that is the primitive practice of the church, where the children and the young were taught in the church in their regular meetings for worship. It was then a church work to teach the children, and it was the first work in their meeting; the children did the singing. They were not neglected then, every thing in the first service was suited to them; it was their meeting, their preaching, their singing, and the prayer was for them, That is the reason why so many came to the church in its primitive days; the church used all the means of grace God has given to save their children. Their training was not a separate institution from the church, but one of the main features of its work.

Let those who cannot well consent to Sunday-school, accept a better way, an older and more successful way, observed in the primitive church. We are commanded to bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and how could there be a better way, or a better place than in the church? We do not mean to baptize them first, that is not the commound, but bring them up in the purture and admonition of the Lord. First, how can that he done in the church, or any where else withont the work is adapted to their condition and wants? The Savior talks about children; he talks to the young man, and the damsel. The apostles talk to young men, and damsels, they talk about Jesus when he was twelve years old. Paul talks to Timothy when a young man. about him knowing the Scriptures from a child. about his mother and his grandmother teaching a child. If these inspired men would thus talk about these children publicly, talk to these young people about what their mother and grandmother did, and about their childhood, cannot you, brethren, with the same spirit come down to the young, find something suited to their condition? And further, if these inspired postles could do so publicly, — tell of Jesus when a child, tell of the damsel as well as the woman, of the young man and the child, as well as the old,—can you not publicly speak to them? Teach them in the church as well as the apostles in the Gospel, publicly, when he says, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord?" If David could say publicly, "Come yechildren, hearken unto me," can you not in the same sport, and in the same public manner in the church, teach the children, too? We believe it is your duty as it was theirs. If David, in his edd age, would call the children around him, and teach them publicly the fear of the bord, may you not call them around you in the church, and teach them there with as much or even more special care than you would teach the old.

Two things are indispensable in teaching the young. One is kindness toward them; without that you cannot draw them to you or the church. Friendship and kinduess have an influence over them lasting and deep. Coldness and rigid indifference toward, the young drive them from you, and from the church. Scolding for every little fault, will soon discourage children, and destroy your influence over them. Kindness We should do more than we have in the and triendship can cure their faults much better, and win them over to you, to the church, and old people, turn your effort a little, study to prove, illustrate and adapt it to the young, you can soon see a change in them. If you will adapt every thing in your meeting to the wants of the young, the singing, the preaching, the praying, and even the place where they sit, giving them the nearest front seats, you will see a change soon; you will have good order without trouble, you will soon have the young taking an interest in the church, in the meeting, in the preaching, and in the Gospel. That will give prosperity as in the primitive days of the church, because that was the primitive order.

One reason why so many of our young people take so little interest in religion, and so much interest in the world, is because the church just lets them alone, or rather tries but little to suit any thing in the church to them, while the world suits every thing to them. We have often heard members complain that their children were so much inclined to run after the world. One reason for that is, the church has not gone after your children as it should. It has just let them alone, or nearly so; sometimes it has given them a little reproof or scolding for being so much after the world, which often has a tendency to make them worse. If you want to save your children, persunde the whole church to go after them with all the means of grace turned to work on the young, all adapted to their condition. The church can do more than your individual efforts. Often the mother weeps because her children do not come to Christ; she would give them every inducement in her power, and turn all her labors in that direction, but how feeble they are, compared with the work of the whole church. And more feeble still, when the church shows little concern for the young, and sometimes a rigid coldness instead of love and kindness,

This idea of letting children run with the world, and in all the ways of the world till they are grown, then convert them back to the church, though common now, was not the course of the primitive church, and should not be now. The remedy is not in the hamls of the individual member, but in the church, and its whole service must be turned; all its means med to win the young to Christ. We don't mean that any truth in the Gospel be changed, but all the means of conversion, and silvation be used by the church, in such a way that they reach the young. That the young bemade the special object of all the means of sulvation, This will give the church an influence over them, and keep them under its control instead of the world leading them.

To show that we are not alone in the sentiments here offered we will give part of the derision of A. M., in 1789. "Inasmuch as the Word can be brought nearer to the hearts of children in a simple conversation or catechization, or however it may be called, than otherwise in a long sermon, so that they apprehend the Word of divine truth, * * * * hence we admonish in heartfelt and humble love all our in God moch beloved fellow members, dear fathers and mothers of families, as also pasters and teachers, our in God much beloved fellow laborers, * * * * that they would use all possible diligence, that our dear youth might be provoked to love God, and to appreciate his word from their childhood. Do not spare any labor and toil to convince them by our teaching, and by our life, not after the manner, which is almost too common now-a days, where the young are made to learn something by heart, and then rehearse it in a light (thoughtless) manner, then are permitted to go on in a life as thoughtless as before -but that they may give themselves up to God in an earnest life."

Here we have the old brethren, nearly a hundred years ago, in A. M., giving the true prinende of teaching our children; making it the duty of the pastors and teachers, as well as others, that they teach the children not in long sermons, but in a manner suited to them. They eay, thise all possible diligence not to spare any tool and labor to convince them by our teaching," that the teaching should not be done mac light and thoughtless manners. To fully carry out this decision of 1789, would be to alopt the primitive practice of the church in the day of Clement, Chrysostom, Bassil, and others of the Greek fathers, who made it, their first great work to teach the children.

Hard Times-What They Affect,

ARD times!"-Yes the times are hard. We hear the cry of "hard times" daily When we ask for subscribers to our periodicals the cry is repeated. Let us see what is affected by the "bard times." We go to the people's (even Brethren's houses), and we look around, and find fine pictures open the wall, fine farmiture, tables loaded with bixuries, and many imnecessary things. Their clothing is as time as ever. Surely this does not look like hard times We look upon center tables, find political papers and magazines there, but the times are too hard to take a church paper! Ah! yes, here is what the hard times affect. They are too hard to affind spiritual food,

Not long since we heard a conversation like this: "We can't afford to have a series of extra meetings this Winter. We can't accomplash anything without strangers, and we can't ufford to get them; and then our coal bills are to pay, as times are too bard," Upon hearing these remarks thoughts like these come to my mand: Do not sinners need salvation in hard times? Is the church justifiable in folding its arms and sitting at case in hard times? Does not the prophet's language apply as well in hard times as good times, when he says, "wor to them that are at ease in Zion?" Did the apostle only labor in easy times? Did not Christ, our blessed Master, labor at all times, for the salvation of sinners, whilst, on earth? My Table teaches me he did. Should not his professional followers do likewise? But the ode cloat service provident, is the times are baid, of our carmship must be gratified first, and then it there is any thing left, we will devote a tow penales to the bord's cause. Self requires. all and the Lord takes care of his own corse, and givers go to bell without any effort, or our part, for their salvation. My Brethren, these things aught not to be so. Let us not love sleep, but awake to righteousness,

T being too cold and stormy to take the little ones out to meeting, I thought I might pass the time in a good cause by penning a few lines for the BRETHREN AT WORK. I do not know but what they will serve to fill the waste basket, if nothing else. Well, if they go there, I'll try again.

Now, a little about our Master's cause. We are, as far as I know, in union and fellowship. We had one addition on New Year's day, and two since then. As that is a good beginning, I hope the work may continue, thus bringing into the fold of Christ many that are now sporting on the barren mountains of sin and folly, The Master is doing his work; a great many has he lain low in the last four or five weeks, There has been considerable sickness this Winter. But the Lord does all for the best; so we must leave it all with him and be content.

Dear Brethren:-

FTEN has my soul been made to rejoice at the rich adminition of our dear brethren who are standing upon the walls of Zion, declaring the truth and the unscarchable riches of God to a dying world, through the columns of your devoted paper; often would my soul almost sink in despair and I be made to wish that I was back in the flesh pats of Egypt, for want of some brother or sister's admonition. At times I would feel as if all alone, and no one to cheer me. But the blessed thought, " not all alone." Jesus says God is faithful, who will not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able; but will, with the temptation, also make a way to escape, that we may be able to

I have been much strengthened in reading the experiences of our brethren and sisters in their trials and afflictions, and I have taken conrage to go on, let assail me what may-! will still stand up and fight the enemy of our souls. Jesus has promised to be with as in the sixth frial and in seventh he would not forsake or leave us.

Within the last year, in this and adjoining meighborhoods, a great many persons, young and old, have passed from time to elernity. Most of these persons were near seventy years old, the time alloffed to man, but few were prepared to mertificath. Thus we see, when perple put off Christ in youth that when they get old and are near the grave, their hearts have grown so hard that they seldom prepare for eternity. By this we can see that it we put off Christ while young, and when be calls, that he may put us off in old age and death. Sinner, if you read this, I say, do not procrustmate, but hister to return, for the night will come, and may be near at band, wherem no man worketh, that is the might of death; and if you are not prepared to used the Brobegeoom, you will have to hear that lamentable voice, "Thepart from me, ye workers of iniquity. I never knew you."

My futher has just returned from a journey over the Blue Ridge mountains. He has fold ing something very curious, which he bearned while over there. He was told, that there is a divide in the mountains running from the Shenandoali river equate across the intoutions for about four or five unles, which at first was only visible, but now the space in the earth is about three feet wale and one sale, gradually stuking down. The was also informed that no boftom had been reached yet, that persons had talon ropes and chains and spheol them together but failed to reach the bortom of the crevice,

The propheses are fast fulfilling, and it book as it it would not be long unful. Christ, would make his second advent into the world and to declare that time shall be no more.

I begin to see, from a scriptural standpoint, that things are beginning to be, and are already. so in some things, like in the days of Noah, while the ark was building, that the people were marrying, buying and selling, and getting gum; so also shall it be in the days of the Sonof Man. People do not head the Gospel truth. but are running after sects, a needs and isms, frying to crowd out Gaspel light.

In the eight months of which I have been a render of the BRITINGS AT WORK, I have counted the accessions to the church, through the columns of your paper, which is ishout seventeen hundred and fifty. Thus we see that the Gospel truth is spreading. I like the way the Brethren out West are holding meetings. From what I can read in my paper, I think they are coming nearer the apostolic order.

Joy and Triumph In the Camp-By the Waterside - Lord's Day Labor - Baptism by Night-Visit to Lafayette Church.

 ${f D}_{-}$ and in her temple, we shally assemble. Our [neeting continues, and the rock is breaking; tears are falling from the penntent, and the saints express pay. Prayers, deep with teeling, were offered in behalf o h struggling wanderer, and it was soon evident that a victory would be won. God heard our prayers. Cold orations were disdained; the burning lavaascended from that volcano of grief and sorrow within that pent up soul, and the victory was gained; a soul was free from the fetters of sin, and entered the camp of the saints, according to the divine plan, rejoicing in the God of his salvation. To the waterside, we repaired and lifted up our souls to God in behalf of one another-the penitent and the sinner. Samts shed tears of joy, and sinners, tears of sorrow and grief, over the returning ones. The meetings continued; renewed attacks were made along the line; another was relieved from the enemy's grasp; and, to-day, three more souls were received into the church by Christian baptism. This gave us renewed energy and sufficient momentum to press forward and contime the labors in the Master's cause.

To-day is Lord's day, and on ward we go to our different stations of labor. Brethren W. C. Teeter and E. Bosserman continued the service at the Old church; brother Jacob Witmore, at Pleasant Ridge; the writer, at the Baptist church. We had a large audience and deliberated on the subject, "Jesus," Matt. 1: 21, —his advent and mission. Thus we endeavor. to feed the hungry souls, and obey the command of our Master, in preaching the Gospel. In the evening we re-assembled in the Old church to engage in the closing exercises of the present series of meetings. We preached the word, as best we could, to a large and interesting nothence. At the close of the exercises we gave another invitation, and a dear sister came forward and requested baptism "in the same hour of the night," The preliminary arrangements were made, and then we went to prayer, and then repaired to the waterside. If was the most impressive scene I over witnessed. The large andhence assembled with us, and while we led the dear penitent, down into the water, the most protound silence prevailed, and the twinkling stars from the upper deep looked down upon as like angelic sentinels, who has added much to the selemnity of the baptismal scene.' We then repaired to our homes, rejoining in God for his goodness and for the successful efforts which he granted nato us. Would say to my dear brother, Josse Calvert, our prayers were heard, and your labors were not in vam. Those two dear souls were reclaimed, the wheels of the church were unclogged, and the frints of our labors, six acressions by haptism. Praise God for his goodness.

To day I visited the Ladayette church, Allen county, Ohio. The Brethren thought it well to continue their meetings awhile longer. Brother Calvert labored for them one week, resulfing in nine abhitrous to the church. Brother D. Brower and the writer also labored a few days with them, with apparent good effect. In all, eleven accessions by baptism, one reclaimed. and one more applicant. The church is much built up and having a commodents house of worship, they feel that labor in the Masters cause will be more pleasant, and, modoubt, will elilam better results. To mismic success in the promotion of the cause, there must be union of sentament. From observations, we see that holy Christian affection, and trabernal love as measurably lost, among some Christians; and where this is the case, the power is lost, and the cause cannot prosper. Then, be insure success, the church must be an harmony and umon, moving along in one solul body against. the enemy sin. Success will be ones, the cause will prosper, souls will be caved and Godwill be glorified. Then, Christian, work, thy wintare will soon be over, when a rrown of one bright, eternal day S. T. THE ark of the bord is moving on. On the Sth of February we met in council. One young sister came out from the world and was baptized. On the 17th inst., we had our meeting to send out the annual visit. It was a very pleasant meeting. Upward of ningty members assembled together in the name of the Lord. On the 22ml we met again, the report of the visit being brought in; nothing serious was presented, for which we thank God. I believe there was joy in heaven among the angels, to see a wanderer return home, as one has been convinced that she was on the way to everlasting destruction; so she came out and desired to be imprized. Also, one was reclaimed. 1) EAUTIFUL, for situation, is Mount Zion; | May others follow their example before it is too late. GODS BUILDING.

BY J. S. MODIFFIL

Wal some one give us an explanation on I Cor. 3; 12, -13,

Who is the builder? What the material?

be saved yet so as by fire?

How shall a man's work he tried by fire? 4 If a man's work be larmed, how shall be

B. B. Whitner.

THE liest thing necessary, to the construction et a building, is its toundation. The solid #v. and dur doldy of a landing depends largely you that. The apostle says, I Cor. 3: 11, "For other foundation our no man lay than that is had which is Jesus Christ "

A boundariou necessarily implies a landing The loopling is doubtless the church. The apos the birther says, I Cor. 3: 9, "Ye are God's buildmy" Agam, "In whom ye are also builders together for a hat italian of God, through the Spin [2, Eph. 2, 22]. Again, "Ye also as lively. Stop -, are built up a sparitual house." I Peter

1 A Lodovig more implies builders. The Sodair are, doubtless mansters of the Gospel The mostle calls laurself at "wase master-foulder." 10 or 3: 10. If Paul was a builder, so were the her a trespestles, and their successors in all ages of the church, auto whom is committed the with of recommination. They, in a measure, stand in Christ's stead . Through their mistramentally strivers are brought into the church, my lambs;" "Feed my sheep," John 21: 15, 16, Thus Christian character is formed, till our whole nature is changed into the image of God's dear Son, and we us lively stones are dressed and polished here, in the quarry, by skilled workman, (builders) till we fit an appropriate place in the beavenly landing.

2. A building implies material. By materiof, we understand, is meant, the elements that form character. If the material be good, our character will be good, but if the material behad, so will our character be.

Paul compares good material to gold, silver, precions stones, which will pass through the tire manijoted-rather joirned; while ladeharnoter, or lad material, is compared to wood, logy, stubble; combistible matter, that is easily destroyed by fire. The undecial forming good character, might be summed up thus: honesty, truthfulness, femperance, charmy, patience, parverfulness, apright conversation, lumility, and whatever things are lovely, and of good report; white the material forming had character, is dishonesty, inischood, slander, pride, infemperance, unthankinliness, anothery, fernicition profamity, etc.

3 Tried by fire. The word fire, is from Pur Pures, and by Greenfield, as applied to 1 Co. 15, 15, has a trapical, and emblemotical means ring, signifying discord, dissension. This, or all probability is the meaning of the apostle, for the church whom he addressed the language to, had gotten into troudde, and divisions had adetained among them. One said, "Lam of Paul; another, I am of Apollos; and another, of Cephas," and secon. The apostle meant to convey the idea, frat the fdanting and care of churches, was the unnisters work; and in this work, if the minister was not careful, material world, or might get in, that would in the end prove de structive to the church, and end like the church at Corinth, in divisions, and contentions. The jointy of God's Wood will develop, or throw to the surface such corcuption sooner, or later, like the corruptions in the Cornithan church; that the wood, hay and stubble, in the church, may be separated from the grood material. In this way, churches have been tried ever since the intraduction of Christianity. The churches baying the most gold, silver, precious stones, having been fried, were found faithful, and remain-1 ed like the Philadelphia Church; while those churches having mainly wood, hav, stubble, like the Landicean church, have been destroyedgone down in all ages of the church, and will to the end of time-were consumed by the fire of God's Word. The language of the apostle. may, however, also apply to the final judgment; but we know that churches are largely blessed already in this life, or forsaken, as the material is good or bad.

4. How are we succeed by five, if our works are burned?

This language, we think has direct beforence to the ministry, i.e., building-building for the Lord. It is possible for a minister to be a good. man—a converted man; and to plant a church, or churches, and care for them, yet error may be introduced, which at the time may pass oneperceived, or things may be tolerated, and even encouraged, like the party sparit in the Cormthian Church, that in the end will prove its destruction. Not that ministers willed it so in the beginning, but almost imperceptably error gamed ground, till the whole church was leavened by it. In this way, a numster may be saved, and his work be lost, by the fire or test] of God's Word

We do not mean that all of such minister's works would be last. Some of the churches he pharted might be saved. John, the revelator, planted the Landreem Church, as well as the Philadelphia Church, yet his work on the Lacedicean Church was lost, while he was saved, as well as the Philadelphia Church - In the Bible, [ed, "you gather all the boys and girls eight and and are nonvisited with the aread of life, the the word of it also compared to now, as well as ten years old in Toledo, and I will guarantee We to of God Says Christ to Peter, "Feed to a hommer that breaketo the rock in pieces," that every one is a true immersionist, but let to him who gets her for a wife,

When the term fire, is used, it has reference to them hear you men preach until they get the penetrating, and parifying power of God's Word. In this figurative sense, we can understand the apostle's language to the church at

A WARNING.

Simers, the voice of God regard; His merey speaks to-day: Hee dis you by His sov'reign Word, From site's destructive way, take the rough sea that eaunof rest, You live deviad of peace; A theorsand strings without your breast, Deprive your souls of case,

Your way is dark, and leads to hell, Why will you persevere? Can you hower and darkness dwell, Shot up in black despair?

Why will you in the erooked ways Of site and Jolly go? In panyon travel all your lays, To respect that were,

Beileer, thou hast a soul to save, Thy sins, how high they mount; What does beyond the grayer How statels that dark account?

Death enters and there's no defense; This time there's made care fell. He'll in a moment call thee bence, To bestvere or to hell.

Thy desic perhaps the chiefest care. Shall crawling worms consume; But ah! destruction stops not there, Suckills beyond the fouds.

Toolay the Gospel call, to-day, Sinner, it speaks to you. Let every one forsake his way, And mercy will cashe. Selected by C. U. Hybrit γ_{ν}

TWO BAPTIST PREACHERS SILENCED

BY I. J. MOSENMERGER.

M/ IHLE in the passenger room, waiting for the train at Toledo. Ohio, we fell into conversation with a Baptist numster, who was not long in holding asserting that he preached jurrely the doctrine of Christ, and his apostles, to which we immediately replied, that we were under the impression, that he preached neither, referring him to the clearand undeniable scriptural texts on "amounting;" "the kiss of charity; "laying on of hands etc." At that moment came up his brother minister, Mr. Eddy, whom I received, having met him before. He then remarked, there is a man that believes in trine immersion alone as haptism." I replied that the was correct.

I then imprired, do you as ministers of the Gospel deny that the language of the commission, "laptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Chost," reprices three actions?

Said they, "We do."

By them stood a bright boy of about ten summers. Imquired, "is that your hoy?" "H is," said one of the mindsters. Said I, "sonuy please step this way; we want you to settle this question." The bright boy stepped me with alaerity. I then remarked; "sonny suppose your ia, having been up street, and made a purchase of goods, and on his return you would inquire and say; Tapa where did you purchase those goods'? To which he would reply, T purchased them of Brown, and of Ray, and of Jones, how many parchases would your paper have made? "Three" said the boy, "Very well sonny; now our Savior says that we should be baptized 'in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and, of the Holy Ghost.' How many actions in that Juptisma" "Three," said the boy.

Patting the boy on the shoulder, I remarked; 'somny you are all right on frine unmersion,stick facit," I, furning fiethe minister remark-twenty years old, and then they with you, cannot see how that language requires three actions,"

CHARACTER.

HY E. STIVER.

AWARACTER muy be defined as the resultant O arising from the fusion of the various trains of thought and habus, which, through a longer or shorter time, have been followed.

Character, made up as it thus is of various and frequently hetreogeneous traits is of different lands, and between the njerght and noble character which obeits our admiration and calls forth our respect, by the cilidgence of its emanations, purity of purposes and the salutary efbeds which if ex-r's upon all who come withnotherrange of its influences, and the snuken and depayed character which presents so many elements of ladeousness, and so infects the surrounding atmosphere with the germs of moral death and degradation that these brought within the baneful range of its power, must possess the most undamnted fortified, lose they likewise particke of and assimilate a portion of the nexions elements with which they are brought in contact. There are many phases, or in other words, climinators in which commendado and non-commendable traits margle and comingle in varying proportions and constitute the basis for the almost infinite variety of actions and purposes which are constantly impelling mankind,

When we thus view character, and consider the nimest infinite influence it exerts one mankind, for weal and wee, ledly in time and the vast eternity beyond, we should consider the possession of a frue, moral, Christian character, the most priceless been that we could pusselily oldani. Yet alas! how elien is this great blessing regarded with body and thrown aside with uidifference, iciy, even sesen. But while we may desire to jussess a local so commendable, the question may arise, how are we to obtain it? Can it be bought with incorey or position in hie? No; none of those things can procure it for us, and it can only be obtained by long continued effort and mental discipline, it is only beginning arly in life, and persistently and unremittingly adhering to true and noble purposes, burning good halafs and clinging to them, that any excellence in this direction can be attained.

In view of these facts, ras facts I verily behere they are a I would say to all, and especadly those entering upon life's journey, guard your thoughts and actions with a religious real, so that nothing impairs and laise may form a constituent of your intellectual and spirimal being, remembering that every thought, deed and action, no matter how insignificant. has a bearing on your present and eternal destina-

THE ROARING LION.

BY D. A. LICHTY.

ELDER Stephenson (Soul Sleeper) from Chicago, is now holding a se from Chicago, is now holding a se ries of meetings on Pony Creek, Brown county, Kausas, under pretense of reviewing the ground, covered by brother C. Forney, a few weeks since, on the doctrine of immersion, the Lord's Supper and feet-washing. It is a well authenticated fact that the result or brother Forney's efforts was not a mere tacit acquiescence on the part of the audience; but testimonies more tangible and powerful have spoken in behalf of the word of truth. The immediate consequence was, that at least four intelligent young men and women have boldly and fearlessly made the noble confession, and were forthwith "baptized into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." This was actually "bearding the lion in his den" at a place where both Soul Sleeper and Infidel elements largely abound, and both these have recently assumed the more violent and fe rocious part of the lion - hence this fearful roaring. There is evidently a cause for this, and what is it? manifestly be cause the Brethren still contend for the faith "once delivered unto the saints," and are willing to perpetuate (by precept and example) the immutable commandments of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. This is what hurts. This is the everlasting eyesore.

Does it hurt you, Mr. S., to see us walk in the simplicity of the Gospel? You cannot well get around the sharp points yourself, with your well-studied logic and barefaced sophistry, neither will your venomous slangs, vituperations and immendos redeem you nor the cause you have esponsed.

We will now proceed to notice a few of his wild assertions on trine immerson. Hequates a little from Polycarp, Clement, Neamder, Origen and Tertullian lays them on the altar, passes judgment and condemns them in omnibus and brands them as heretical. The time was when our opponents were willing to test the issue entirely on the writings of the early Christian fathers, but lately they discover that it proves too much for them, them as had as the Apoerypha, and sums some pretty had ones."

The only point he tried to make was mean the mode of lequism.

Any candid scholar will concole that he referred to the questions enumerated in the text, to wit: Will you renounce the devil, &c.? This then is what was more than the Lord commanded. must therefore be very bad to renounce the devil. It certainly is bad for the devil; but not for the individual. "Re sist the devil and he will flee from you. The conclusion of the whole matter hinges on this point: If Tertullian proves anything, he proves trine immersion and nothing more, and there is no dodging the issue. And as he made no attempt in his lengthy discussion, to disprove trine immersion, either by the writings of the early Christian fathers, nor by the writings and teaching of Christ and the apostles, we dismiss this subject by noticing a few of his quotations, and remarks. To-wit: "Justin Martyr says nothing of trine immersion. Clement makes no mention in all his writings about haptism, much less trine immer-

Origen spoke of infant laptism which is older than trine immersion. Tertul lian is the first who ever introduced trine immersion. Then be comes down with the following clinches: "I hope that ignorance will screen the uniority of the great Dunkard church, who number their membership by the hundred thousand, who hold to the blasphemous does trine of trine immersion, because they do it through ignorance."

Not much ignorance Mr. S. We ask no favors, sympathies or intercessions from you. We know what we are doing, therefore we do it boldly and fearlessly, in the face of all the mockery and hase vituperations you may bring to bear against the ordinance. We mean, furthermore, to perpetuate it as long as the world stands, unless we also apostatize. I have but few comments to offer Clement are silent on trine immersion, please tell me how loudly they speak of Scal Sleeperism. You said when you sleep, your soul sleeps, therefore you are therefore, now it is heresy. Mr. S., makes a Soul Sleeper. Do Justin Martyr or it up in these words, "I never read a your doctrine is erroneous according to more silly book in my life than the your conclusions. Probably Soul Sleep-Apoerypha, and dear knows, I have read erism was not "enacted" (Tertullian) as early as that.

On the subject of the passever, he from Termillian; which reads something again exhausts all his resources, and lalike the following: "We ask the candis bors with commendable assiduity to date in the church, whether he will response that Christ did eat the passover nonnee the devil and his pumps (Mr. S., with his disciples in that upper chamber says he ought to say his pimper and his bin Jerusalem. It is much more the passover with his disciples." It was him." Matt. 26: 16. Read the follow yet in the meeting house, or in the coch state strange delusion. I imagined I could read to the 16th verse, and tell me whether appairant was asked by the administrast in the joggy valley, langing away at the trew not last twig was cut down, and when he approached the spot, to bug his game, behold it wasn't there. Just at this critical moment his monitor informed him that "they don't deny the possover, but deny it being on lawful time." This so disconcerted the speaker that he soon closed the meeting, and that rather ale raptly, stating that he was getting cold

On the following night he finished up the passover by reading various testimonies in reference to the preparation day. By this manipulation he tried to prove that Christ and his disciples celebrated the Jewish passover according to the law of Mosses, at least as far as time was concerned; but as the weekly Subbath, immediately followed the 14th or preparation day, therefore he insisted that facts are plain to the sincere Bible stuthe preparation had direct reference to the weekly Sabbath; without the most remote allusion to the paschal feast. But he made a complete failure, as well in this, as in all former attempts, to prove his assertion, and concluded by hanging it upon his own bare testimony.

FERT-WASHING.

The first point he aimed to make on this subject, was to rule it (unconditionally) out of "that upper chamber in Jorusalem, and drag it down to Bethany, to the house of Simon the leper—just two days before the Lord's Supper. Anyhody (not half so talented as is Mr. S_{α}) can prove that a supper was served at the house of Simon in Bethauy; but it requires the most indefatigable energies of a more talented logician than Mr Stephenson to demonstrate the fact that Christ washed any one's feet on this or easion. But it is quite clear, by the concurrent testumonies of Matt. 26: Mark 14: Luke 22: and John 12: that there was such a supper served at Simon's house. Was this the Lord's Supper! Did Christ serve this support 1 say no. This was Simon's supper, and Marthu served—and Lazarus also was a guest and Mary was there; she came very near ly doing what you tried to prove that on his proofs. If Justin Martyr and Christ did. She "anointed his feet with eintment and wiped them with her hair.' This is the nearest allusion any of the authorities make of feet-washing on this occasion. Here then is the conclusion of the whole matter. This supper took Clement say the soul sleeps? If not, then | place two days before the Lord's Supper, and not on the preparation day—in Beth any, not in Jerusalem; in the house of Simon the leper, and not in the upper chamber. At this supper Martha served, and not Christ. Lazarus and Mary also were present. Now, if Christ did wash the disciples' feet at Simon's supper, then he was more than a guest, and the questions of propriety and decorning would be involved, and it is left for Mr. S_{or} to say when and where he was to are three times immersed, answering misconstruction of language, and well stop; Can you prove that Simon the some what more than the Lord command a may be do so, when Nemone Controllies bost, and Mary. Martha and Lazavus, ed," and this "somewhat more," he place ente and the Bible on his side in the were not disciples? We pass on with reptible of, then dared to assert that brother Forney, Moore, Miller, or Stein tray his Master on this occasion; but that Testullian referred to two of these days must be assailed. Now he makes the he simply majorated with the chief prings when he said, "somewhat more," (unqualified affirmation that "the Dunks | priests to betray him. "And from that But it was doomed to hang on the elegard church denies that Christ did ent time, he sought opportunity to betray reasonable to suppose he had reference disgusting and at times ridiculous to see ling verse, which shows plainly that the to the questions asked the applicant while, him fighting an imaginary foe under a betrayal was yet in the future. Now church, as to the remunciations, and not, see his enemy whom he was hired to van, or the contract was executed? Then read to the mode of baptism. It is simply princh (Balann) away upon you ment-plot the 49 n verse, and can you conscienproposterous to dwarf that language to rain's heights, out of all harm's reach, tiously declare that Judas begraved his from whence they could behold, with Master at Simon's supper, over in Both Would Mr. S. dare to say that the junbedonded eyes, his maneuvering down any, two days before the passover! I who has be would be immersed that a general the Dunkard of such, until the ayour caused for it proves positively they has bold at might.

after the paschal supper (which you conceded was in Jerusalem) and not before. did the betrayal take place. In Gethse. mane's garden, and nowhere in or about Bethany.

It also proves that Judas not only be. traved his Master, but that he did not betray him at Simon's supper, but after the Lord's Supper, and that he (follows the narrative closely), betrayed him on the self-same night in which Christ serv. ed the paschal supper with the twelve, only, at least two days later than the time when he approached the chief priests - with "how much will ye give me" and about fifteen furlongs from the place where he gave the signal kiss, and that Christ washed the disciples' feet on the same night of his betrayal. These dent—the assertion of Mr. Stephenson that "feet washing is anti-bible"-to the contrary notwithstanding. Christ says, "If I, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet." This language is plain enough for the Brethren, and had be proven that he employed this language in Sunon's house-it would in no wise invalidate the divine injunction. But Mr. S., (with others) think if they can erowd feet washing out of Jerusalem, and place it in the house of Simon the leper. therefore it is no church ordinance. His conclusion is so insipid and wishy-washy that we are constrained to abandon it without further comment. But the Elder says that Christ did not mean that any one else should, observe, this injunction, save the apostles. He asks for testimony as to whether the apostles ever taught "feet-washing?" I will here ask him whether he can prove that they ever washed each other's feet! Then he says this was enjoined on the apostles on account of their aspirations, (because they asked him, "who should be greatest?") to teach them humility. Well, this is good logic, and what was good for them, may not come amiss to us. 1 will ask the Elder as to his aspirations. Does it ever occur to you, in your cogitations, and meditations, that, way over there, in the everlasting milleanium, you shall be rewarded with scepter and diadem to reign as king or priest! Then take a practical and apostolic lesson on humility; then reasoning from that hypothesis, those who have no aspirations higher than that of door-keeper in the house of the Lord, can dispense with it as inappropriate.

I think, in the epistolary writings you will find one of the apostles making reference to feet-washing. But Mr. 8. makes that of no consequence, because "it was an old widow sixty years old," and quotes from John 13, "He that is washed, needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit "Stephenson version is as follows: "He that is washed, needeth not save to wash his feet only, the rest is clean." New whom shall we believe! It is quite sickening to follow his dissertation on the spirit and intent of this feet-washing; but as I have gone for beyond my limit, I will close with the following, as another specmen of hissweeping assertions; he says Type naven't got a man in the United States, who believes that Christ meant for the apostles to trent feet washing therefore they never taught it." He further says, the great commission should read as follows: "Teach them to observe all thongs whatsoever I have command ed vor Hoctends."

COME HOME, POOR SINNER.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

A ME, for the gate is now open, That beautiful gate that is straight, The way is narrow, but sure,-Come, why do you tarry and wait?

Come, for the Savior is calling, He's calling you home to the sky; He'll give you a home with the blest, Then why will you tarry and die?

Come, for the Savior is pleading, He's pleading for you up on high: Come, for all things are now ready, Oh! why will you farry and die?

Coulc, for thy daylight is fading, Soon darkness will cover thy sky, And shut out thy chances for glory,-Oh, why do you farry and die?

Come and receive the salvation, That Christ to His people will give: Come and partake of it freely. And you shall eternally live.

Come and accept of the Savier, The Savier while reigns muon high; Come, and He'll give you a mansion. Then why do you tarry and the?

Come, while the Spirit is striving. And with its kind wooing comply: Facility will not always thus strive,-Oh? do not then tarry and die!

Come, while rich mercy is affered, And unto the Savior draw nigh; Come and accept of His Grepel, And do not thus tarry and die.

Come, and obey its injunctions, And with its kind teachings comply; Then you shall in heaven be blest, And dwell with your Savier on high.

WHERE OUR MINISTERS ARE.

BY CYLL'S BUCKER.

FTER a good deal of work, I have succeeded in getting out a list. from the Brethren's almanac, of ther places where our ministers work, and [1] was surprised, and no doubt many of my brothren will be, of the amount of work on our lambs. The large fields are to be cultivated. Some are ripe for i the sickle - ready for the harvest. In the six New England States our faith and practice was preached but once by two of our Brethren who preached in the State of Maine, which, however, 3id not yield the fruits desired.

In the Scale of New York, we have nominister. None in Delaware, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi nor Louisiana. The Western States are all represented except. Arkansas and Nevada. Thus we have 15 Sudes out of the thirty-eight of the Union where the Brethren do not preach.

Beginning with our native State, where the doctrine of the Brethren was first held forth on this continent, at Germantown, near the city of Philadelphia, more than a century ago, we have the counties, of which 32 are represented, illy looking at these figures, we can readily see that some brethren have be ally too much on hands. Such as Broth. Georgia, or doseph R. Long, in the large State of Texas; and those of our ministers, living alone in a county through out the different States. They need our prayers, and they need at least some, more than this, they need money to diet any other gift, except by misuse or 21 make them more free, and where the misdirection.

lassing are no sto settled, and well supplied with mantsters, they should go over the borders, or send some where help is needed. For if you look over the list, you will find that where the ministers are so thickly settled, they are not kept busy, then they put their heads together and a paper, or a school or something of the kind is started; for all men must have work. At such places there are frequently from two to four or five ministers while others must struggle alone. In places of four or five being at one place, they could have meeting at four or five places. But we will just leave off and say that something should he done, for one soul is worth more than the whole world, and there are millions yet to save in our United States.

THE REST OF THE PIOUS DEAD.

To Sister Ella Price;-

He rests from his labors, dear father now sleeps, In the quiet ione grave where no saint ever weeps,

Sweet is the refuge ne'er troubled by fee; Nor sickness nor socrow can break their repose O, blessed are the dead who die in the Lord! They rest from their labors, and gain their reward; Their works live to witness while they waste in the grave,

And influence others their souls to save,

O, children, remember the coursels you heard— Your father off read from the Life giving Word, His prayers of devotion at the family shrine. When his soul was controlled by the Sparit divine;

As he slowly traversed the cold waters of death, When the shadows were deepluing and he gasped for his breath, the cast on his family the last lingering look, And referred you to God and His life-giving Book,

THERE is an important question, in answer to useful medium through which to do good. Brother Stein will issue a circular (letter) bethe Institution. We are not yet informed of the details in tall, but give the following as some of the characteristics of the enterprise:

1. The Institution is to be an individual enterprice, owned by Brethren J. W. Stem and M. S. Newcomer, and is to remain under the

2. It is to afford "educational facilities, extending from the preparatory department of an education, to a thorough collegiate course, with a provision that there who may prefer any wheel studies may have the privilege of doing so"

3. All students, as well as tembers, are to be the school, members or no members, will be required to submit to this restriction.

The town of Mt. Morris, we learn, is very much in favor of the school going into the bands of Prethren, and will aid in supporting the Institution. Thus are highly pleased with the plea of p stricting all the populs to plain dressing. Mt Morris is about twenty-five nales east of Lonark, and on a road running direct to Criengo. It is in what is known as the Silver Core congregation, which church is under the ver-ight of Brother David E. Price, J. H. M.

A WIFE'S HOLY SACRIFICE.

THE following touching incident, which Bishop Peck relates of his own life, will well apply to the wives of hundreds of preachers in our own fraternity: he said that when it became probable that he would be made bishop, his wife, one of the loveliest of women, and a delicate invalid, came to him and remonstrated: "I need you. Your strength is not equal to the burdens. I cannot spare my husband. Others can do the work of the churches." But he replied that he did not feel at liberty to decline. When he went to Conference, and saw how affairs were tending, he wrote to his wife, saying that they must both pray over the subject, and receive the decision of the Conference as the decision of the Lord, "This," said the Bishop, " is the only serious letter I ever wrote my wife, to which she never replied." When he was elected, and husband and wife met, she fell at his teet and buried her face in her hands. exclaiming, " It is not right. I cannot endure it. I cannot give up my husband." After a time she looked up and said; "Go and take care of the charches, and the Lord will take care of me; but you are no longer my husband. You are my sacrifice."

B.—If children are properly instructed they will be so interested that they will always be orderly. It would be better for parents to have their children, large or small, sit with them; but the church cannot bring about that order, so she should do the next best and that is to seat the young in front. With speaker before and parents in the rear, disorder would very seldom, if ever, exist. Very few children conduct themselves improperly, when they know their parents see them, but if they can get in the back part of the house where neither their precents or the preacher can see them, and they have any disposition to be disorderly, they will S. Leaving home on Monday, at 3 P. M., I reached this city by the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, on Tuesday at about 8 P. M. I am astonished at the amount of losiness done by the corporation whick own this road. From an annual report published in a Pittsburgh paper yesterday, I dearn that their business last year amounted to more than thirty-one millions of dollars; and the excellence of their management is seen in the fact that during the year 1878, though their business was largely increased, their actual expenses were materially dimin-

the deeds and actions of each individual are his or her material with which they build upon Christ, as their sulvation. 3. That the "fire." spoken of, is a figure of the "fiery trials," trib- | Christ, maintained under the forms of Christiulations, persecutions, &c., by which those deeds anity, (which might perhaps be the case among and actions, as well as faith, patience, prayer, [many of the Cormthians), as this was not a hope, &c., shall be tried. 4. That those who crune capable of being convicted and censured hold out faithful, through all the crucibles that: they have to pass, will thereby have the " wood, hay, and stubble" burned out of their building -their faith, hope, love, prayer, &c.,-and so "shall be saved; yet so as by fire." Briefly, it is believed that all who do build on Christ as their salvation, bring, nevertheless, " wood, hay, and stubble" in with the "gold, silver, and precious stones; " and that these-carnalitiesmust be burned or purged out like as the dross is purged from gold,"

Remarks.—This view seems more consistent. however, there is one point in it dark and irrecancilable. The apostle speaks of some whose work that they build upon Christ, will "ababe," and they "shall receive a reward;" and of others whose work shall not abide, but "shall be burned," and by this burning "suffer loss" but they themselves be "saved; yet so as by fire." But according to this view, there are none whose work will "abide," and they receive a reward, for it places them all under the class which Paul says "shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire."

3. It is believed, 4. That the hudders are the believers in Christ. 2. That the material is that which believers receive and practice. 3. That every one "must appear before the judgment seaf of Christ;" and that there every "man's work "That he has built upon thrist for his salvaluen, "shall be made manufest; for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work, of what sort at is." Plast the day that shall declare, or make manufest the works of every man and woman, is the day of judgment. That the "fire" that shall reveal the secrets of the hearts of the children of men, is the holiness of the bord, which shall try every man's deeds and actions, as well as souls and spirits; and that nothing can stand believe him, that is unholy and impaire

4. If a man's work be larged, how shall he be saved, yet so as by Bire? It is believed that " with men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible." Matt, 19: 26. "That these whose works were wrought in God, to his glory and honor, will receive "a reward; " but those whose works were not all prompted by pure motives and holy desires, their works will be consumed by the holiness of the Lord, for Goodis a consuming hor," and so torbut their new ards. THE FOUR BIRTHS.

Please explain John 1; 13; "Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the desh, nor of the will of man, but of God." What larths are here referred to, natural or spiritual?

J. Y. Snaveliv.

If E understand the first birth to mean this. For instance, a man joins a church just because his parents belong to that church, not considering whether the Bible is on his side or not, but "must follow my parents," hence is burn into the church, of blood and not of that, The birth of the will of the flesh is similar,

The man looks, not to God's Word for knowledge, but seeks a church to suit his fancy, to suit his style; one in which he can do just about as he chouses, and still retain his popularity. Such are born of the will of the flesh, and not

"Nor of the will of man." To be born of the will of man, is to join some church to please some one else. "I know not what the Bride says, but to please and satisfy him (some friend) I will join the church." Therefore, that man is not bern of God, but of the will of name

"But of God". The man who seeks in carnest for salvation, searches the Scriptures, prays to find for wisdom, &c., for his own good, and not for somebody plse-such a man is born of God, and a glorious birth it is. What a blessing to be called a child or Gal!

Also one applicant. Ninetecn. belonged to five different denominations; six to the Baptist church. One was a member of that church for thirty-five years. He is seventyfive years of age. He says for the last twenty years he has been convinced that he has not followed all the commands of the Bible, but he, like many others, thought just so he belonged to the church, that was all that was required; but when he examined his Bible more closely, he said that there was something that he had omitted, and that was fect-washing. He says he stopped too soon; but he is now assured even in his old days that by the help of God he can live nearer his Savior, and feel assured of an eternal life. There were six Methodists and four Albrights, one of which was class leader and Superintendant of their Sunday-school. There were two Winebrenarians, one of which is in his seventieth year. Also one that belonged to the Reformed Church. Ten of the remaining twenty were of the Brethren's children. The remaining ten were of outsiders. There are many, we believe, that are almost persuaded to become Phristians. The youngest one that was haptized was in his thirteenth year. And now, young reader, do not put off coming to your Savier until you get ald-you may not live to be old, you may put it off until you are lost and that forever.

I being again in the crucible of affliction, could not attend; so brother Mobiler was left to labor alone, but we believe the Lord was with him; for this morning we received the intelligence, that, during his short stay with them, the church was edified, and two precious souls governmented to walk with Jesus, and live a new life. Both of these were young men in the prime of life. May the blessing of God attend According to arrangements, I brought David | them through life. DFTEN long for the fellowship and associsaion of the blood-bought children in Christ across the great ocean, and especially those whom we have seen face to face. This brings to memory the great day when all shall him. We have fourteen members in this meet never to part—a glorious day when we shall have liberty to go into the marriage hall, clothed with the Christian's garment. In Malt. 22: 11-13, we read of a man who had entered the marriage room without the proper garment, but was told to go out. What a fearful warning to all who are trying to get in without doing what Christ says.

Dearly beloved brethren and sisters, watch and pray, that we may become fully clothed with the beavenly garment, having oil in our vessels, waiting for the coming of Jesus our beloved Savior.

Dear Bretheen :--

I CAME home from Scagen last Friday, ac-I companied by a young convert who was laptized yesterday. I have hid many well-atreaded meetings in that place, and found many cornest seekers after the fruth and good, land friends. Scapen has been noted as the dark place in Denmark. The people were considered the most degraded of any in this country; but it new promises to be one of the brightest spots in our nation. A sister of the one recently haptized, is near the "one body," and we look for others to follow snon. The young man above mentioned is a good singer, and lads four to be a useful man in the church.

We had a good congregation yesterday. Our has been left without a pastor for the last four hall was well filled. Shall have three more years. There are several of their members meetings here, then go elsewhere to labor, that have joined our church. HAVE just closed a very interesting meet-I ing near Wolcott, Indiana, of some five days duration. Brother Joseph Amick, from Burnett's Creek, was with me a few days and labored to the general satisfaction of all. Baptized four Campbellites, and two Baptists will he as soon as the brother gets able. He took very sick soon after be and his wife gave their hands to the church; so we thought be had better wait a little; and one young sister that had made no profession, making seven at this meeting. Brother Abraham Miller is the elder. I pify brother M., as he has two much to do. Calls are coming in from every direction. He is a poor man, but quite an able minister. May God bless him in his noble work, and open the hearts of the Brethren to belp him bear his burden,

Our little valley is now pretty well settled up, and still they come. Last Full Brother Detrick, from Iown and Brother Wyland, from Missouri, came. Brother Banman, from Nova Springs, will be among us, and others say they will follow him hither.

Our little church is flourishing. Four were baptized two weeks ago, and four more will be soon, and the prospect is still good for more.

In the valley here we have a good location for a country store, and we need a post-office, So we think a shoemaker, a blocksmith, a merchant and a post-master would greatly facil tite our business interests here, and supply a vacuity which we begin to feel to be pressing. With regard to the spiritual status, required, I wish to avail myself of the present apportunity to append a hearty approval of what Brother Bruhaker, of Gage county, Nebraska, wrote some time ago. A young brother was here the night the paper came, containing his article. I read it aloud, and then remarked that I had a good mind to sit down and write a great. hig amen to his article. The young brother says, "What will you do with brethren that are not in order when they come among you?" I replied, we will send them on west. Then subline, "We will get them at Burr Oak," I don't suppose, bowever, they would be any more welcome there than here. The fact is, we have for many natives of that kind at both places now. Wish I were falenfed. MONG the things of the past is a series of meetings, which we held in our congregations; and we truly feel encouraged and strengthened in the hope of our sulvation Brother W. J. H. We trust that the limits of Brother Bauman's labor will be seen long. O, may it be as bread east upon the waters, that will return not many days hence. We believe we have been much profited by these meetings. May God then grant us all more of his Holy Spirit, that we may be shining lights to the world; and may it not be long till we shall be made to rejoice because of sinners coming to Christ in this community, and learn that the ways of Christ are far superior to the ways of sin; and may the Lord abundantly bless the brethren and sisters, throughout, the brother-

Dear Brother Banman, labor on: So yours the crown will be at last. Truly the time will not be long. When all life's sorrows will be past,

Then we, who've walked in all God's ways. Will stand nequitted before his throne. There we shall ever sing his praise, With pay unspeakable and unknown,

W.E. are here not as the last sheep, of Israel, for we have preachers, besides, we have also the word of God, which will lead us to the true Shepherd. But the field is two large for them to dejustice, soweth might as the breth ren were passing along on the Hanibal & St. Juseph R. R., they might stop at Clarence station, Shelly county, Missouri, sixty-four miles west of Quincy, and preach to as and rest themselves n few days. We will fetch them from the R. R., and take them to it again. We are poor here, so we can't promise any thing much, but we feel it our duty to do something. We think there is a good opening here. If any of the ministering Brethren are passing along and have fine to stop, let them write us a few lines about six days before hand, stating where they will start from, and the fine they will start; then we will know what time to be at the sta-John Prange, Bager's Grove. to the consciences of all. It is high time that the fearful predjudice of our fraternity, in relation to city preaching be overcome, and we go as our Commissioner has ordered, "Preach the Gospel to every creature." Are the cities of America worse than ancient Coriath which was renowned for her wickedness? or Jerusaed his name there; and it was in this city, that the apostles were baptized with the Holy Ghost. Then go ye in cities and every-where.

THE DIVINE AND THE HUMAN POWER IN THE WORK OF SALVATION.

FAILURE bedistinguish properly between tion, often leads to the improper application of plied to the works of the Dounity. The works terms and indefinite ideas, leaving great truths, of the Father, the Son, and the Boly Spirit, are out of sight and magnifying immortones beyond fonly essential to salvation. The works of the ares the divine and the human power are blended together in the word of Providence, and [re-] All the means of grace have their special design. demption for the blessing and solvation of man, yet the work of God and the work of man is always distinct. In all the patriarchs and prophets, we see the work of human agency, but not

With the apostles the same is frue; in them we see the work of homan agency for the salvation of man; but above the human, we see the power of God working, all and in all, for in the work at Divinity as the power to save. Paul may plant and Apadies may water, but God $2\alpha)$ s the increase $-\Lambda$ proper distinction between the work of the Creat of and the creature, is important in a clear understanding of all the means of salvation. Man roay use the means God has given, but the divine power must give the libess-

This agure will illustrate the idea: Human agency may peepare the ground and plant the con, but a high a power must make it grow; human power cannot give it life-that must ong and cultivation of it lost all its growth and in that limited sense, it should be applied its adscrapted to the use of all the menus of its distinction. Pray, give its short meter.

Man may work with all the means of to perfection; but all its growth comes from the life God has given.

A clear understanding requires that we note another thing on this point; Salvation is sometimes ascribed to the works of man; such as, saved by faith, saved by works, saved by prayer, saved by baptism, &c. Again, salvation is aserihed to the works of Divinity; such as, saved by the blood of Christ, saved by grace, saved by the Word, saved by his resurrection, saved by the power of God.

It is necessary here to make a proper distinction in referring sulvation, to its cause, and, to the means by which it is given. When it is said we are saved by faith, by juryer, by lenetism, etc., it is referring to them as means; like the axe cuts the tree down, and the saw cuts the bog off. They are only means, and the blong done is ascribed to them. Hot when we say the man out the free down, the man sawed the log off, we refer the work done to the power that did it; so, when we say sixed by the blood of Christ, by grace, or the Spirit, to the power of God, we refer salvation to the power which gives it, not to the means by which it is ofven-

Some would set aside all these means to which sityation is ascided, and have sityation gives without them. Others would go for her in making the means of grace equal in importing test from sin while hving in rebellion. A the salvation, making the axe and the saw copial as, the prisoner is freed from prison, or charges with the own that under their and cut the tree [las state when he is justified or perdoned . If with them. The power to say a is in too and comes for a new W. of Godory to goe tree is an man and must come from him. How purson opened to him by the officer of the law means, and salvation given by them.

There is another thing to be noted here, that is in speaking of the divine and the human work. The term "essential," is often applied to the means and the cause without any distruction, which leads to contusion and misunderstanding. Essented means important in the highest dethe divine and the human power in salvas, gree, and, when not quainted, should only be apwhat is their real importance. In the Script-pereature are not so important, or so great, and should not be called essential in the same sense. There is a special design or purpose ar hath, so is there a special design in repentance, and looptism, and prayer, and so with every means appointed in the Gospel. And when the ferm, any plainer than we behold the weaks of Divin- "essential" is applied to any of these means, it should be limited to their design and adject, because they are essential to that object (only, Touse the term, "essented" in a general souse, and apply it to all the commands of the Gospel, makes them as important as the blood of Christ; and would make every one of them not only a condition of paralon, but the power that ments pardon. Lasty does not merit or perchase pardon, repentance does not, neither does laptismnot all the works of the creature earlinecity or purchase salvation. It is the blood of Christ, the work of Divinity, that ments and gives salvation; and the word "essential" cannot apply to both in the same smar. It applies to the works of the creature as a limited or special sense; as, faith is essen ad to a change of heart; repentance is e-scotial to so hange of life; haptism is essent al to a change of state or relation.

Some fell on good ground, and the work of life in Christ is done. it also began to grow. This beginning to grow is regeneration, because generate, means the beginning of a new life; hence, regeneration and legotion have reference to the legaming of the work of redemption, and it is began by a new life, which God must give; but without the menas of the Gospel to entirente it, thorns, or by those who profess to be so holy and pure the world will grow up and choke it till it will | they cannot sin. change, and may be applied to any change in prove that he is sufe, and that word need not the work of solvation: to the beginning, the apply to anything but a change of heart for middle or the end of it. Its first or primary application would be to the beginning of it, or to justification, or pardon and new farth, then regeneration, the time when the new life lesgms, for that is a change from death to lit call subsequent changes are only changes in the life already begon; and conversion should apply to all subsequent changes in a secondary series. The new life begins in both Hoat works by love and purifies the heart. The very beginning of new life is the great conversion. The change id heart is compersion, repentance changes. The lite; that is conversion on the same pronciple every other change in the Christian life as he gues on to perfection, may be called conversion, ait ad are applied in a secondary sense, except he test, because that is prove to all others, and the beginning of them.

Salvation, or saved, are general terms, and mean deliverance or freedom froncing state of condemnation or death. It may be applied be the begaining of the new life, and it may be applied to the work of rach, or to the work of its pentance or out ism, or fact, it is applied to almost every means of given, but only in a secondary sense; it is applied to all the works of the Deviativ in its primary or full sense.

Sancmeans of grace affect the heart; the work of sanctification goes on as the Christian, "grows body and spirit, in righteous and holy covenant complete initial all the means of grace are applied,

An error in doctrine, or a misunderstanding of these terms often is a cause of the improper use of them; or error in doctrine will select one of these terms and turn at from its Scripture meaning to the support of that error; and this word, sanctafication has been used in that way treation teaches that idea, while the Scripture does not even apply that ferm begany man in that condition, for the holy near of God did and claim to be so perfect, and never applied that term to any one in that lease, sive when it is applied to God. Such an error does not only turn that word from its Seriptoral use, but turns the people away from the Gospel means of true sanctification, and from the communits in bol's Word.

One great reason why those terms are improperly used, is the error in doctrine which nodes it necessary. One will settle on the conditions found his destrine, and build his church on that word in it is all he holds essential- he wants reconcer, looks are further. but staps satisfied; while he has only the beginnung, the first word, and the first work in repennance. Another will take the term converof heart, and stop there to build his dectrine, ing more is essential, and he cares but little to know what else is to be found in the Gospel. He feels that he is safe where he is, aml. he has Conversion is a general term, if means a but hitle need for any word but conversion to turn back to loublitheir doctrine or it, holding they have all the essentials in it, and caring but little for any more, because they hold their safeay is in thus.

But the time and Scriptural meaning of all these terms will destroy all these partial doctimes, and give as the whole truth in a history of the church which once accepted them in all their meaning; beginding with regeneration, so on to justification, or jordon, the new forth, conversion, salvation, sanctification, accepting all the means of drying appointment belonging to each of them, just as the church did eighteen hundred years age, so it should do now.

SHORT METER.

SHORT meter time is good; short meter sections are better than long meter. Who wants to listen to a long, dry, prosy sermon? Nobel V! Who wants to listen to a long, dry, testimony? Nabody! Who is edified by a long, dry, soulless prayer, so cold that it brings on the chill-? None. Who likes long, dry, chilly, doubly like newspaper articles, so long that few have the tone or patience to read them? Perhops one in every thousand that read the papers. Then please give us short mater. MY HAND IN CHRIST'S,

BY DELLA STUTSMAN.

Y hand in Christ's, he leadeth where he lists. Through flowery fields or 'neath a gloomy sky;

My faith is, he will bring me safely through, The ills of life till I am called to do.

My hand in Christ's, I care not what may come If he is mine I cannot yield to sin; His everlasting arms are around me here. Then I can safely trust at last to win.

My hand in Christ's, I care not how death comes By pestilence in the day or in the night, I shall be safe beneath his gentle care, And dwell with him who's love, and truth, and light,

My hand in Christ's, who have up Calvary's beight,

The Cross, and gave his precious life up there To save a wretch like me; can I e'er doubt, Or give myself a victim to despair?

No: I will cling the closer to los Cross. And with a child's devotion hold him fast; My hand in his, I'll safely pass along, Though storms need howl, my home I'll gain

My hand in Christ's, even down to death's cold flood:

He'ff bear me safely through the dying strife And side to those who've only gone before To where I coon shall dwell in higher life,

I will refer the reader to the Scripture on the events of those seals. "And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black assackeloth of hair, and the moon became as blood," Rev. 6: 12. Matthew Mark and Lake speak of the same event in regard to the sun and moon. And many of the prophets also refer to these. History shows that that took place in May 19, 1780. By this we know that the sixth senI opened then.

"And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth." Rev. 6: 13. This occurred Nov. 13, 1833. "And the heaven departed as a scroll." Rev. 6:14. This has reference to the Savior's coming as a man child to remove the woman, Rev. 12: 5, 6. But before he comes, the devil, beast and false prophets will take away the daily sperifice, or scatter the holy people. This will stop the wor ship of Goal thirty days before the sixth seal closes. The man of sin is the two horned beast. Rev. 45; 11; Dan. 7; 8, 20, "Little horn." The king of fierce countenance is the same. Dan. 4: 23. The ten horned heast is the Pope of Rome. He will give the little horn, the ten kings to conquer the world, Rev. 17: 10, Dan. 11: 31, The downfall of the literal Rabylon was a the cry will be made, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh." All worship will be stopped for 2,300 days. Dan. 8: 14. The 2,300 days commence thirty days before the sixth scal closes.

Three great events will take place in those thirty days. The first is the taking away of the daily sacrifical as above stated. The second is the Devil being east down to stand before the woman. Rev. 12: 8, 9, 10. The persecution is the pain the woman will be in; thirteenth verse. The woman, or church, will be in pain ten days. Rev. 2: 10. The third. event is the Savior's coming in like man ner as he ascended. Acts 1: 11. Not. as a king, but as a manschild, to remove the woman, or wise virgins. Rev. 12: 6, 14. The woman will be fed and nourished in the wilderness 1,260 days, or three and a half years. At the time of the Socior's coming to remove the woman, or church, the two witnesses will come, and the woman will fly into the wilderness with two wings of a great engle. Rev. 12: 14. There mission here lasts 1,260 days, or three and a half years, Rev. 11: 3. These are the two olive trees of Zech. 4: 11-14; Rev. 11: 4. The god of the earth is the man of sin, 2 Thess, 2: 3, or two horned beast. "Behold I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dread. ful day of the Lord." Malachi 4; 5, The other one is Enoch. Those two have a work to accomplish yet. I will let this suffice on the events of the thirty days under the sixth seal. The fulness of the Gentiles will be just at the close of the sixth seal, and the door of mercy will be closed against them. Then will be fulfilled the saving of the reve. " lator, "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still; and he which is filthy, let him let him be rightcons still; and be that is hely, let him be hely still." Rev. 22: the sixth seal, that they will remain.

The door of mercy will be opened to the Jews at the opening of the seventh seal, when one door is closed, the other one will be opened. There are great and noted events to take place in the 1,260 days under the seventh soid. 12 60 and 30 will make 1,290 days. Dan.

The sounding of the seven angels will take place under the seventh scal spaken. of in the 8th, 9th, 10th chapter of Rev. The same is spoken of in Rev. 16, in a more condensed form. Terrible events will take place under the seventh scal in the 1200 days. "And power was given unto him to continue forty and two month." Rev. 13: 5; Daniel 7: 25; 12: The ten horned banst and the two horned, receive their powers to do wonders from the dragon. Rev. 13: 2. The salt, or church must be removed first, then God will permit the Devil to give power to those two wicked ones to do wonders. And that power they will hold 1260 days under the seventh sent.

During the time of this dreadful cabenity that will fall upon the inhabitants ed'the earth, there will be three against three. The Savier and the two witnesses, or Elijah and Enoch will be against the devil and beast and the false prophet. Those two witnesses will have superior powers. Rev. 11; 5, 6, They will gath-

These two prophets, Elijah and Enoch, will posess power to gather the Jews, as Moses and Aaron did from Egypt, The Jews will no doubt accept those two witnesses as their Messiah, whom they have so long been looking for, on account of the pow er they possess, to do wanders.

After the Jews are all brought into Palestine, the least will muster an army of two hundred thousand thousand, Rev. 9: 16, or all nations. Zech. 14: 2. This will take place under the sounding of the sixth angel. Rev. 9: 13.

The two witnesses will commence their mission in the thirty days under the sixth seal by protecting the woman in her flight to the wilderness, then to gather the Jews under the seventh scal. Their time to accomplish this is nearly 1,200 days less. Those twenty days will be occupied in the flight of the womanin the wilderness, Rev. 11; 3;

Their 1260 days will end a little before the least's. The beast will kill them, Rev. 41: 7, and their dead laidies will lie in the street where our Lord was Auron were to Pharoah in Egypt. The are killed, the beast will fall upon the? As we and take the full of them engine, Zoele, 14; 2. Immediately after they are ascended, the 11. Just what they are at the close of Savior will come as Lord of lords, and King of kings. Rev. 19: 16. The first resurrection of saints will take place, and the great battle of Armageddon will be fought. Rev. 16: 16. Ezek, 39; Zeeh. 14: Rev. 19: 11, to the end of the chapter. There will be blood up to the horses' bridle. Rev. 14; 20. This butthe will take place at the close of the sounding of the sixth angel or the sixth

The Savior's coming on the white horse will be at the end of 1,290 days, and armies in heaven will follow him, and blow the trumpets. And the dead saints will be raised, and the living, or woman that fled in the witderness, will be closured in the twinkling of an eye. €or, 13;52.

There will be forty-live days occupied in the first resurrection, and lattle of Armageddon, and the binding of Satan to east him in the bottomless pit. This brings out the 1,305 days or events that will take place in them. Dan. 12: 12.

The next and noted event is the seventh angel sounding. Rev. 10: 7: 46: 17. The world is full of wicked people, besides those that are in the army. The events of the seventh vial will destroy all sinners from the earth. It will finish the work,

The next and noted event will be the resurrection of the whole house of Israel. This resurrection of the Jews will take place at the cod of 1,335, days, I refer the reader to the Scriptures on the resunrection of the Jews, Jer. 30; 9; Ezek. 97: 10, 42, 13; Dan. 12: 2, 5.

There will be a great lamentation among the Jews after they are raised ed on that. type of the spirio, d. The spiritual will be the Jews from all quarters of the earth from their graves, Zech. 12: 10, to the

They will mourn and lament for the Savior; "they will They will no doubt issue a proclamation look upon him whom they pierced, to the nations of the earth to deliver up The resurrection of the saints will be at the Jews; and those that will not do it, the end of 1,200 days; this is the first resurrection. The Jews will be resur. rected at the end of 1,335 days. Those two resurrections will be forty five days apart. Daniel was one of the old Jew. ish prophets, and he was told to go his way till the end be; for thou shalt rest and stand in thy lot at the end of days, that is, 1,005 days. This proves the time of the Jews resurrection. Dan. 12: 12.

The next event will be the burying of the dead Israelites. It will take all the people of the land to bury them, The alloted time to bury the dead is sev. en month. Ezek, 39; 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, At the end of 2,300 days, the land will be cleansed. The Jews will be judged by the law, | Rom, 2: 12; Dan, 7: 10,

The resurrection of the Jews, the longing of the dead, the cleansing of the land, and the judgment will occupy 965 days, ald 965 to 1,355 will make 2300 days. Then the worship of God will commence again, and David will be king over the house of Israel. Ezek, 37; 24, 25. Then the Jews will laild Je. rusalem, Jer. 30: 48, and the temple east of Jerusalem, Ezek. 40; to the end of the erneified. Those two witnessess, will hook. It will take the Jews nearly for. be great posts to the beast, as Moses and | ty years to build Jerusalem and the temple. The D will will be east into the loast will rejoice when he gets power to lactomless pit forty years before the kill them. When those two witnesses | 6,000 years close. The marriage of the Lambewill take place in the time that the Jews are building Jerusalem, Rev. 19: 7, 8, 9. This is the evening of the the street three and a half days "The world of which our supper is an enddem. spirit of life from God will enter into The seventh seal clases when the Guon them, and they will stand upon their feet, | years end. The seventh thousand is the millennium. Christ and the 144,000 and the sames will descend and reign on earth a thousand years. They will be kings and priests over the house of Israel. Luke 22: 28, 29, 30. There will be a covenant made with the house of Israel in the milleanium. Jer. 31; 31.

I will show where I get the idea that the Davil is cost into the bottomless, pit forty years before the 6,000 years are ended. He will remain in the jet just a thousand years as the Word says. He will be leased from his prison forty years before the 7,000 years end. God has two objects in view in cloing so. The first is, derusalem and the temple must to built before the milleanium. This gives the Jews time to do it. The secand is, to prove the Jews forty years hefore the seventh thousand ends. The Jews being tempted forty years in the wilderness was a type of the forty years at the end of the millennium. The canon was a type of the heavenly. Satan will deceive a great number in those forty years. These who will not leave themselves be deceived, will be united with the saints. The dows were first, so they will come in last.

The saints being kings and priests over the house of Israel in the millennium, will draw into the camp, as the Jews let themselves be deceived. Toward the close of the forty years, Satur will bring the deceived ones together like the sand of the sea, Rev. 20; 8, and encompass the camp of the saints, and fire will fall down to consume them. Then Satan will be east in the lake where the beast and fidse prophet are. They had him cust in at the battle of Armageddon a thousand years before. Next comes the resurrection and judgment. Here I will close, the brethren and sisters are post-

> 2. We will consider the sower of the good seed. From the text we infer that the sower was a good man, a good his bandman, for he sowed good seed. He sowed it upon well prepared ground; he sowed it with anticipation of again reaping good seed of the same variety, just as the good hosbandman does at this age. "But while he slept, the enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat." We will here notice that it was a custom to take a sleep, or rest, at noon among the people of that age; so, while the sower was resting, the enemy came and sowcal bad seed. This was a bad man, for he sowed lad seed in anticipation of destroying the good man's seed. The seed all sprang forth and grew up together, both good and bad. This being observellly the servants, they desired to root out the lad seed, but not so, said the owner, lest your also root out the good seed; but lef them, grow together until the harvest when the tares shall be burnt up, and the wheat gathered into my

BIBLE SCHOOLS.

SCHOOL is a number of persons assembled at one place to be taught. Four things enter into a school. I. Persons who desire to he taught. 2 A properly qualified teacher. Something to be told or made known. 4. A place of inceting. The thing to be made known in a Bible School, is the revealed Will of God. The persons to be taught are those whose understanding can be addressed. The teachers are those who have been "born of fied," are "full of the Hely Ghost," "mighty in the Scriptures "" opt to teach." The place should be determined by circumstances.

Paul was "a teacher of the Gentiles," To do the most good, he called his learners together at one place. At one time he called the elders together, taught them, and then before leaving. knelt down and prayed with them all. Acts 20; 28-38 Jesus went early in the morning "into the temple, and all the people came unto him: and he sat down and taught them." John 8:2. Josus was the teacher. "All the people" were the scholars. "In the temple," was the place of meeting, and "early in the morning" was the time of assembling. Surely the above ought to be a grand lesson for us!

Paul places teachers third among those set apart in the family of Gold to help those who med help. These teachers were required to instruct such as needed special instructions. Both men and women were thus engaged in the primitive church. There was great simplicity in their methods of feaching. Order and efficiency were clust points in their work. The intelligent part of man is being dealt with in the act of feaching, honce order, system, clearness and appress must be observed, Men and women may be taught at their becomes by a manuster, but for convenience and holy lellowship the Lord desires them to meet at our place. Bring together enables the teacher to do better work, and with greater ease. So it is in the case of feaching children, the Will of God. They may be taught at home and should be so for as their joirents can teach them; but the reasons that bring parents to the pub-In assembly to be taught, hold just as good in rhanch at the inectings held. Thanks be to the case at children. Every parent can instruct his children, but then there are others who can instruct his children still better. Every parent Biocritic P. R. "Well," asks a friend, "how about Sundayschools? Ito they accomplish any good? Proper que tions uideed, and without mix apologies I shall at once grapple with them. Some are ready to admit that in too many instances the Sunday-school work has been turned into fun and amusement to the injury of Bible truth and holiness of character. It is a fact that too often they are run in a sort of mechanical way to the hurt of the dear youth These and kindred evil have caused many well. disposed persons to regard the Sunday-school as entirely detrimental to the young. They have therefore, turned their strength against the whole work instead of attempting to root out the evils which appear, as Paul did at Cornth Many meetings for public worship are conducted in a disorderly manner, yet we all have prodence enough not to advocate the patting away of public meetings. Our pens and voices are not raised against public meetings because some evils have crept in, but against the evils alone, Just that wise should we be in regard to meetings for the study of the Bible. If they have been cord acted improperly, or if wrong teaching has been set forth, then let us try to remove the wrong and leave the good stand. Not one of us can afford to fight against truth, or the study of the truth.

But there is a proper and successful way of teaching the Bible to those who need to be taught. To get at the matter promptly, I shall call the meeting for Bible study, a Bible School, because it is made up of bearners who are seeking information from the Bible. A Bible School does not suggest the teaching of traditions, opimons, ergeds. If traditions were to be taught then it would be proper to call it a Tradition School; it creeds, then a Creed School; if upin. ions, then an Upinion School. When persons come together to sing, it is called a Singing School. When they come together to study and recite geography, it is called a Geography School. Then, since we come together to study and recite from the Bible, why not call it a Bilde School? Surely this is the most appropriate name; and I suggest that all schools, where the pure Word is taught, be called Bible schools, That this name should be adopted as expressive of the kind of work we do, will appear more clearly as we proceed with our investigations.

I alserve that by forming the pupils reto classes, and assigning teachers to them, all being in the same room, much confusion is created during recitation. This has ever been an objectionable feature to in my brethren and sisters, advocates as well as opposers of Sunday-schools. In other schools, no such course would be attempted, for the simple reason that no efficient work could be done. If, then, we are saquick to exercise good judgment in training our children for the duties of this life, ought we not to be equally wise gone criting the training of the mind for the world to come? Certainly we neglit. Not one of us would alterupt to teach reading in the midst of so much confusion. The man who would attempt to teach mathematics by having a half dozen, persons talking at the same time, would be put down as not just the man for that kind of work. The family where parents and children all talk at the same time. is not getting along very well. Thus you see in other things we adopt the best methods in order to get the best results. Why have we been so slow in seeking the best methods of teaching the Public? Yes, why? O may we be more active in our Master's vineyard, and not or much concerned for our form vineyards!

I my ife your affection to the following plan of drang Table work:

the level, but by attacking and correcting the this exite so is being conducted, all others may evils in those incetings. All good things are beginned actentive listeness or engage in the air of their lesson. As soon as class first has head ublicly heard, the teacher takes his class another part of the room and in the most wanner hears them repeat the Scriptures then they may have memorized. Whilst this the done, the teacher of class second will e conducting his exercises. Here are many girls who need instructions in Bible is and the great events that are recorded in blessed Book. If the teacher be apt, he on conduct the lesson so as to engage not only the attention of his class, but that of class third He should spend about ten minutes in tringing out the points of the lesson, after which five minutes may be devoted to asking answering questions. If, however, class bird does not find it profitable to listen to the relation of class second, its members may enrege in the study of the lesson. No danger of baying the lesson too well. When the teacher of class second is done, he directs his pupils to copy such seafs as may have been previously decided upon, or if necessary, remain just where they are. I would suggest that a brother or stel he placed in each seat with the membre of this class. These brethren and sisters are to be known as sub-teachers, and shall hear the pupils recite the verses that have been committed to memory. And then, too, they may begreat helps in maintaining order. Now let as turn to class third while class second is retime verses.

The teacher of class third should be very familar with the lesson. If he would be successfal he will adopt the subject plan. This is to assign a subject a week in advance. The first great subject is the Bibbs. Indeed the arrangegent of the Bible, its history, &c., can not be well laught short of several lessons. Then proced with such subjects as Parth, Repentance, Baptisin, Holiness, Happiness, Love, &c. Do not be alraid to teach doctrine. Our experience is the more doctrine, the better the attendance, the better the school. Let the teacher occupy ten or fifteen minutes in giving oral instruction, and then spend about the same time in asking and answering questions. Each pupil should have pencil and paper, and when the teacher is going instructions, carefully note items for fume reference. Be just as precise and careful u this work as you would in arithmetic or any other branch of study.

Should the members of class third memorize Samplure? Yes, every one of them. The more you get fixed in your mind, the better for you This is the great object of the Bible School. Suppose the subject is Love, would it not be very profitable to memorize all the verses you can, containing the word love? Certainly it would; and if the teacher is apt he will hear ron recite them in such a way as to do you good and all who hear you. Commencing with those on the first seat, each will in then rise and repost a verse, so that all may hear.

I shall now briefly state some of the advantages of this method. 1. It is simply three short sermions in one hour, so arranged as to reach all who attend. 2. There will be less note; hence more can be taught, and taught better; and more can hear, and hear better. This alone should commend it. 3. Where there is a lack of teachers for ten or fifteen classes, enough efficient ones can be had by this plan, and if necessary one person can conduct the whole school, providing the sub-teachers do their doty in hearing the verses of classes one and two. 4. There will be greater unity in things taught. A. None will remain from school through fear of being asked to teach. 6. All the teachers should be members of the church, and by this method these can always behad. The importance of only believers in Christ being teachers, is perhaps not as fully regarded as should be.

These suggestions are subminted to the prayerful consideration of the beloved ones of God. Ishould be pleased to have them tried. If they are found to be impracticable, they should not be received, for no method should be adopted that will cripple and mutilate the truth. I do not wish to be understiad as maintaining that the method is the most nearly perfect, but I do believe it to be far superior to our present meth-6d. Chose observation and much study have brought me to these conclusions, and I give them for your benefit. Let us labor to do good as will make them better and wiser. The not go about the work to make a display or to heap!

unto yourself position and power, but because you want to do good, because you have a message from God to deliver. More concerning Bible Schools will be given in the Children at Work. May divine wisdom illuminate our understanding, and help us to do the will of the Lord in an acceptable manner.

SOME STRANGE PEOPLE.

TITE presume the Lord made the Gospel plan of salvation just as good and as perfect as he knew how, and even went so far as to give his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life. He took the pains of having this perfect law of liberty carefully written and handed down to rising generations, yet the world, and much of the church are not satisfied. They would like to see a few things changed for their own special benefit. The road is too narrow and difficult, and then it is not popular enough. They cannot enjoy themselves as they would like. They expect to live here but a short time, and want to enjoy themselves while here.

They look on heaven as about the next best place after this world. They know they must die, and as they do not want to enfer the other place—though if they lead their own way about it they would much rather live on in this world —they conclude to make some kind of a prepiration for heaven. They do not like to alter the Bible; to live outside of a church they think is not safe, hence they look around, not to find what the Bible teaches, but to find a church that suits their idea of religion. One man belongs to the Free Masons; he does not want to give them up, hence he must have a church that will allow him to retain his membership in that secret order. Another has been used to attending theatres and places of amusement generally: he selects a church to suit his wants. A woman has been bred in fashionable society —she still loves fine dressing, and so must have a church to suit her mind. In this way the work goes on, and each one selects a church to suit his or her peculiar taste.

Of course, people did not have that privilege in the apostolic age, for there was but one church then, and every body had to join that or none. But people are trying to improve (?). religian now; they want everything to their notion, and more than likely if they ever reach heaven, they will not be satisfied with the place. Tungs will not be arranged as they would like. They have got so used to having things to their notion while here that they may find it difficult to submit to the rulings of another.

Then there is such a thing as straying to enter in and not being able. The Savior says: "Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say nuto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door. aml ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are: Then shall ye begin to say, We have enten and drouk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets. But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are: depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity There shall be weeping and gnashing of feeth, when ye shall see Alraham, and Isaac, and Jacole and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out." Lake 13; 34-38.

AN EVIL, AND HOW TO AVOID IT.

LL concole that turning around to see who is coming, and how he looks is a had hale it. It annoys the speaker very much by causing lum to lose confidence in himself, his subject and his audience. We are, therefore, certain this practice is a harmful one and should be stopped. "But," asks my friend, "how can it be done?"

Nothing attracts the mind so much as curios ity; so, when any one comes into church, al are excited to know who, or, possibly, what if

A Pre-hyterian mini-ter, in an eastern city. was realing ins text one morning when some one entered the church. All furned around to see who, or what, it was, that was coming. II storped rading, watch until all gave attention work. Let us teach the children in such a way and then said, "I wish you would give heed only to what I read; if anything but a buman being comes in I will tell you?"

Such a relative as this is sufficient to effect a reformation among the more serious and pions people; but the most scathing sarcasm will not overcome the whole of any audience. Hence, we consider this method a partial, if not an entire failure; for the very persons who most need to be reformed are the least likely to be im-

There is another way by which this can be permanently secured with all, and no one have the unpleasant task of rebuking, and no one the embarrassment of being rebuked.

A person, who discharges his duty by reproving his audience for indulging in this evil, of fends those who most need his instruction, and thereby loses the influence which he might otherwise have retained, and still fails in effecting the desired reformation.

If we can secure the same, or a higher standard of order without resorting to an offensive measure, it is always better to do so. If we can avoid giving an opportunity to do wrong, it is evidently better to do so, than to give the opportunity and then censure and reprove for

"Well, how is this to be done? How can yon avoid giving opportunities? Would you have the sermon so interesting that all would be so absorbed in it that they would not see, hear, fiel or think of anything else?" No: all cannot make their discourses so interesting as to do that—if they could, that would be the way; but it is impossible with so many that it is really of no practical value.

Our remedy is a simple one, as you will see Let the preacher's stand be between the doors of entrance, then the audience will sit facing the door, and when any one enters all can see him without turning. Thus the whole trouble can be avoided and no one's feelings hurt.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER.

Much good can be accomplished in most any li ality by distributing the BRETHREN AT WORK regularly among well-disposed outsiders. They will take great (deasure) in reading it, become intenisted in its contents, and therefore form a strong attachment for the church and its doctrine. Congregations wishing to try this idellod of spreading the truth among their neighbors should proceed to gaise the money, order a number of papers sent to he address of some brother or sister, who isto care for and distribute them at the close of services. This method of doing missionary work will be found especially serviceable in localities where new rongregations are funding up.

Dear Brethren:-

IXTHEN I last wrote to you, our meetings were still in progress in Republic county. Kansas. We continued the meeting over Sunday, the 26th of January, without may immediate additions, but think our labor will result in some good. On Tuesday, the 28th, we left Republic county, for Jewell county, conveyed by our brother-in-law within three miles of Elder Switzers, to which place we made our way on foot. Found Elder S, at home, just returned from the field of battle, reports good news; the enemy giving ground; some five added to our number, through the instrumentality of Brother Bannan. At night we preached in the school-house close by. Next day were conveyed to Burr Oak in Ehler Ives' district. Met at night in Burr Oak vehool-house. Preached to a scendingly interested congregation. Made acquaintance with a number of members next day, Was met at this place by Brother J. M. Bailey and friend James Little, very glad to see them. Brother J. M. B. is a minister, but sorry to say that he has preached but little for a considerable time. Hope he will never give way to such would-be discouragements, but stand up and go forward in his high and honored calling. Here, at Burr Oak, we left Brother Fidely, and I was conveyed to the home of Brother Bailey, where I remained until Standay morning, February 2nd. Visited some Brethren and enjoyed the kind hospitality of Brother B. and family, then having this place in company with Brother and Sister Bulley, we arrived, late in the evening, at Brother Deelers on Limestone. Brother Deeter is the only working minister in this congregation, and as we formed his acquaintance at Burr Oak, and vere requested by him to come to his place and assist in a probacted effort to the uphnilding of the cause, we dal so, and met with Brother Endely again. We staid here until Wednesday, and then left as the wenther seemed to us unfavorable for meeting and we were very anxious to return to loved ones left in Republic county. Leaving Brother Endely to continue the meeting, in company with Brother A. W. Austin, (dencon) we were soon at the home of Brother Destrich, where we found quite a number of members attending church council. Shuid over night with Elder Switzer, next morning 1 boarded Brother Switzer's wagon and soon we were on our way to White Rock City. Spent a short time looking at Mill. Properly, then onward to Scandia and soon we were comfortably seated in our brotherin-law's brosse. Found that our little boy had been in poor health, but was befree Next morning Elder Switzer, bilding us all farewell, returned home. We stand hose until Monday the 19th of February, when, or company with brother and sister, we soon arrived at the deput, where we led them threwell, probably for the last time, and soon we were for our way

We felt some embarrassed, at times, during the meeting, of the absence of some of the loone ministers; we feel that the inherest of a meeting, ought to be such as to ilemand as much as possible, the presence of officials, the laity and their children. At the date of this, we are with the Brethren near Bryon, Ohio. Interest encouriging. I. J. Rosenberger

It is my desire upon the present occasion to spresent to you a few brief notes of the laters of our estermed Brother, M. M. Eshelman, editor of the Children at Hock, who triated us with a "feast of fat things" during the first week of March. First, I will say in behalf of the Clarence Brethien, Cedir county, hova, that Brother Eshelman has our studene thanks for the effective service rendered during lus showt stay with as,

The arrived at Charence the last day of February, and in the evening of the first of March, met at our school-house for worship, where he lehvered his first sermon among us, to a very respectable, quiet and lattentive congregation. Subject, The Bible, or God's word. The folloosing points we glo med from the discourse. who h, moor judgment, were quite instructive:

- The Old Testament Scriptures were presented as being sucseptible of the following
- Historical part.
- Projdicti al jort.
- 5. Poetical, or song park.
- 4. Law part.
- The New Testament was divided for the purpose of helping all to study it to advantage, as follows:—
- Pacts—statements, or things done.
- 2. Commands—things to be done.
- 3. Promises—things to be hoped for,

Very practical limits, were given upon the dowe paints, which were well received, by the people. The circumstances, in short, are about as follow-; and from it a lesson may be bearned, never by let a dog accompany any lone. when going among const that have young calves:-This infortunate woman went to a neighbor's house on the day above named to make a call. Finding the neighbors absent, except the liddren, she spont some time with them. During the time the accompanied the neighbor's chibbrou to the barn to see the ealves, She was, also, followed by her little dog. While at the barn, the cows came up, and seeing the dog, attacked him. The dog rangtog the womean to escape the fury of the cows. The latter thereupon attacked the woman, threw her to the ground and vented their made fary, on her person. She received injuries from which she died on the following Saturday. She remained speechless and nuccuscous from the time she received her injuries until death.

N Saturday the 1st, two more were added to our number by haptism. The ice was about eight inches thick on the river, which is unusual for this time of year. About one hundred spectulors were present. The reason was, the applicants were estizens of Salisbury, and the number was swelled from the village by the curious. We have our church located in the village, and have regular preaching, prayer meetings and Sumlay-school. Many are awakening to the doctrine as preached and practiced by the Brethren. I would enruestly advise the Brethren, wherever it is at all possible, to build their churches in lowns and villages, as the greatest number can be callected, therefore the greatest power for good,

Those of us who are in the church of Christ should be more zealously engaged for those who are left behind that, they, too, may feel the load of sin and come to Jesus. Members should not be cold and indifferent during these meetings, but should be lively workers in the cause. Oh! that all our beloved fraternity could realize the bliss enjoyed by those who live not for themselves only, but for him who lived and died for a rebellious race, and left a pattern to be imitated by all that are born ancw by a spiritual birth. Yes, if it were only possible that all such could see and understand that all they have and are is the Lord's, whether they be intellectual or lemporal gifts: and that all the members of that mystical body-the church of Jesus Christ-are in duty bound to serve each other even as the members of our natural hady serve each other. The wise man, Solomon, said, "Remember thy creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw high when thou shift say, I have no pleasure in them," Would it not, then, be wisdom in us all to prepare for beaven? For the things of this world are transitory, and will all pass away; and even while here the Christian's enjoyment is far beyond that of the sinner. New Carlisle, Okio.

Wisconsin Mission Field.

I UCH has been said on the subject of mis signify work, but a little less saying and a great deal more doing, would result in much more good. Talking about missionary work, and plans as hogefring the money necessary to defray the expenses, does put me very much in mind praying for the poor and not giving them the necessaries of life. If Poul's plan is relopted we will have plenty of missionny money and tospace, as the bord has prespected us all very well. There is one more feature in the missionary movement, that could be greatly improved. Do not wait fill you are sent by the missionary committee for fear you will have to pay your rown expenses, and there feel bad because you are not sent. He you think you have a calling in that direction, go and try your talent with the full assurance that it the church don't pay your expenses the Lord will. Not every preacher is calculated for a missionary. A man may be a very good local preacher, and capalde of doing much good at frome, last as a missionary, he a fulure. Two preachers should go. Both preachers should be of a full-affive nature, briendby facill men, mighty in the Scriptures, always ready to meet the adverse power, with lamble holdness. In preaching, one should be a powerful exponuler, the other a good exhorter; the land sent to the poor expounder to speak first, and the exhorter to follow. Often a sermon is spoiled when the preacher thinks he has a prophecy, when he line that ma exhibitation.

Missionary life is very hard, especially in the Winter season. Men of a strong constitution. and a ready mind Jamblego. The constitution to meet the changes of Jeds and different, tenspersture of sleeping rooms, and a ready boundto meet a bijse teacher. Any brother who has nn experimental knowledge of missionary labor would rather give a few dollars towards it, and, stay with this taimly, than to go lamself, even if his expenses are good.

Brother D. M. Miller, in company with a descent left his home on the 21th of December. 1878, for the Wisconsin Mission Tield - Went on the cars as far as Mineral Point; left Mineral Point on the 25th, for a seventy miles' sled rule, with mercury two degrees below zero. and cold mercusing. Arrived at Brother Abraham Studebaker's six unles north of Muscolin, late in the evening. Left Brother Studelinker's on the morning of the 26th, (mercury sixteen) degrees below zerot, for pleasant Ridge, some twenty-seven miles farther north. Air ved at Brother Stout's late in the afternoon, Brother Miller preached his first sermon that evening at Brother Stont's, to a small audience, Sugar Tree, four miles further north, was the place intended for Brother Miller to preach, but the house was occupied by what was called a "Ministerial Association," which was to last but a few days; but when Brother Miller would take no interest in the Association, they prolonged it nearly all week, apparently to keep Brother Miller out of the house, consequently there was some time lost. But the Methodists. opened their house to Brother Miller, near Brother Stout's, where he had several meetings ; and preached the Gospel in its primitive purity. to a large and attentive audience: so much so that many declared that they never heard the Gosple preached so effectively. Even some of the members of the M. E. Churchesaid it seemed to them that they had never beard preaching before. From there he went to Rock Bridge, some twelve miles east, where there are a few members, scattered and a church partly organized. Had meeting in private houses for a few evenings, and on Friday at two o'cluck P. M., preached a funeral sermon at Woodstock, in the Disciple meeting-house. The people of Woodstock invited Brother Miller to preach there that evening, and offered their house to him as long as he wanted it. He preached there that evening and the next day. (Saturday), at eleven o'clock, to a large and attentive audience, and made some good impressions -30 much so that they requested him to continue, but as his appointment for that evening was at Sugar Tree, he could not. Some followed him to Sugar Tree. He had quite a number of meetings at Sugar Tree, awakened quite an interest; a few were buried with Christ in baptism, and more were induced to search the Scriptures. It now came to the point that it was necessary for Brother Miller to continue his labors at Woodstock and at Sugar Tree. and the time being here that duty called him

After arranging undters at home, Brother Miller again left home on the 16th of January. 1879, for Wisconsin; and made Woodstock and Sugar Tree the base of his labors. He tonod the people at both places very intelligent, kind-hearted, well-behaved and truth-seeking.

After libering one week at Woodstock and one week at Sugar Tree, Brother Miller found that the company of a dearon was not sufficient. fluit something more was needed, so be called Brother Martin Meyers to his assistmice. As soon as Brother Meyers, came, the dencon went home. The Brethren with their rambined efforts, and the help of the Lord. have done much good; in fact the work is just begun, not only at Whodstock and Sugar Tree. last at different places where they have preached while in Wisconsin.

The Brethren arrived home on the first day of Murch, with the expectation of going back to Wisconsin, if no apposition; for the way they left things a contumed ministernal labor is needed, and those that began the work are hest adapted to carry it out. When they left Wisconsin, they had quite a number, of applicants, and many searching the Scriptures.

The Tract Association should be made more effective. We found a great demand for tracts in Wisconsin. Many more should be sold than what are, as many are willing and able to pay for them. Every missionary should take as many tracts with him as he conveniently can, innice it known that such as are able and willmg, would be expected by pay for them, and the money appropriated in publishing tracts

Many of the Brethren have no idea what an amount of good can be done by distributing tracts. Even the Briging S vt Work is doing a great deal of good. We had about a dozen copies of them with us, and distributed them one evening after meeting. In a fewevenings after, we were asked for more papers. and were sorry to say that we had no more, and objective and and help growing worse not won-e but those distributed went toom hand to hand, build have not set of all her pone and helple-s goo and were a great help to the missionary work, because they and the prescheragueed, and the two agrowd with the Cospel. So much for joispersithat are tree of contention. A Coscel paper and a Gospel preacher always do good? and true work. D. F. Eur.

T may be interesting to the many readers of the Bintimory of Work to give a short report of the ametings held here by Brother C. Porney. During these meetings, Brother F. preached a series of doctronal sermeans rather in reply to an attack made by one, J. M. Stejdienson, a. Soulsbeger-against our faith. It will be remembered, also, that the aforesaid J. M. S., adsormade a personal attack on Brother Meore, reflecting on his (Muore's) scholar-hip, which was again reported to Brothor Moore, and the latter replied in an editorial. which was read during our meetings. Brother Forney made a gallant defense, and made some powerful criticisms on the grammar addoced by J. M. S., in his analysis of the commission,

The immediate results of Brother Forney's preaching were, tour additions by baptism and eries of abusives on the faith of the Brethren That his arguments were very convincing, your readers are invited to consider the following: He said he came along where the "Dunkards" were baptizing, and it reminded him of a lot of ducks dipping for worms. His sermous on the supper were equally ridiculous, and upon the whole, his attacks and the reply of Brother Forney, only served to strengthen our cause. There latter sermons of Stephenson we did not deem necessary to reply to, as they were Jonathan Lichty. self-convicting.

LOOK TO JESUS.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD,

OOK to Jesus, He's the Savior, 1 Look to Hun in earnest prayer: Look to Him in faith, not doubting, Thus you can His blessing share.

Look to Him when round the table-Look to Him by giving thanks; Look to Him-implore His blessings,-Lift your souls to higher ranks.

Look to Him when day is dawning, Look to Him before you sleep: Ask Him to probet you and goard you, And your life in safety keep.

Look to Him in every ordinance. And His precepts all obey: Look to Him when you'r in darkness. Look when so the light of day.

Look to Jesus, look to Jesus. Then that way, you sare will go: For, as men look, so do they walk, Winde traveling here below.

Look to Jesus, look to Josus. Loade to Him in every thing; Look to Hun the only Savior. And yourself an offering bring.

BA MATTICA TEAR

"For the law of the Spirit of the in Christ Jesus both made me free from the law of sin, and death." Romans 8, 2

TERE are three laws alluded to by the apastle in the above passage, sin, and the law of death. The law of death was that law that was promulgated from Sinai. The apostle in the preeeeding chapter, after extelling the law of Moses, labors to show his brethren. that though the law was hely, and the commandment hely, and just, and good, yet it was not sufficient for their needs. It could not delive them from the law of sing yet it had its office to perform in the great redemptive plan. That office. was to reveal or make manifest sin, "For to the law is the knowledge of sin." Again, the apostle says, of had not known sin but by the law, for I had not known lust except the law had said, then shalt not covet."

Him how, it may be asked, is sin re By exposing or lainging its crine commandment came sin revived and I own impotency, and the impotency of died; and the commandment, which was the law, cried out in agony, "Ot wretch ordained intellife, I found to be unto of man that I am! Who shall deliver death." What, the law which God had me from the body of this death?" Who ordained to life, be unitedeath! Why shall deliver me from this awful barden, this strange subversion of God's purpose; the stench of which is constantly in my est. What caused their effects to be so mostrils? But Paul at last found the De opposite to his designs? "Sin," the apose liverer; not, however, in the school of the answers; "For sin taking occasion science, not at the feet of Gamaliel, but by the communication of deceaved me, and the found him in the once despised Naz. by a servence? We not the apostic, in parency then he breaks forth in the cheer.

the language of our text, calls this law, the law of death. This was not the original design of it. It was not ordained or established for that purpose. It was ordained as the instrument of life, but sin had made it the instrument or means through which it wrought death.

Again the apostle asks, "Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. But sin, that it might appear sin," that its hideousness and Idnekness might be revealed, "working death in me by that which is good." The agent must indeed be lead that can use a good instrument to perform a wicked purpose. Continues the apostle, "That sin by the commandment might be exceeding sin ful," i. e., that sin by means of the conmandment might be shown to be exceeding smful.

But what is meant by the law of death spoken of in our text? Law, is sometimes spoken of in the Scriptures as that which bath the force of governing and controlling on actions. All these who are in a state of nature, or unregenerated are under the dominion of sin.

What a terrible picture is drawn by Holy Writ of man's rapid declension under the sway of sin. We read early in the history of the race, these terrible lines; "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." Further on, we have a terrible picture drawn by Judah's prophet of the sad condition of that chosen people after they had fallen under the dominion of sin. Hear Isaiah: "Ah, sintul nation, a people lader with iniquity, a seed of evil doers, children that are corrupted: the law of the Spirit of life, the law of they have forsaken the Lord, they have provoked the Holy One of Israel unto auger, they have gone away backward Why should ye be stricken any more? Ye will revolt more and more. The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even undo the head, there is no soundness in it; but wounds, and Junises, and jutte fying sores; they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with continent " The following is David's description of man under the power of sin: "They are all gone aside," they are all together become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one." terrible picture, the apostle adds the following: " Their throat is an open sepul clire; with their tongues they have used venled, or made manifest by the law! decoit; the poison of asps is under their lips; whose mouth is full of cursing and inality to light. Paul says, "I had not bitterness; their feet are swift to shed known lust except the law had said. Idood; destruction and misery are in thou shalt not covet," i. e., I had not their ways; and the way of peace have known that those eager, longing desires they not known." From this terrible sthralldom, man could not extricate himful, had not the law taught me this, I self, hence the spostle in giving his own experience says, "For the good that I would, I do not; but the evil which I 2. The law gives the knowledge of would not, that I do." As man could sin by contrast. We there behold, as in (not break his own fetters, and as the law a mirror, the parity and beliness of God, given by Meses could not deliver him, and his just demands upon us. The sin \something more powerful than the law, ner thus arraigned before this bar of purfor man's own skill must come to his rerity, sees himself in all his douthesome. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh."

We will next try to consider the law of the Spirit of life. Life, oh what mean ing in that word! We, who were dead in trespasses and sins, hath the quickened. And not only have we been quickened, made alive, aroused from our lethargy, but we have been made alive in Christ Jesus. We have not only been made to hate sin, but we have been brought into fellowship with God through the Spirit. Blessed truth, this law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus breaks the fetters of sin, and releaves us, not only from its power, but also from the love of sin, the contamination of sin, and from the guilt of sin. It is a complete and jing over his poor, and he has placed perfect deliverance. No wonder the apostle says, "Therefore if any man be the blessed privilege of relieving their in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." What a debt of gratitude do we owe to our great Deliverer! himself; but he has arranged it that those What the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh." The law was rendered insufficient, having to act those who are not so well supplied. Nor through the agency of the flesh. The is our duty done when we supply the flesh instead of seconding the operations wants of the body; they have spiritual of the law opposed them; for Paul (tells) us, "I know that in me, (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing". The above quotation does not very well agree with the "faith alone" doc trine taught at the present time. Paul tells us that Christ conquered sin, why? that we should be released from all obligations (No; but that we might be rendered capable of fulfilling, or accounplishing the righteousness of the law. Nothing could be more erroneous than the opinion that Christ has done all for us, and therefore we have nothing to do. The fact is, Christ has only removed our 405 we ever read of the churches of an disability, and consequently made corrresponsibilities many fold more. Our heavenly Father does not require impossibilities of us, but he does require that we do what we can,

As the righteousness of the law could not be fulfilled, or accomplished by those who lived under the law, because of their disability, it would be reasonable. to suppose that if God removes this disability, he would then require that we ediev his hely precepts; and such we are taught in his Word is the case.

ye have always with you," showing plainly the church will never be with out its poor. Next, what is our duty to. wards the poor? We must not say, "20 he ye clothed and fed." but must look after their comfort. Some require them to make their wants known. Must we wait for that? Some of them, and the best poor members we have, would live on bread and water before they would apply to the church, or their brethren for assistance.

It is the duty of these that God has blessed with alumdance, to seek out the needy and privately bestow their alms, "Let not the left hand know what the right hand dowth." If we are applied to for alms, and give them, it seems a matter of necessity; but if we seek out the object of charity, it then has the face of a free gift, and "God loves a cheerful diver."

The eyes of the Lord are ever watch. here purposely that the rich should have wants, and were unto those who fail to do their duty in relieving the distressed tical could easily feed and clothe them whom he has blessed with plenty can have the ideasure of conferring favors on needs too, and while we are contributing to loadily necessities, let us do it kindly.

Our Savior said, "by this shall all charity, it profiteth me nothing." This But why was this stupencious work text proves that giving is not all, but be more highly appreciated by them.

This thing of a committee being sent to investigate, if they are in need of mything, and then delivering a report to the church and a general consultation over it, is both uncalled for and unscriptural. Some suppose that they do not properly employ their time, or they would not begoine a lairden teethe church. and menty other such things concerning their needy condition. Do we ever read of such a church rule in the Scriptures! cient days sending brethren to see if this or that family were in need! If there is such Scripture, I would like to see it. There is one afflicted brother, C.H. Bals louigh, who has several times made his wants known through the columns of our periodicals +a brother that is wear ing his feelde life away in the work of the church. THREE GREAT FAMILY EVENTS

First, When a Child is Born.

BY T. K. PLANK.

TWIE birth of a child is a great event. whether the parents be rich or poor, high or low; whether the little helpless stranger is born to wear a crown, or to beg in the streets, and die in a poor house—it is the same great event in all cases, and under all circumstances it is a new creature. God then breathes into the infant form an intelligent and immortal spirit, which knows no decay, and will still be young when the mate rial heavens shall have waxed old as doth a garment, and vanished away like smoke. Every birth is adding one more to the innumerable throng which will arise from glory to glory, or sink in the blackness of darkness forever. Nor is the momentousness of the event in the least diminished by the fact that there are many thousands of such creatures every day.

Tattle as the birth of a child is noticed, out of the family, who can tell but it may be a more important event in its eternal issues and relations than the creation of a star that sooner or later may be extinguished forever? Extremely improbable as such a supposition is, who can tell but that the material heavens will somewhere, in the progress of eternal ages, be annihilated, and others, mispealed by more glorious, be created to shine in

But what God has plainly revealed let us go with full determinations and by such a circumstance. I think if we must live forever. Not is it merely its Mysserving the Lord. Since that time coat is taken, we muse not forbid correble of eating, drunking, sloping, and I have had to dight hard. I thought cloud being taken also, I know of some waking, without an intelligent nemd, when I come to the church, or give upoprofessed Christians, who, when they are without a consciouce, without memory, by burner habors that I would have no offended, will draw their coat, ready for without the provisional beginning upon the led just now, but so long as they spall work to do that oh, how early mastake a fight, and read a lesson in God's Word (past, or as dicipating the fator) in weedle "It has " Shoully after I made the twee a day but some how or other this matter ber little whether soch a more and contession. I thought I would be they cannot find; I do not wonder at sention being were to be mortalisted in tablish regular family prayer; this was them, for I heard their pastor tell them, a few year, or to exist forever. There the line from pray so much, and my newcould not deprive any one of this, ed or lost. But the precious Laborator less infant muc yet be a Newton or a Milton, who can fell? It will soon become a thinking and responsible being; and willlive, not in the present only, but in the past and the future. Beyond the grave it will remember its joys and its sorrows here, and will be forever looking forward to increased happiness or greater misery. What, then, in comparison with the birth of a child, are any of those events in family history which are commonly looked upon as great? What to a poor man, the sudden hestowment of an independent fortune, or being invested with the highest honors of the State? O happy mother! dost thou know what a treasure God has given thee? Hast thou begun to conceive what a priceless jewel he has put into thine hands to be polished, and what amazing responsibilities are wrapped up in the precious gift! Oh thou delighted father! dost then know that an immortal spirit is committed to thy training, and that its eternal destiny may be decided by what thou doest or by what thou meglectest to do? Regard it as thou mayest, the birth of the child is the first of the three greatest events, that, can take place in a family,

The second is when that child is born again. This indeed may never happen in your family. Alas, how many large families there are in which there is no reason to think that any of the children are born again. But we have every eve litence that the birth does take place in some in many. The necessity of such a great moral change, is explicitly declared by our Savior in his conversation with Nicodemus; "Verily, verily I say unto you, except a man be lown again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." It is a universal proposition, the word "man" here is to be understood in its general sense, as comprehending the whole race,

It is predicted that the financial difficulties and general depression of business in England and Russia, will cause a large increase of contgration to this country the ensuing year. Should the emigrants stop in cities it will only augment our difficulties. If possible they should he persuaded to help fill up the unsettled portions of the West, and thus obtain for themselves comfortable homes.

Abernashor Parcell, of Cincinnati, has failed financially, and is found to be in debt about six million dollars. To relieve him the Roman Catholic priests proposed to get up a grand lottery scheme, but the laws of the State of Ohio forbid lotteries, hence these coming priests are laboring to have the laws changed so that they can go on with their lottery. This is another piece of Catholic corruption.

MINISTERS should be careful and not tell stories when preaching. We sometimes hear a manister say, "I will now bring my remarks to a close," and then he preaches about a hult hour longer, occasionally telling the congregafrom that he will soon be through, but much to their nortification, nearly wears the congregation out before he stops. Such actions injure the cause, and causes many honest people to lose confidence of the benefits of religion.

THERE is not enough of distinction between the church and the world; there is not enough of difference, not that the world is four good, but the church is not good enough; the church has not reached that point which duty demands. she should attain to. The church ought to be as separate and as distinct from the world as the dews are from other people. Members ought to patronize each other in every just way, and thus form a stronger bond of union.

THE BELLINERS AT WORK is widely read in Lanack, and occasionally it makes a sensation. But here is a letter showing what the paper is doing in a mild way:

"Messers Moror it Eshelmon:—I have been reading the Bretingax at Work, and like it very much. Although I am not a member of your church. I have been watching it closely, and I do believe you are serving God in the way that he commands. I have been attending your Sunday-school in this idace for the last tow mouths, and it has been the means of leading me to search the Scriptures more than I ever have before. I wish you well in your good world." SACESTIC SCHOOL SCHOLAR.

Even learn to respect the aged and infirm To do otherwise, shows laid breeding. The last envilved nations show great respect to those who are old and feelde. It is said that the I reach will pay more regard to an aged woman. than a pretty young one. They think young people can help themselves, but when it roups to ald people they need help. Even the Chinese and Japanese are pulled and gentral toward the aged persons among them. If you would be refined and polite, learn to respect those who are older. A little trouble on your part will only add to your culture.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER,

Much good can be accomplished in most any laaddy by distributing the Brazillin's Vi Work regularly among well-desposed outsiders. They will take great pleasure in reading it, become mlegested in its contents, and therefore form a strong attachment for the cloucleand its doctrine, Conrregations wishing to try this method of spreading the truth among their neighbors should proceed to raise the mones, order a number of papers sent to the address of some brother or sister, who is lacare for and distribute there at the close of services. This method of doing massionary work will be found especially serviceable in localities where new congregations are building up-

THE REFORM

THE temperance advocates are circulating a quijor, petitioning the Legislative body of this State, to provide first the question of licensing the sale of any or all intexicating drinks shall be submitted to, and determined by ballot, in which women of lawful age shall have the privilege of taking part the same as men. If the women are left to settle this question, the liquor traffic will be banished, and well it should be.

PRINCIPLE: NOT POLICY

riff motors of men always have been quesgress rictions. The world has plenty of surpersons who will think evil, or suspect 24 something is not just right.

go way wo do has been called into question by who think we are occupying a kind of alle ground for policy's sake-just to keep on extend side of the church and our renders, of thereby offend none. These persons, per-Mes have never stopped to consider the matter site true light, they have never looked at it 5 " tenable stand-point. They have their wandeas how a paper ought to be run, and the cause we do not fall into their channel somethe set down as "policy men"—men doubts. sho will not s aind the alarm when they see the mager coming. Off course, we have explained and leasting over and ever, yet they cannot see all that we are still policy men and are laborng bar selli-h interest.

 $\frac{n\epsilon}{10}$ all such we beg leave to say that the ourse taken by the BRETHES AT WORK was will marared long before the paper was started; go conceived the idea of publishing a paper that goald stand up for the gospel faith and prac he of our people, a paper that would be free of ostroversy and contention between brethren, apper adapted not only to the wants of the courch, last, also, to work on mission fields. the were then, and are yet, of the unpression hal controversies among brethren are calculatalterow contention and discord in the clouch and thereby in the trouble. Principle, and not whey has prompted us to take this course, and geintend pursaing it as long as it may fall to parlot to edit the paper. Of course, we have no control over other papers, and do not pre gue to dictate for them, but we do purpose to healt in our power to keep peace and harmony m the church, and fallow for the union and good will of thet's people. This is a part of our misand God help us to perform it aright,

As evidence that our cause is a good one it is mly necessary to refer to the just. There was a time when controversy was carried to its highest joich in the Brethnen's jupers. Tree speech was the go and they had it. Hundreds of members became disgusted, and, as a corse quence, stopped their papers. Others formed them as soon as they were read, fearing they would full rate their neighbors' hands. The Brotherhood was full of discord and contention. The Annual Meeting was any thing but pleas ant, and was always looked forward to with Very little missionary work was done, though gwa much talked and written about.

poursies between members were excluded from the Brethren's papers, and the efforts of our copie were turned more to the spreading of the cospel, the establishing of missions, building up dorches, and laboring for the general peace and barmony of the church. What have been the resilts of this change? Since that change has taken place our people have done more missionas work than ever before. More people have em converted than in any pressons period of the church's lastory. And the last Annual Meeting is soul to have been the best meeting of the kind over held among our people. We strainte this largely to the peace and harmony that pervaded the Brethren's papers, for just as som as contraversies censed in our papers that sounded a change commence in the work of the durch. Brethren mstead of biting and devour-We such other, formed their attention to mis-™ary work—to the spreading of the gosted and the general good at the church.

These are some of the reasons why our paper dauls out to peace principles—we are satisfied Wat it is better for the church, and the history of the past proves it. We helieve that it conhave between member- could have been The or observed time to maintain peace, miscellaneous controlerses, under those cit- howel, and ordered to be put on the present Man

Were it not for this, more missionary work could be done. One party does not seem disposed to do anything in spreading the gospel, pared, and we presume they will continue while the other wants to run things at lightbe much the bestombes pit is opened to re- unry speed, but the conservative element labors to get the whole church to move together. This has been accomplished in Illinois as well as other places where good field work is being Econ our matives for conducting our paper done, not by controversy, not by exposing or saying hard things about each other, but by adopting peaceable measures. This is the course the BESTHES AT WORK has taken from the beginning, and it has been the means of accomplishing good thereby, and we purpose to stick to the same old platform. Did all our papers strictly adhere to this position there would be no difficulty about bringing the other two elements in line with the conservative. But as it now is we cannot help but entertum some

We further add that the church is regarded as a family. Eph. 3: 45. It is controlled and governed by the Law of heaven. Its members are bound by the great Bond of Peace. If one member suffers all the others suffer with it; it one rejoices all the others have poyalso. It'or. 12: 26. They must have the same love, the same case for each other. Pail, 2: 2. They are required to be of one mind, the same judgment. I Cor. I: 40. Knowing these things, is it pin dent to publish to the world such differences a have arisen amongst us? Would we consider it wise if a member of a family should go out amongst his neighbors and fell all the little differences which may have arisen in that family? Would the felling of it make any one more hoby, a better neighbor? Suppose John's method of building fence did not exactly suit James, would it be wisdom for James to go and tell his neighbors and make John's method look as ngly as he can, even to go so far as to more prescut it? No inde d; such a James could not be regarded as a blessing to either the laundy or neighborhood. So in the church of God; we all agree to what is written in the one great Black of God, but we differ some in the method of doing certain things. We do not differ where God has given the manner of doing, but where he has left it to the judgment of the church. Now is it wise or even manly to publish those differences to the world? Has any man a right to maintain and advocate his opinions as superior to those laid down by the church? And is it brotherly to call each other " pedrey men." " milk and-water men," just because we may differ about things that are not with the matter weeks and the second with the plans and equations of my brother, am I justified in publishing his opinions to make head, and every body felt glad when it was over. The m look indiculous? The brightest gold may he made almoximis to man by associating it with filth, nevertheless the gold would still be But in course of time matters changed; con- gold. Thes not Paul clearly show what we should deem unrevealed matters? "But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." Rom-14: 10. If my brother has his method of doing good, why should I judge him? or try to set hao at nought? So long as he violat sho gosjed jamende, am I no bound by the saw of That to let him alone?

It I advocate free press, free speech, freedom in Christ, why should I maintest so much meanness where my brother is doing precisely what I advocate? Some men get section that you cannot tell where they are going. When Thear a man talk of bondage in America, I wonder whether he is not free to walk over Xiagura Palls? Certainly he is; for just that far is freedom extended in this country. Why, a man is free to go out of the one body if he will He is not torced to stay in and do as he pleases. If people have no respect for themselves, they ought to have at least a little respect for the church. I see nouse in the whole-church being turned upside down just to suit the opinion of one or two men.

Then, our paper has a large circulation on sept on of the Brethren's papers three years the mission field, larger, we presume, than any onger that our people would, by that time, be paper ever published among the Brethren; in More soliday amuted than ever before. Among Last, it is a regular missionary paper, and is docar people are, those elements — the slow, the long missionary work. It is going to hundreds lativard conservative. The conservative consideration of outsiders. Members send us money, and The the great body or strength of the church, have us send the papers, to their friends, and The other two elements are just the equasite of meighbors, saying that it is the very paper to tach other and it keeps to enradiout larsy oppose alogoed because if is free of controversy between As one another, while it takes much of the consumembers. Would it be right for us to a limit cumstances? Certainly it would not; we would do more harm than good.

If other papers want to publish all the little difficulties and troubles they can bear of in the church, to the world; if they want to allow their contributors to abuse the old brethren, say burd things about them and make fun of them, and thereby bring disgrace and stigma on the church, we cannot help it; but we do not think they ought to call us "policy men" or "milk-and-water men," because we do not do it. That is not the right way of conducting a paper; we do not think it is calculated to increase the peace and hirmony of the church; we do not think the reading of such things is calculated to convert people and bring them into the church. We are opposed to it from principle and not from policy, and as such our position nught to be respected.

TOBACCO AND THE ANNUAL MEETING.

ME of our renders think we write and pub-I lish too many articles against the use of tobacco. They say the old Brethren used it; they did not condemn its use like we do, and, therefore, we should just let it alone and say nothing about it. In order to see how our old Brothren stood on the tobacco question, we concinded to look it inp, and we must confess that we were agreeably surprised. Our old Brethren were sound on that question, and we would that others were equally sound. We shall take the liberty of copying all the Annual Meeting has said on the subject, leaving our readers to judge whether we, in our articles, have been too severe in denomicing the use of the weed. The following decision was possed at the A. M. in 1817. We quote from the Minutes, page 52.

" Concerning the use of tolorers, if was in muon oursidered, that if a member should be containingal with it, such should be admenshed to gad it and if it would not to told, such a member could a to elected to any other in the closeds."

By this it will be seen that the Brethren advised that if a brother would not quit the use of tobacco he could not be elected to any office in the church. That is a good deal plainer than we talk. We next turn to page 50 white we have the following, passed in 1822:

"Concerning the abuse of tobacco. This has been schore the faceting already before this, and was always considered a shancefully bad habit (German) Untugendo-and every thing had, says the apostle, is sin, and sin delileth the body, and another aposthe says that your bodies, together with soul and quist, shall be lody?

In 1827 a question in regard to raising tobacco was before the Meeting, and was disposed of as Jolliows:

re Concorning members who engage in the casing orrobacco? Consubjed, that members should have nothing to do with such things, by which so fined mischel is done, and so many men cand wonden too are left captive, as is the case, with Joba co." Page 56.

The following was before the A. M. in 1830: " Whether brother may be intemperate with drong drink or tolorese? No." (Page 85

The decision of 1864 looks a little weak. The prory and answer read as follows:

2 Intermedicas all that our Annual Meeting has lather to done to suppress the excession and toperate use of bibacco, in smoking and chewing, has entradly proved a bulines, could not this needing clops some nectical by which the excessive use of this 21 owing eval-could be suppressed around brothe reflected 2. As the use of foliaeco is offensive to some brefficer, and sisters, and the excessive use of it an exit, we solvise and counsel brethreic not to use it include of worship, so as to be either lidly or offersive to others, and we think our ministering brethren should admonish, their noviders not to indulge in the expessive use of it many way, seause it is wrong budo so.

But at the A. M. in 1870 the advice was to the count, and comes out in a clear distinct ring;

"some the Annual Meeting has, at different times, decided against the recessive use of Johnese see Minutes of 1861, Art. By this it will be seen that the Annual Meeting is about as much opposed to the use of tobacco as either the gaspel or the Brethren J. H. M.

PROFESSOR KNAPP'S TERRIBLE PREDICTION.

STRONOMERS are looking forward to the coming year with considerable perplexity, believing that the year 1880 will bring with it the most wide-spread and dreadful calamities that have been known for over two thousand

To explain: - The sun is the center of our solar system; around the san revolve a number of planets, and among them is the earth. There are vertain periods when these planets approach nearest the sun. These periods are noted for general culamities, for the peculiar relation the planets sustain to each other produces serious disturbances in the atmosphere, thus causing terrible rains, or prolonged drouths, funines. diseases and postilences generally,

Soon after 1880, four of the larger planets will be at their nearest approach to the sun, something that has not happened for two thousand years. We are rapidly approaching that period, and already the distant rumblings would seem to indicate that the storm is approaching. One of our exchanges says: "The fact that so many fish are dying off the coast of Florida calls to mind the awful prediction of Professor Knupp. From the juxtaposition of certain planets to our earth, he predicts that one half of the population of the world, including man and animals, and even vegetable life, will perish before 1880. In a lecture delivered several years ago he said that this desolation would commence by the fish of the sea dying, and pestilence and famine occurring in more southern latitude,"

The lamines in China and Brazil, the scourge m South America, the Idack and fatal plugue That is almost depopulating certain parts of Asia, as well as the pestilence among the fish in the Southern waters look like so many steps in the fallillment of the dryadful prophecy. It looks much like the fulfilling of the prophecy aftered by the Savior, and recorded in Inke 21: 25, 26; And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and apon the earth distress of mations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves rearing; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken,"

The propheries are tast fulfilling: the "times of the Contiles" is about fulfilled, men's hearts are failing them, the guspel has been made known in nearly every part of the earth, and already the civilized world is biolong with mingled bellings of awe and anxiety to the great future. We are living in a fearful age. May God help us to confide in him.

HOW I CATCH FISH.

THE following, sent us by a brother, may be a little amasing, and to some appear somewhat ridiculous, but there is a good deal of trath in it. It is the language of an old expenenced fisherman to a minister:

"The reason so few sunners are converted is locanse of the manner in which you angle for them When I go fishing," remarked the old fishermin, "I use a very delicate puls, an almost invisible line, a hook of the most artistic workmaneships and at the end of all, a very tempting but, which I softly and carefully drop ant otherstream. But when you marasters start out, you take for a jode a weaver's beam, to who haven fasten a cart rope with a pot book stached, and a enapping turtle for a bait. This you throw into the water with a splash and exlano, "late or le damied."

There is too much of this kind of work going on. Snapping furtles may be good enough in n their place, but they are not the kind of things with which to eatch fish. Every Bible reader is aware that the Savier in selecting his twelve apostles, made choice of a number of islamman men skilled in the art of lishing. He wanted them to become fishers of men, and to decote their time, and energies to converting and getting pople into the church. This required as much skill and patience as fishing.

HOW TO ADJUST DIFFICULTIES

BY E. KYLE.

Moreover If thy brother shall trespass against thre, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone; it he shall hear thee, thun hast gained thy brother."—Matt, 18:45.

TMIE above is the language of Jesus Christ the great head of the elimetic and was given by lum as a rule, or a law, by which Christians can adjust all differences, trespasses, or offenses, that may brise between them and their brethren. If they are guilty of the same offense that they charge their brother, with, and bring a charge against him, they certainly are as unreasonable as the unforgiving servant; and God, the rightcons judge, will deal with him accordingly in the great day of secknoing. "Moreover if thy brother shall trespass," that is, sin or offend thee, go and fell-hum of his half, not go and Num. 10: 29. Onto good impressions appartell it to some one else, or to the church; for indoing so, you trespass upon your haptismal. promise, that if you saw anything wrong in your brother or sister, you would privately goand talk to him; and, in the spirit of love, edmonish him and show him bis fault, and try to gain thy brother thyself before you would tell; if to the church.

Many a poor soul that, once bid fair (in this stafal world) for the Jugher regions of glory. has been crushed down by some brother departmy from the above rule and going and telling [1, 2, 3, Saburday evening, large attendance the offense to others or to the church before going to see the one that offended or trespossed. This discourages the brother and he thinks it is of any of the previous meetings, except one, mease for him to fry when his brethren do not. Dear Brethvenz--

THINK this a good country, and reisonably healthy. The Winter, so far, has been more severe than I expected it to be, yet it has been nothing to compare with Himos. The snow has been nearly a took deep in the valley, while on the mountains it has been from one talen feet deep, most of the fime.

If there were a church here, I think I could locate and be satisfied, but there is no church and only a few Brethren, and they are scattered throughout the country. Brother David Brower held four meetings in this vicinity while on his return from the upper econdry,

People here are very friendly and hospitable to strangers, much more so than in the States, We will probably locate somewhere near Brother Browers, if the country suits, if not, we calculate settling somewhere in Western Oregon. This is a rich, fertile country, producing nearly all kinds of grain and vegetables in great quantities and of excellent quality. Wheat and barley are the staples. Potations and garden products grow abundantly on meanly all scal. Fruit trees do not thrive well in all localities, but bear well where they grow. The greatest drawback here is the scarcity of water during the dry season. Many fine tracts of hind of rich soil are much depreciated in value from the fact that water cannot be found. agent them. These lands are often farmed, but ace very expensive, as water has to be handed for their children, and the cause moved along, I com the nearest spring or stream. In course of time when the country becomes beffer setsmannty of action and unity of sentiment, ted, more extensive efforts will be made topics cure water in greater alundance.

Taking the age and geographical position of this country into consideration, we think it compares layoraldy in progress, religion and morals with any new country in the great West. What is needed here is not so much hers were converted. NUMBER 11.

TE last left you with thoughts upon the "Christian soldier," and now we wish to say to the realers of the Busturen at WORK, that the Brethren of Cedar Co., Iowa, in these days of religious discussions, have had a discussion, too. Our little band of Christian soldiers were enjoying the comp of Brother B. F. Miller, when an Adventist suddenly made his advent in our camp. He, Jesse Dorcus, a very talkative friend, who seems to be cambid in his convictions, opened his Sabhath battery at once. Few were the preliminaries, Subject, Sabbuth. Disputants, M. M. Eshelman and Jesse Dorcas. Moderator, B. F. Miller. Time. five minutes each. Although this discussion lasted all afternoon, we all enjoyed it very much; and we teel that the truth was well sustnined by Brother Esbelman.

Brother Eshelman met with us again in the evening, when the subject of "I'myer" was presented and treated upon. Points brought to our notice were.

Asking—God says ask,

11. Does God answer prayer?-This was beautifully shown in the affirmative, by calling attention to Bilde circumstances, such as,

1. Moses praying for Israel.

Elijah's prayer.

Hez.—15 years granted unto him.

Paul on the sea—prayed,

Peter in prison—the brethren prayed, With these, and many illusions to our own expersence, our hearts were greatly refreshed, to look up to the Lard who does answer prayer when asked in faith believing,

III. How does God answer prayer?

1. In his own way—miraculously,

2 Inconsistencies.—Here were noticed, the asking uniss process, which the Scriptures freal apon.

Object in prayer, with a hearty appeal $1V_{\perp}$

4. The saint to pray without reasing.

2. The sinner to call on the Lord while he

In concluding this short essay, or skeleton ermon, which is very greatly abridged, I cannot refrain from presenting still a few lines of thought. Brethren and sisters, prayer does not mean a mere-form of words repeated, as prayers as hip service, but prayer that the Lord delights to hear, is of a broken heart, and of a contrite spirit, -a sensitive heart-felt, and simb-penetrating prayer. But, I fear that it is a lamentable fact, that there are hundreds and thousands of professing Christians in the world who are not seen or heard recognizing the Lord in prayer. O may the Sun of rightconsness shine so sweetly into our hearts, that it may be one of the nost pleasant and dedightful services of our lives to tender thanks and praise to the Lord in prayer.

She has been sold, but is now able to sit onthe side of her hed and eat her meals. She was The Gerrel Hammer, and Highway Grades or Rethan her meals and the way of life By S. B. Bashot, and hear her and Brother Metzger tell the good story of Jesus' love, and call back many of the gone-by days of yore. The time drawing near in which we must again part, the old sister requested him to kneel once more in prayer again, as she could not expect to go to hear him preach again; there being ten or eleven members and five or six friends present, we were all gathered in the room, and at the old sister's request, the sixth chapter of Ephesians was read, and the good old hymn "Am I a soldier of the cross?" was sung; after which Brother Metzger delivered, perhaps, one of the ablest and most effectual prayers of his life. A few moments more and we had taken, the parting hand probably for the last time in this life, and were on our way for Camp Point, being led by Sister Barbara Allen, and friend, David, her husband, with whom we stayed till morning, when the old veteran of the cross started for home. Hope he has reached in safety, and enjoying its rich hospitalities.

To My Dear Friend Tillie Cessford.

DEACE be unto you and grace from God the Father and Jesus Christ, through whom we have access to a throne of grace, and for which we are very thankful to the Lord. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosnever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." For this those of us who have become willing to give our hearts to Jesus, can rejoice. He is our strength and shield in the day of trouble. But when we must hear the cross, or temptations come, we sa often become abscouraged. But when we think what the Savier does done for us, what he bore in the garden, and suffered on the cross, we can sink in his mins and say "my Got, thy will be done," We know he doeth all things well.

Dear Tillie, the evening you gave Brother Esbelman good-bye after he had beloned with is and longht as the ways of the Lord, and your fender, loving heart was sail, thinking that perhaps that would be the last larewell. that he could ever give you in this world- it made me think of that glorious time, when Jesus shall call us home. Oh if we are only ready then formed our Eather in his kingdom. But if we are not prepared for that time, what a separation there will be! The night you gave Brother Eshelman good-bye, I wept for you. lied upon them and their authorities, for my testimony.

I am sorry my friend becomes so much excited, and so disregards our rules of debate, as to impugn my motives and accuse me of falsehood because I asked him about "christian ordinances," and why he did not wash the saint's feet. It is my privilege to ask questions, and it I am uninformed or mistaken I um willing to be corrected. I did not think he washed his brethren's feet, because I know the people generally, with whom he holds fellowship, do not do so, unless they changed very materially from what they were when I knew them.

The Brethren get their practice of washing one another's feet, as a lesson of humility, from the New Testament-from Christ. John 13. He gets his from the old Bible, from uncient custom. That's the difference. I ask him to give us his scripture for only two "charch ordinances"?

He still seems concerned about the brethren and sisters not exchanging the kiss. He will find our anthority for not doing so, in the same scripture that confines him, in "feet-washing," to his own ser.

Because with us the parts of the body or church are subject to the whole, my friend calls it an "uncriptural church government," We call for the scripture. The members of Christ's body, like those of the human body, are mutually dependent and "every one members one of another." Rom. 12; 5. "There is one body," Eph. 4: 1. Its members should be "perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment," 1 Cor. 1: 10. They are "ull" to "he subject one to another." 1 Pet. 5: 5.

That our church government is a "centralized hierarchy," we emphatically deny. Our church business is transacted by the voice of the membership, and our general councils are delegated and made up by the members (the people) simply as advisory and co-operative. When our general council was asked the question, "Does Annual Council make laws, or give advice only, in cases where it has no direct gosnel on the subject?" it answered, "It gives oulene only." Minutes of Annual Council for 18-65, Art. 34

Second exasin under 3th characteristic contimed. My friend thinks this is like the prayer of the Phansee. We do not claim that our brethren are naturally better than other men. We "have no confidence in the flesh," but we maintain that they accept and exercise by the help of the hard the graces and virtues alluded la. True, we often fall short of duty, but not because we do not desire and labor to perform it. And yet, after we have done what is commanded us we are "emprofitable servants."

So far, my trond has utterly refused to respond to the various arguments. I have drawn from the christian scriptures to show that christians may not fight with carnal weapons. I am sorry I have no respondent. He thinks christians may light and kill each other, as citizens, of civil governments. When Christ torbids via prisoned and brought before the council and onence and retaliation, he makes no more ex-1 commanded by the infers not to speak at all in ception, or reservation in layor of political quar- | the name of Jesus, Acts 4: 18, did they abandon rels and wars than when he forbids robbery, their work as they would have been compelled he will pulge the disoledient. nent. Peter also states our duty to civil functionuries. 1 Pet. 11: 13-17. The "powers" referred to are not military, but civil authorities, as "kings," "governors," &c., and the "sword" spoken of is the sword of civil justice, in the hunds, not of those who are "not of this world" but of the subjects of the governments, intended for the "punishment of evil doers and the praise of them that do well."

War, instead of inflicting the penalties of civil justice, usually usurps and subverts justice and subserves the purposes of human wrath, ambition, cruelty, and revenge, often resulting in the praise of them that do evil and the suffering of them who do well. Often the monster in vice and crime is extolled to the heavens, his palace adorned with the stolen spoils of patient lahor, and his coffers filled with plundered treasures, while the inotfensive son of honest toll is shot down like a beast, his property stolen, his family abused, and his little orphans exposed to the merciless pinchings of unjust poverty.

That the powers referred to as ordained of God, are imited to all of a certain class of anthorities only, appears in that a looser interpretation would invalidate its own testimony by proving too much, because Sutun himself is "the prince of the power of the nir," "the spirit that worketh in the children of disobedience," and such an inference would not only forbid as to resist the devil, which we are commanded to do, das. 4: 7, but on the assumption that all the demoniacal powers, as well as the wicked powers of this world, are among "the powers that be" and "ordnined of tiod," (for God permits them) would bring us under obligations to patronize and sustain all, and since "every ordinance" of man" with the same loose method of interpretation would include every human religious invention, tending to subvert the ordinances of Christ, therefore, instead of contending "earunestly for the faith once delivered to the saints' and of "keeping the ordinances as they were delivered," we would be under obligations to "teach for doctrines the commandments of men" and to "render the commandments of God of none effect" by human "traditions."

The dues to be rendered are not nor add todeno, but "tribute" "custom." "fear," and "honor;" immediately after which we are admonished on the duty of love and reminded of the law which says, "Thou shall not full" All this would constitute a strange medley indeed if we were commanded to obey orders to commit murder and do violence. Even ered functionsmes may exercise authority not conferred nor approved by God, when instead of exacting "good order, tribute, custom, tear, honor," &c. when due, they overlesp the bounds of right and justice, and contrary to heaven's authority. command the servants of God to violate divine communids.

Christ warned his disciples of having to appear before such authordies, and charged them to speak only what the Holy Spirit should teach, Jake 12: 11. When Peter and John were, imtheft, and adultery. ON THE WAY TO PALESTINE.

[From the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement,] [Mr. McGarvey's second letter did not reach as n time for inscrtion this week. The following properly procedes it.)

A PIUE DRILL AT SEA.

CANNOT resist the temptation to give to the renders of the Standard a description of a peculiar kind of dress parade which I witnessed to day, March 14, on the steamer Pennsylvania

Let me remark, by wny of introduction, that air shipchas ten life-boats - five on each side of the deck. They are each about eighteen feet long, five feet wide and three feet deep. Each is kept constantly supplied with a keg of fresh water, lashed in its place securely; with a water-tight compartment always full of fresh seacrackers; and with a full supply of oars ready for use. They each rest on an iron frame-work above the balastrade at the edge of the deck, and can be readily thrown outward and downward until they hong just outside the balustrade and even with its top rad, ready for passengers and crew to step into them, and be lowered in an instant into the water. Underneath each of these boats lies a separate apparatus called the life-rieft. It consists of two large logs, it you name them by their appearance, about twelve feet long and two feet in diameter, lying four feet apart, with an open frame-work of plank, tilling the space between and holding them together. The log+ are not wood, but solid masses of cook. In the midst of the connecting framework are two water-light comportments, one filled with bread, and the other with drinkingwater. Capt. Harris had some of them, opened for us, and gave us some of the bread to try, which we found good and sound. On these rafts, when in use, the passenger is expected to sit or he as best he can, and it seems quite certain that as long as he does either he cannot sink in any storm. They are lashed to the deck, to be cut loose when the ship is about to sink, or to be thrown overboard it desirable.

Now for the fire-drill. At half past four this. afternoon the beil-rang out a fearful fire alarm. The passengers were in the secret, and on deck to witness the scene. The instant the hell sounded there began to pour forth from the officers' and seamon's gang ways four streams of men, running with all their neight. As they re-hed forth each man took his station, which he knew from previous drills and personal instruction. Within less than a minute, ninety men, four times as many as we had seen before, were on deck, and distributed. a group at each boat, a group at each of the dischoses, a group ofth axes on their shoulders ready to out anything at word of command, the Captain on his lordge aunid ships, and an others with a speaking frampet at each and of the ships being non. THE HEAVENLY RAILROAD SONG

THE road to heaven by Christ was made, With gospel truth the rails were laid, From earth to heaven the road extends, Through life eternal, there it ends.

God's love's the fire, the truth, the stream. That drives the engine and the beam; All you that would to glory ride, Must come to Christ, in him confide.

Repentance is the station then, Where passengers are taken in: No fare then is for them to pay: For Christ himself, he is the way.

Come, then, poor sinner, now's your time, On any station on the line. It you repeat and turn from sin, The car wid stop and take you in.

The car is ready, soon will give Will you go to Leaven, or no? You will draw your wages by the way, And to the end the best of pay.

VOICES OF NATURE.

BY P. A. BOSS.

HMIE subject upon which we desire to make a few comments, is one of incomprehensible profindity. It is one that presents itself to us every day. That theme is the "Voices of Nature." How solemn, and yet how grand, are those voices! When we hear them, we are brought to the remembrance of our great Creater, the Founder of heaven and earth; and we struck with awe, and delight, at the beauty and grandeur with which we are surrounded. The most suldime "Voices of Nature" are the muttering and territic peaks of thumler, which cause the whole earth to vibrate. When we hear and see them, it seems as if God is speaking to us, through those powerful mediums, called the "Voices of Nature." And how forcildy does it remind us of his power and anthority over all things, and with what reverence should we submit to his government. Nor is this all; there are thousands of ways in which we are shown his all wise. power. The beautiful bodies of water which deck the footstood of our Creator and with which we are surrounded, allportain to make up the grand pictures, as well as the realities of Nature. FEET-WASHING.

105 S. S. HAMMER

CORRESPONDENT in the Errore gelical Messenger, under date of October 3rd, 1878, jublished at Clevelaml, Ohio, intimates that feet-washing. as a religious rite, is very unpopular with the young ministers of that denomination. Well, all I have to say about that point of the subject, is this: If the anthor had said that feet-washing was unpopular with Christ and the apostles. and the true followers of the meck and lowly One, who brought from heaven the example himself, and obeyed it and taught it, then I would have said that the nutbor of the above assertion was sadly mistaken; but he does not say that he says the young ministers, that's s mething else. He further says, that through them it will gradually pass into neglect. I believe this, not only feetwashing will pass into neglect, but the whole will and testament of Jesus.

There are those who take a more hopeful view of the matter, and claim that feet washing is the literal washing of the saint's feet, and that it is a positive ordinance of perpetual standing in the testament, the same as laptism, and the whole, then they just stand where I do, and ask aright. But what I was going to say all the law | I distinctly recall to mind of some holy angels, directing his people which requires of us in the matter, is nothing years ago, asking faithfully and repeatto be compened with what Christ had to colly of God to grant me a needed favor, the old dispensation not being perfect. mediately recognize it as an assistant in undergo forus, namely, the painful death_but finally I ceased to ask its grant, but allowing wars, -that is carnal wars be-

GOD'S WAY NOT OUR WAY.

BY RESERVA ANAMELY.

WE know from observation as well as reading in the Scriptures, many things of the goodness of Godbis kindness and mercy shown toward us. Truly we have often to wonder how he can be so patient and forbearing with us, since we are so forgetful and negligent of our duty toward him. We some times even feel to marmur, if not audildy, in secret at him, who, of a truth, is our best friend, just because his way is not our way, and he does not always deal with us as we would like to be dealt with. We are often afflicted in various ways, and then we say, tif not aloud to ourselves), that God suffers it to be so, while we would rather not have it so. but would have our own way. Often when we are cast on a bed of painful suffering, we wonder why it is permitted to be so, and sometimes our near and dear friends are called away from us by the irresistible hand of death, -this is extremely hard for us, and we again wonder why we are thus permitted to be so terrildy and deeply afflicted.

While we thus murning in passing through these fiery trials, will we not raise our eyes beyond all terror and view God as he is? If we are sick, he gives as much comfort, as well as patience to endure it. If death visit us, he so kindly gives us strength and helps us to hear it, if we will only consent to lean on his strong arm of love and mercy. How condescending God is to be so patient and kind with us, when we are so frail, so prone to murmur and so undeserving of such love. If we are in trouble, or east down in any way, he will bear us up as he has promised; he will meet us in the closet at all times, and there and swer prayer as well as hold sweet communion with us, which is rich manua to the sonl, as well as a true solace to the hody,

WHAT IS A SOLDIER?

BY W. H. MILLER,

TITHAT is a soldier? A soldier is on that is drafted, or volunteers defense of his country, using the carnal wenpon to shed his fellow men's blood We should all be soldiers in the great teattle against sin and Satan; but not a carnal weapons; our great Commanda don't want us to be warriors, going ford to the battle of carnality, slaying with the sword and other deadly weapons for Christ says, "all that take the swon shall perish with the sword." Matt. 27 52. Hence it follows that we as breth ren who have professed the name of Je. sus and are trying to walk in his foot steps, should, therefore regard the using of deadly weapons as direct rebellion against our great Redeemer; but there are weapons that we may use, and h using them we run in the straight and narrow way that leadeth unto God. These weapons are such as will put the enemy to flight at any time, if properly used Instead of the carnal sword, we have "the sword of the spirit, which is sharp. er than any two edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of joint and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart, the helmet of salvation, the breastplate of righteonsness." These are some of the weapons we should use, Let us, as professors of Jesus Christ, go forth and fight for him who died for us, and help in thinning the ranks of the enemy, tenring down the strong holds of Satan and thus help to fill up the kingdom of

If we are brave soldiers, we will not fear the wicked nor their fiery darts; neither will we shrink from the commandments of our Captain. Let us use the word of God to defend ourselves. Forty years later that restriction was revirtue of which they were permitted onthem. It is about ten years since this then the progress made by the Jew in peopling their ancient capital has been extraordinary. Almost every one of the old houses as it fell vacant was bought up by them, while they have built a prodigious number of new ones in all parts of the town. Schools, hospitals, and religious associations have been started on a grand scale; and the population, which eighty years ago was, as we have said, barely 200, amounted in 1875 to no less than 10,000 in Jern-a lem alone. Nor have the immigrants neglected to provide for the material improvement of the country. Besides been founded and endowed by a rich Jew of Venice with several thousand pounds. A HOME IN HEAVEN.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

HOME in heaven for all the blest, Who love the Savior's promised rest, And live in peace below: That home is where the saints shall dwell, And Christ who doth our sorrows quell.— That home is free from woe.

Come brethren, sisters, friends, and all, Let us not think the work to small But try to gain that home: Then when this earthly house shall fail, And 'neath the hand of death grows pale. We'll pass to that blest home.

There we may dwell in love and peace. Where joy and rest do never cease, But last forevermore; Then we'll rejoice that we did turn, And all of Satan's evils spurn, Togain this heavenly shore.

Now as this life is all the time, We have to turn from sin and crime, Let us improve it well; Obey the Lord in word and deed, For he's a friend in time of need, He'll rescue us from hell.

Then let us cast on him our care, Then we'll be safe from every snare, In time, and when it's past; He'll gnide us safely to the end, And be to us a constant friend, And give us rest at last.

A home in heaven, oh, will it be, My lot in that blest land to see My Savior's glorious face? And live with him in heaven above, Where all is peace, and joy, and love, Reflecting heavenly grace?

FAITH.

BY H. C. EARLY.

8 faith comprises a fundamental ele- \boldsymbol{A} ment in the Christian religion, it Let us all then be up and doing, for is needful that it occasionally undergo a quiet and serene discussion.

Faith, as admitted and taught, is belief, or the agreement of the understanding to the truth of any proposition. To illustrate: We may believe that all the stars are arranged into groups or systems, governed by one great, grand, intlexible law. This is scientific faith, or faith in science. Again, we may believe that Christopher Columbus was the THE London Globe gives a summary of first of the orientals to bow and kiss American soil. This is historical faith, dinary has been the change in the aspect or faith in history. Again, we may believe the Bible is a revelation from God, erally, in regard to the Jewish inhabi- through Christ his Son, as the only means tants during the last few years. At the "whereby men must be saved," and, that an earnest pursuance of, and a full compliance with it, will ultimately save. This is Bible faith, or faith in the Bible.

We perceive that there are different moved, but another still remained. by | faiths as there are different things, but have not as yet shown that there are different ly to reside in a particular quarter of the | faiths about one and the same thing. To town, which was much too small for lillustrate: One believes that the stars are arranged into groups or systems, govlast regulation was abolished, and since | erned by a harmonious law; and another believes that they are not. Here are two faiths about one and the same thing, and they both cannot be true. Again, one believes that Christopher Columbus was the first of the orientals to how and kiss American soil, and another believes that he was not. Here are two faiths about one and the same thing, and they both cannot be true. Again, one be lieves that the Bible is a revelation from God, through Christ his Son, as the only means "whereby men must be saved, and that an earnest pursuance of, and a full compliance with it, insures salvation. Another believes that it is from God, and numerous other examples which might that a limited pursuance of, and a parbe quoted, a "school agriculture" has tial compliance with it, insures salvation. Another believes that it is from God, and concludes that that belief insures sulvation. Another believes that it is not a work of God at all, that it is a fietion and folly.

Here are several faiths about one and the same thing, and they cannot all be true. Some wonder why men hold so many different taiths respecting one simple volume. I would add that it is, primarily, because of prejudice, and, secondarily, because of ignorance. Nothing gets its dues when judged either from a standpoint of prejudice or ignorance.

As our salvation greatly depends on the Bible correspondence of our faith, it is a matter of much importance, for by faith are we saved. It is quite evident, that, if a man's faith is not right whether he practices it or not, it will not avail; although he may be extremely sincere and zealous. Acts 26; 9. If a man has the right faith (Bible faith) and does not practice it, it will still not avail. James 2: 17. There is such a thing as a man not practicing his faith. I take the position that, in most cases, if a man believes the Bible he will accept, and, if he accepts, he will practice it, and if he practices it, it will ultimately save.

Faith is truly a wonderful thing; it is the true foundation of the church; it is the theme upon which the world is hinged; it is the great and grand lever of the Christian. We should see if our faith is the full faith of the Bilde, for up on that depends a great deal. Many persons will be saved because of their Bible faith, while many, yea, very many will be lost because of their not having Bible faith. Faith, as I repeat, is truly a wonderful thing. A general lack or weakness of Bilde faith was the trouble when Christ was here; it is the trouble now and shall ever be. Weakness of faith is characteristic of the human race. This is the curse of the world and even of the church.

Those who witnessed the miraculous display of divine power would not believe. They often asked him (Christ) very importment questions, because of their doubt and unbelief. They knew the prophecies respecting a Deliverer, and could not fail to know that he was the fulfillment of them, yet they would not believe. They confessed that "he spake as never man spake," yet they would not believe him to be the Son of God. Only once and awhile one would be caused to exclaim with outforsts of inward conviction and emotion: "Truly this is the Son of God." Another would say: "Truly this is a righteous man. These, however, were not the common expressions of that day. Christ's ordinary phrase to those with whom he was most intimately associated, was, "(1 ye of little faith." How shocking it is to think that such language should be used to those intimate associates of his, not to say it was really necessary by way of reproach, and how much it exposes the indifference of human belief. Christ re vealed things unto his disciples that no one could have revealed save the Son, , et they would not confidently believe. It was then, and it is now, extremely sin ful to doubt and not believe.

Faith is the great lever power of the church. The stronger the lever the greater the power. Our power to accomplish, in a Christian point of view. is chiefly regulated by the degree of faith which we possess. The Bible teaches that if a man have faith as a grain of mustard seed, he can remove trees and mountains. This is both astonishing and encouraging. Astonishing to see the power of faith, and encouraging to know how little faith is required to do marvel ons work; but how sadly does it expose the weakness of our faith, when we compure our power to accomplish with these facts. And even more, it is said that nothing shall be impossible, if we have thith as stated. Grand ther! Of such gigantic truth the mind is not able to partake abundantly.

The idea of a man stepping into the arena of life with the armor of faith, even as much as a grain of mustard, declaring with heavenly emotion, that, to him nothing is impossible, is a grand thought and of divine authority. The fact of one single man with faith as a grain of mustard, battling against the powerful influence of the Devil, the united forces of hell-born sin and the deprayity of human nature, and always conquering, is grander than sublimity.

MUSINGS.

BY SARAH M. SAUNDERS,

WE were thinking that when we are in comfortable circumstance we are so prone not to appreciate fully many privileges and enjoyments as we should. When we are blessed with comfortable homes and surrounded with everything necessary to make this life enjoyable, we are apt to forget that time and vircumstances may easily rob us of all. Sometimes we may grow cold or luke. warm with regard to the interests and welfare of the church; sometimes, when Sunday morning comes, we try to make excuses to stay at home. Perhaps we have been laboring hard all week for the things that "perisheth and that satisfieth not." Perhaps we reason thus: "O well, my horses are tired, and I am tired, too, and may be the preacher will not, be there—guess l'Il stay at home and rest, for it is full five miles to place of meeting."

But turn a leaf and take a look at the other side—place yourself for awhile in the attitude of those brothren and sisters who have no earthly home, who must move about from place to place, and are as the "way faring man," with nowhere to lay his head. Sometimes they have landlords that are elever and oddiging. Again, others that neither "feareth God nor regardeth man. Behold those brethren and sisters! they must travel all day through cold or heat to reach a place where they can mingle with those of a like precious faith. While looking at this side of the leaf, just think of the watching unto prayer that is necessary to keep them from despair; think how patiently they wait for the arrival of the BREITEREN AT WORK OF P. C. How eagerly they peruse their contents to see, if possible, some dear and well-known name, to read of the many glorious meetings where saints and angels are made to rejoice while sinners weep. Think, when Sunday moraing arrives, how willingly they would go five, or even ten miles, to meet with those they love. And, when you meet at the house of God to worship, remember them in your prayers to God; ask lim to be with them in the sixtu (comble, and in the seventh not to forsake them, and in every temptation also to make a way for their escape.

He who can only be serious, and be who can only be merry, is but half a man. Both halves must be developed to form a real specimen.

Whatever is done by those around you, be yourself fully determined to walk in the way approved by trath and virtue.

Experience is the pocket compass few think of consulting till they have lost their way.

The exodus of the colored people from the South to Kansas and Nebraska has begon in reaccornest. Hundreds have gone, and thousands will likely follow. They are attempting to obtain homes in the West, where they can live in peace and have their rights duly respected. The undertaking will be attended with many dangers and hard-hips, but it is hoped that the colored race will be able to overcome them, yet we cannot help but conclude that it is the wrong move. The South is the place for the colored people; the climate and soil are well adapted to their wants, and will afford cards which we write, it is impossible for us to them better facilities for making a living than remember what we write; and when persons the West. about it. I long to ser the season come when brothren will go to the Annual Meeting with the Bilde taider one arm and the Concordance under the other. We want to settle every thing by the Bilde. That is the way our ancient Brethren did. In every thing they appealed to the Word and used that as their only standard of truth, their only divinely authorized bond of union. This was also the practice of the primitios churches, and should be the practice of all charches at the present time.

Where the Bible speaks we want to act with promptness, and see that God's law is carried cut to the otter. Where the Bilde does not tell how a thing is to be done, but leaves the manner of doing it to the clinich, we should learn to be subject, one to another, and work logether in peace and hormony, but where the Bilde is as silent as the grave let us learn to be sileat too.

TO DISTRICT MEETINGS

Sathe time is here, when District Meerings well be held in various jorts of the Brotherho , we take the bloom of obering a few suggestions in report to anssion are work. As a general thing all other business is attended to first and missionary work delayed till about shooting stars among our people. They caused the last thing in the atternoon, and of course a little sensation for the time, but soon vanishharried through and but little done. This is ed. Just so it may be in the future. of the meeting and receive the due attention all who take part in the transaction of but in It is the most important work in which a trief can engage, and therefore should not passed over lightly. Let every district make move in the right direction, and, if possible one or two men in the field, and see that the are properly provided for in carrying on the

We think each district should form her on plan, and adopt her own method of spreading the truth. Her plan may not be just the he bu it will be found far better than none, a can be improved as the churches become more accustomed to missionary work. We think it nee less to waste time attempting to draft a plan adapted to the wants of the whole Brotherhood and thus endeavoring to secure co-operation of all the churches in the work. We have no yet reached that point, nor are we likely to short of a few years' work in the mission field Before we can expect a general co-operation of all the churches in the spreading of the guspel we must first develop a stronger missionary sparif among our people. The only successful way of doing this is to work through the District Meetings, not by forming a separate missionary body, but by getting the District Meet. ing to take hold of it and urge all the churches to do likewise. Let each district form her own plans, appoint her own ministers, raise her own money and apply it as in her judgment may seem best. Some districts are doing this, and are meeting with excellent success. They do not waste time wrangling over plans for other districts, but adopt one suited to their surroundings and go to work. This is just what we want to see every district in the Brotherhood do. We want to see them go to work and do all in their power toward spreading the gospel and building up churches. More real work and less general planning is what is needed.

Nor do we think it prudent to urge the majter on the Annual Meeting too strongly. Our people are not yet prepared to adopt a general plan, mer do the Scriptures require it. The apostolic churches did not have to call on an Annual Meeting for a plan to enable them to carry on missionary work. The Lord told them to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature; this they did, and that log without wasting time on plans. Every district and every church is divinely authorized to preach the gospel wherever it is needed, and requires no turther or additional authority from any existing body.

THE HARSHEY MOVEMENT.

T does seem to us that some of the Brethren are becoming unnecessarily excited over what is known as the "Harshey Movement," fearing that it will cause a split in the church. Now we are satisfied that nothing serious will in the entire State of Illinois. Nor will it ma-That is Balde, and has the old gospel ring | terrally affect either Missouri or Inwa. West of that no danger need be apprehended. How it may be east of Illinois we are not definitely informed in every particular, but are confident that the movement will not take with the generality of members. There is nothing in the movement to cause it to take, and even if it is accepted in a few localities it will not be permanent. We hope Brother Harshey will with draw his metion and learmoniously work for the union and peace of the church. Our people are too solidly united on all the vital points of Christianity to be divided by a tew side issues.

As regards, the other, move, in the East, we are also confident that if will not do as much damage as was at first untroppated. Its delay has weakened it, and in some respects tended to paradyze it. Had the movement been spring when it was first imangurated two years agoil would have done serious damages, but at preerd we have no great fears. There may be a little sliding off, but the main body of the church stands as solid as a rock. There is no body of people in the world more firmly united than the Brethren, and it will take something more than the whims of a few men to separate

THE TRUE RING.

BOUT one year ago the cary of Mt Carroll. this county, voted in favor of liceuse, and elected George E. Moore, mayor. Recently the mayor delivered his valedictory, parts of which I herewith submit for the consideration of Christian professors. It has the true ring, and all lovers of good order and temperance will rejoice at the correct conclusions of Mr. Moore. He says:

" Imring the last six months I have examined every argument of policy, expediency, or right, in sisted upon by the advocates of license, and am rollyinced, floit, like the mirage, they either fade or gy, as you approach them. * * *

To sell liquors as a beverage is either right or wrong. If right, a license is an outrage upon both vendor and consumer, and a system of legal blackmail unworthy the dignity of a civilized community. If wrong, no legal authority can make it right To make a mone pay for doing right is the exercise of tyranny; to give him a license to do wrong is a fiendish crime .- the this part of the question there is mendedle ground. People may shout facaticism, ery one riea, but the truth is, the ageral of this tence is so sharpeneman can sit on it, and you must jum . This question of right or wrong every man must decide for himself, and I have decided for

That is the point. It is either right or wrong to sell drinks as a beverage. Hi right, who has authority to prohibit? If wrong, who can make it right? It is a question of right or wrong, not a question of policy, or of expediency. Looking at the matter from the standpoint of right or wrong, a true answer may be obtained. If it be wrong for a man to get drunk, all the laws in the world, all the opin-1008, all the thoughts of men cannot make it right. On the other hand, if it be right to become a drunkard, all the powers of men cannot make it wrong. If it be wrong to become a drankard, no enactments of legistature can make it right. It is wrong to become a drunkand, 1 Cor. 6: 10. A drankard cannot inherit the kingdom of God, and if he cannot inherst the kingdom of God it is wrong to get drunk, for whatever keeps a man out of the kingdom is wrong.

Again; if it be right for a man to become a drunkard, then it is right to help make men drank. If it be right to help make a man drank, then the more of such mockery, the better. On the other hand if it be wrong to become a drunkard, then it is wrong to help make him drunk, and every man who sells intoxicating drinks helps to make drimkards. And more; those who help make the selling of it respectable by giving it the sanction of law, are belying to make drunkards. Make the loismess as odious and unlawful as mardering and thieving, and the poor children and starving wives of drunkards will also taste some of the comforts of home. If I by my words and actions make it. honorable and respectable to sell intoxicating drinks as a beverage, I am doing just that much towards making the drunkard's family miserable. And misery does not end here. Generations to come must suffer the evil effects of the drunken father, whom I helped to make miserable. God grant that we may be better and wiser than all that! It is wrong to do wrong, and perfectly right to do right. Give me right, even if my taxes are slightly increased. I can suffer the taxidion much better than the poor drunkard can suffer the tornoents of the dammed, and the family the pains of hunger and cold. Give me right, though I should have to beg or die,

But what shall be the remedy? Mr. Moore Suggests the following:

6 The State Board of Health provides for neglical Practitioners; a prescription from one of these would be profective. If for domestic practice, an allidayit before the city clerk might, be made protective. For sacramental jumposes let the restilicale I the pastor be had, and without these or sumba protecting legis let every sale be by ordinance, outla ved .- Caye me such legislation as this and a council to back are and I would throttle the demonstrad choke it out al Mount Carroll."

This suggestion, while it may not seem the hest, is perhaps the most available at this time All admit that it is wrong to help make men drunk, and right to help keep them sober. Nor is it right to set up a bar over which to deal out Poly beer, or eider under the plea that there is no barm in it. Do you see those boys walk into the drink dealer's establishment and take their eider and pop? Do you see them there during the evening, drinking and smoking? Yes, they are there, taking their lingt lessons in tippling, and if you will watch them a few Years you will see them as men-tipplers, and, finally, drankards. They took their first lessons by such oureasonable arguments?

in pop and cider, and the man who helped them along just to make a few dollars, did his share in making them drunkards. These drunkards in time have children, and then the great misery and degradation begin. Liquor dealer, look at the horrible picture, and ask yourself whether you are willing to meet God under such circumstances. The Lord help you to do that which will be a blessing to your fellow-man, instead of a blight and a curse.

Now, Christian professor, what have you today? Where are you? For money oaths, rags, squalor, want, wretchedness? If it be wrong to help make men drunk, will you give your voice in favor of making tippling and drinking respectable, or will you arrange yourself on the side of good order, right, peace and prosperity? I know that some men will reason that by making the liquor traffic honorable, the tax payers will save some money; but this argument is like every other argument in favor of covetonsness, and money saving that hurts the poor and causes misery. It is not a question of money. but of principle. The question is not, "Willwe save a little taxation, though we indirectly help men to drink?" but, "Will we do all we can to prevent men getling strong drink?" We do all we can to keep thieves out of our treasure-places, whether it costs money or not. and we should be equally concerned to keep men from being drunkards. Look at the life of Josus, look at the lives of the apostles, and then say, if you can, that any of them ever aided in any manner, the interests of the rum-seller. No, they never did any such thing. We have no desire to occupy my ground different from Jesus Christ and the apostles. They were opposed to drunkenness, so are we. The Bible is against it, so are we. God helping us, we shall stand by the right. God will not condemn any man for doing right, and it is right to prevent men from making other men drunkards. Let him who is for the right, for the Lord, for holy principles, stand firm. God will not forsake the nation which is soher, just and right.

THE DANISH PAPER.

(10) the Brethren in Denmark have a paper. Brother Hope has started a small monthly, the first number of which is now before us. It is little, but "large oaks from small acorns sometimes graw." The paper will have to be kept up a few years by donations, but in course of time he thinks it will be sufficiently rearmierative to nearly if not quite support him. At present he is using part of the tract fund, and in that way thinks he can do more good than with tracts. He is still preaching with energy, and zeal, and says prospects are lefter than ev-

Now, how many of our readers want to help Brother Hope get his little paper on a good footing? How many are udling to help him? You all know that papers do good, and are capublic of accomplishing vastly more, according to the amount of means employed, than preaching. You can send papers where you may not be able to send preachers. Unite a number have said they wanted to help that project along, and now they have a chance. Send your denations to this office and we will forward them to Bruther Hope.

A REMARKABLE ARGUMENT.

PHE Herald of Truth, published at Elkhart, I Indiana in the March mumber contains a critique, under the above head, on an article entitled "Sprinkling and Pouring put to the Test," published in number five of the present volume of the Brethren at Work are "It is truly simprising to see into what extremes men will run, to defend and maintain pet theories and doctrines. (2) We think the most ridiculous thing of this kind that ever came under am observation, is an article on minersion from the pen of S. J. Harrison, and published in a recent member of the 'Brethren at Work,' 30 H finly parned us to rend it--(4) it is shameful, it not sacre legions, so to commplithe teachings of the word of God. If men have a doctance and wish to defend it, let thero do it by sound argument, by scripturalsyldences, not by such a collection of monsense as we find in this article. If this doctrine of immersion is such a well established doctrine and sophije By faught by the Bilde, why not laring Bilde, proof? Why not defend by scriptimal arguments, and let it stand upon its own morits? Why must such a well established doctrine be constantly detended.

(1) Does our critic think he is regarded as infallible, that he offers his bare word against what was written? (2) We wonder what 'think" has to do with the question. Must what our critic thinks decide it? He don't know that it is the "most ridiculous thing." he only thinks so. (3) We expected what we wrote would "pain" those who live in rebellion to God, somewhat like the words which Peter spoke "pricked in the hearts" of several thousand on the day of Penterost. This confession (that his heart is pained) of our critic, certainly makes his case apostolically hopeful. (4) Does our critic expect because he assumes we "corrupt the teachings of the word of God," that we do not defend our doctrine by "sound argument," but by a "collection of nonsense." that we did "not bring Bible proof," that we did not defend by "scriptural evidences," that we have defended by "unressonable arguments," does be expect what he has merely assumed, will be accepted by everybody else as inevitable conclusions, established by valid arguments? The maked assertions of our critic, only show the absence of any evidence against us; for if there was evidence against us, is there any doubt as violent an opposer, as our critic is, would withhold it? It is very easy to say things are so, or are not so, but to prove they are, or are not, is quite a different thing. The faculty of saying things are so, or are not so, seems very largely developed in our critic. We commend 1 Thess. 5; 21 to him.

(5) "The writer clauss that to sprinkle a man we would first be compelled to put him in a dry house until all flacmosture, were, dried out of him, and nothing but dry flesh and bones remained. Then he could be grated fine like, we grate nuturegs, and after being grated, there he could be sprinkled or scattered in small particles." We shadder at the thought of following his remarks any further, and connecting the sacred names of the Efernal Trinity with such lightminded, triffing remarks as these, May God forgive such folly.

(5) Yes; we claim all of that. Will our critic please proce that we are mistaken? We don't want him simply to say we are, for we have sectous doubts of his infallibility. What if it does make our critic "shudder,"—if it even caused him to shake to pieces, what has that to do with the question? What argument is there. in his shuddering? But we are not at all surprised that he should "shudder," "Devils also believe and tremble." James 2: 19. How does. it happen that "such lightminded, triffing remarks" have had such an awful influence upon our critic? Is it because things of the same kind gravitate together-have an attraction for each other? By the way, this explains to whom that little prayer, "May God forgive such folly," should be applied.

(6) The above is given as the writer's idea of taptism by sprinkling or pouring, but he seems be forget that the sacred record says, that they were baptized with water, with the Hedy Glost and says that they were baptized with water, with and sail under the American flag. Aml I am the Holy Ghost, and with fire, but we fear our critic has forgotten that it was "they" who were laptized, not the water, Holy Ghust, and fire. Does our critic not know that the word with is translated from the same word from which in is translated? The Greek term from which both are translated is cn.

477 "We never, in the Scriptures, have the idea presented to us that the subject in baptizing is put to or into the element, but the element is always applied to the subject."

(7) I- our critic actually so ignorant of what is contained in the Hible as to honestly believe he has told the truth? Do we not read of Purify and the current that they went down both 1810 the water? We presume our critic supposed they did not both go down into the water, but that Philip left the eunuch stand on the bank while he (Philip) went down to the water and got a empfull and returned and opplied it to the cunnch!

as an And where we sprinkle an object, we pour or sprinkle the water on the object, as when it rains we say 'it sprinkles,' i. e., the cain falls in drops on the earth. Where we water our plants we sprinkle them, and when we sprinkle clothes we scatter water on them. The earth is not scattered into the coro, neither the plant or clothes into the water, but the water spankled on the object, so the prophet s.c.s. Lizek, 30: 255, "Then will I sprinkle rleam. water on you and ye shall be clean from all your filtioness, and from all your idols will I cleanse.

(8) When we sprinkle an object, we pour or sprinkle the water." See the contradiction in the language! When we sprinkle an object, we pour or sprinkle what? the elget? No, gnor the abject, but the water. So when our dia, China, and Australia.

critic sprinkles an object, he don't sprinkle it after all! When he sprinkles an object he sprinkles something else! When he sprinkles an object he don't sprinkle it, but sprinkles the scater! Strange kind of sprinkling, indeed! Sprinkling an object by not sprinkling it! Doing a thing by not doing it! He says "when it rains we say 'it sprinkles' i.e., the rain falls in drops on the earth." Yes, sir, exactly: we say just what is done, then, too. Rain is water, and it is water that is sprinkled, not the earth on which the sprinkled water fulls. We leave the question with those who "water plants" and "sprinkle clothes, to decide whether they sprinkle water, or the clothes or plants. The prophet Ezekiel is careful to say "I sprinkle clean water." he don't say I sprinkle you,

It has often filled our souls with dread to read and hear of the ignorance, prejudice, and superstition which existed in years gone by: but was the human mind darker then than now? Was it so dark that it believed a thing was so if it knew it wasn't so? If not, it was not as dark as it now is; for there are hundreds, just like our critic, who would sprinkle a man by not sprinkling him at all, but by sprinkling samething else, and these persons cannot see but what the man was sprinkled although they know he was not.

We further suggest that the next time our critic writes an article that he give his name. We also like to know to whom we are respond-

DEARLY beloved in the bord: 1 embrace this opportunity and be writing you a few lines, in the fond hope of stirring up your pure minds by way of remem-

First, I thank my God for the encouraging news sent me by our beloved Brother Frank Allen, that you all manifest a strong faith, and a fervency of spirit with a determination to press onward and upward toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Now may the abundant grace of God and the comforting influence of the Holy Spirit be yours to enjoy, and to help you to bear the cross, and equip you all for the holy fight against sin in all its malignant forms. I am aware that the adversary has whispered abroad that when your minister, Elder M. T. Bner, would leave, that the little band of worshippers of the Almena Church would come to nought. But thanks be to the Lord that I hear better things of you, for I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth. 3 John 1; 3. And as such I regard you chiefly.

I often think of the time when I first went to Almenn to preach the pure gospel of Christ, and hold forth its unadulterated doctrine and principles among a strange people and against great odds, having all the learned clergy (according to the wisdom of this world) to oppose without searcely a brother or sister in Christ, or scarcely a true friend, to my certain knowledge, to uphold my hands, and myself unskilled in the word and doctrine, being in my first experience in the ministry. But my trust was that the Lord would be strong in the weak, and in the month of sucklings would have perfect praise, and thus I was not disappointed, although I entered that M. E. Church with much fear and fremiding, and my preaching and my speech were not with enticing words of min's wisdom, but in demonstration of the spirit and of power. I Cor. 2: 4.

This my mind runs back over the past with some fond recollections of the just history of the Almenn Church, among the pleasant revollections of the past, allow me to mention some. How my heart rejoiced when it was my ideasure, as the first visible fruits of my lubor at Almena, to lead into the clear waters of Scott's lake, Brother J. J. Hope you have enjoyed yourself well in the service of the Lord whilst on your late visit amongst the churches. Take the oversight of the little flock at Almena, and do thy diligence to help them on their way Zionward, and may a full portion of the spirit of the bord be yours for the labor.

Brother John Shank, knowest thou that the Lord has called thee to a great and noble work? Equip thyself for the warfare, let not your trumpet give an uncertain sound, measure not thyself by thyself, when thou considerest thy weakness, fall on the strong arm of the Lord forget those things that are behind, and reach forward for those things that are before. And now Sister Jane Brown and your daughters, with all the rest of the household of faith, I cannot in this short letter call you all by name; believe me, I have you all fresh in my memory. On your conduct depends very much the success of the Master's holy cause. When I remember your zeal in coming out to worship God in the boly sanctuary, through storms, dark nights, &c., I feel encouraged; and as long as you will continue in the same steadfastness of faith, the Lord will abundantly bless you, both in this world and that which is to come. Therefore neglect not the assembling of yourselves together, and so much more as you see the day of the Lord approaching.

I am glad that Brother Walter Clark is paying special attention to your spiritual wants, hope the Lord will abundantly bless him and make him instrumental in accomplishing much good maong you. Hope that others of the beloyal brethren, like Brother Bowers, will call and lend a helping hand to forward the ark of the Lord.

Brother Zerby and Sister Blakely, be not discouraged, though you, as well as Sister Mc-Mullen, are living isolated somewhat from the rest. Cast your cure on Jesus, and don't forget to pray. Although the wolves are prowling around, the chief Shepherd is near and smiles with approving countenance to see your strong faith mixed with prayers and love for the true

But while we regret this, we lay it to the fault of no one, or to any; for circumstances were such as to prevent a protracted effort at any one place. Whilst in this part we, together or separate, visited eight places besides the funeral and one other meeting at Brother Holler's, and preached thirty-eight sermons in two weeks.

The names of Brethren A. Younce, F. We also had the pleasure to lodge a day and night with Brother and Sister Young. This sister, whose maiden name was Amauda Billman, was at one time (1863) our school-mate at the Brethren's school in New Virginia, Ohio.

In leaving this part of the Brotherhood we stopped and took dinner with old Brother and Sister Stoner (Solomon) on the 7th of March. They told us of some of their sorrow and of their labor even yet to old age, but they did not then know it all, for in less than a week (March 13th) their large barn, with six head of horses, twenty head of sheep, with other stock, a large quantity of grain, wagons, &c., were all destroyed by fire. The loss is supposed to be near $3,000, or even more, and, we are told, is partly insured. The enemy who did it, is not yet knowna

Brother James joined us on the 10th and within a few minutes more we were waited on by three elder brethren and fold that we were not in order; that protracted meetings were not the order here, and the deeree of the elder residing here was that our meeting should stop. They admitted that we preached the gospel, but asserted that it was preached enough here without our assistance. We invited these brethren to come to our niceting that evening and that, then they could " judge righteous judgment," but they excused themselves, and left use. The house was literally packed by Brethren, strangers and friends; and when at the close, it was left to the audience to say whether the meeting should stop or not, almost the entire assembly arose to their teet us an expression that the meeting should greon. Dear Friends:-

'N a late issue of the BRETHBEN AT WORK, We observed that an effort is being inaugurated to send missionaries to the Pacific coast, in connection with an extended trip in various other sections of the country. In this we descry the dawning of the day-star of an era long and hopefully wished for. That an effectual opening in this modern Sodom, for the testimony of Jesus would be made, we have long and hopefully anticipated, and now, as if in answer to our earnest prayers, the benign radiance of a bright and effulgent moon, in the no distant fature, seems already to cast its cheering halo in advance. Even as desus crossed the Gennesaret in a raging tempest to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation to the Gadarenes, so have we prayed that some tempest driven barque might cast anchor upon this Occidental shore, hearing ministers to proclaim free savation in the old apostolic way, to this dying people, with whom skepticism and infidelity run 1101. There are many here who claim to be ambassadors of God. expounding teks and isms suited to the passions and follies of their people; but, with few excentrons, they are mere puppets, steeped in fashion's vilest sm, treading the gospel mart for the sake of filthy lucre; extolling the name of Jesus for personal aggrandizement, and owning undeniable allegiance to mystic ties, striving to lill popular pulpits, and soothing the carnal mind with philosophical (?) elucidations, strictly avoiding all infringements open loose morals. Instend of dropping the golden text in their midst, pointed with gospel truth as sharp as a twoedged sword, they gloss the true teachings of Christ with plausible (?) philosophical lore, and a rither predundity on popular science much to the delight of their fashion soiled congregation.

them the Pomithe Christian [

WOULD here say that there are two organazed churches in California, the one termed the Caldornia Church, and the other Stanislans Church. The former was organized over twenty years ago, and the latter four years ugo, by Brethren H. D. Davy and B. F. Moomaw, committee sent by Annual Meeting to settle certain difficulties then existing in the church. At the time the Stanislaus Church was organized, each division had about sixty members. The California Church is scattered over a large scope of country, over some eight or ten counties, and members live far apart. There are seven ministers belonging to this arm of the church, three of them being ordained elders. These elders live more than one hundred miles apart. Eder George Wolfe is seventy years of age, but still travets some, and preaches a good deal. Around him, in San Joaquin county. there are thirty-five or forty members. This church is increasing in members. I have visited many of the members in this church and all its ministers. They appear to be very zealously engaged in the Master's cause. The members of the Stamslaus Church do not live so tar apart. They have within easy reach of each other, all but a few. I believe I have seen and visited them all but two or three. The most of them I have visited frequently.

I am sorry to say, that for some cause or other, this church has not been prospering so yery much since its organization. It had about the same number of members, (50) as the other church, and five ministers, and some thirty or thirty-five members. This is a laneentable fact. Yet I must say that the members of this church are very orderly, fine members Hove them, and have the greatest respect for them. Let me say right here, that all the members in the S ate of C difforms treated and with brotherly kindness and Christian courtesy. without any exception. I was among these kind brethren and sisters, over three months, cisiting and trying to get up kind technigs among them. In this I have succeeded above my expectations. I must say to the brethner and sisters in the Atlantic Stales, that the members in California, are worthy of respect and honor. They are warm-hearted Christians. Do not think that there is a wide difference between the two organizations. The alifference is sa small and trilling that it should never cause a separation. God forbid that such should ever be the case. I am confident, that if proper care is taken, and a little more Christian forbgarance excreised, that all will come right in the end. To you, dear larethren and sisters, among whom I have been visiting in California, rest assured, that your unweather brother and servant had many a sleepless right in prayer and fasting, while he was with you, praying that you might become more fully reconciled with each other. It was treat each other as you have treated me when I was with you, there will soon be peace and barmony among you. Apply that golden rule, "Do to others as you wish they should do to you."

Dear brethren and sisters, I labored amongst you for peace, I now earnestly entreat you in the name of Jesus Christ, "By yes reconciled." Do not each of you seek your own, but let each of you seek his brother's good, and in the endyon will come oil more than compuerors. and each receive a crown of eternal life.

Dear Brethrens—

W E have preaching every Sunday, but to-day it is sleeting and our appointment is ten miles away; so I did not go. The Winter has been above the average for cold; not much snow. The ground has been in condition for plowing for some time. Outs most all sowed, Spiritually, we are progressing slowle; but, we trust, surely. There have been six additions by baptism since the first of September. Foreign ministers seldem stop and help us. We scheit ministering brothren, and others, too, to stop off and labor with us. We live ordy two miles from Nevala, the county-sect of Vernon county. It is on the great Southwestern route from Chicago to Texas, the M. R & T. R. R.

We think those sceking cheap homes could do no letter than to stige and see our beautiful, andulating prairies, and rich bottom lands, slucting the various streams that traverse our country. Much of this bottom land is covered with a heavy growth of timber, which can be bought for from eight to titteen dollars per acre. Frame from five to ten dollars. There is identy of room for a colony of one thousand families to settle and all be within one to five miles from fimber. Stone coal in atomdance, at from five to eight cents at the banks, ready dug. Building stone, along the streams, of the finest quality. We have a great variety of water and soil, from the poorest freestone to the richest limestone. Water is sulphur, calibrate, freestone and limestone.

I would a lyise those seeking a home in the south-west to give us a call and see for thems lves, especially to ministers, traveling through, e would say, stop and preach for us. Any e wishing further information will please i) pure a card or letter.

District Meetings,

*EEING quite a number of notices in your Depend of Instruct Meetings, it called my attention to a few very important thoughts, or nounts connected with those meetings, to which our dear brethren throughout the Brotherhood will do well to take heed, viz.:

1. That all matters of a local character be disposed of, if possible; it that cannot be done to general satisfaction, let it be deterred another year, and not sent to Annual Conference.

 That all matter, designed for Annual Conference, be accompanied with a Scriptural

3 That every answer, whether of a local or general character, be accompanied with referonce to two or more suitable passages of Scriptare as a basis for said decision.

4. That when brethren are selected by the charch and sent out to preach where the pure doctrine, as taught by the Brethren, has never yet been heard, that they be adminished not to be over anxious for number, so as to evade the teaching of the peculiarities of our beloved. Brotherhood, and the general order of the church which are in so exact harmony with the general teachings and spirit of the gospel, and earthly existence and fond words, we clearly by which we are more particularly known as a distinct and separate people from the world.

Safe at Home.

TO-DAY, March 21st, after an absence from A a dear family of three months and ten days, I arrived safe at home. The past three months were spent visiting and preaching among dear brethren, sisters and friends in Jewell, Republic, Osborn, Smith, Marion and other counties in Kansas. During this time we were much refreshed in meeting with many old friends, also in forming the acquaintance of many new ones whom we shall never forget, During our intercourse with our beloved brethren and sisters with whom we associated during our visit, we often experience I the foretaste of what it must be to be there even "over there,"

The Brethren in Kansas seem to be alive, and though many are living in dug-outs and sod-houses, are, nevertheless, hospitable, and are willing to give such as they have, and that is good enough for mybody. We were glad to see so much sociability among them. It is more healthy, both physicially and spiritually, than to feast upon rich viands and trend soft corpeted floors, or rest upon spring solies and hedsteads, or to feast the natural vision upon gibled walls and pictures. Love has the same attractiveness in a western dug-out as any where else. The ornsment of a meck and genthe spirit is the thing that brings real enjoyment any where. Where such a spirit has the sway, the place becomes home-like. Such a spirit reigns in heaven, which often makes as think of the home "over there," also of the triends "over there"; and we feel to close in the poot's pravect

Dear Brethmen.-

AM not a member of your church though I delevent to be as true if not the truest church that I have ever found, I would like to write a few words if I thought there would be room in your columns, for them. I do not take the Bretinger At Work though I receive copies of it from time to time, sent to me by a friend. I read them very earnestly and I am very thankful for them. I think it is a good paper. When I receive them I commence in the first page and read column after column antil I have read them through, and then I read them over and over again, and then I day them away for the future.

I attended your church at Cherry Grave, BL. some six or seven years, and found it to be a good, honest church; and though 1 was but a youth. I find there were many impressions made on my heart that I have never forgotten. I havn't heard left one sermon preached by the Brethren for over six years, and that one 1 heard one year ago bet l'all in a school-house near Hudson, Iowa. Dear Brethren:-

AM away out here in Arkansas. We have no church near here, but we need one very much, for this is a wicked place. The most of the people around here would rather go to a dance than to chursh. We have been here nearly fifteen months, and, in that time, there have been more than twenty dances within three miles of our home,

I would rather have meeting, singing and prayer thus dancing. I have not been at church since last Summer until to-day. We had so much sickness last Summer that I could not go, and this Winter there has been no meeting to attend, Winter has now ended here. The peach trees are coming out in bluom. Some oats have been sown and some corn planted. I like the country here very well, but not the people. There are seven families of Indians in this neighborhood.

I do wish some of the good Brethren would move in here so that we could have meeting, A church building could be built on our farm. Ементы Кизыви.

Brethren Leebr and Cripe continued with us, preaching night and day. On Friday eyening, Father Lachr talked to the children. Fifty or sixty bright and cheerful little countenances were present. When we beheld them and heard them singing praises to God, we remembered, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven," and took conrage.

O N the 6th of November last, there came into our vicinity a Sec. the name of Nels Erick on, whose real name it appears is Hamland. He at once made application for admission into the church. On the 10th of November he was received by baptism. His general deportment, strict adherence to business, and upright walk for a short season, secured him many warm friends who relied implicity on his veracity. As soon as he had accomplished his design, of obtaining the confidence of the brotherhood and friendly neighbors, he at once set about his infamous schemes of defrauding and delading. By Februnry 22nd he had succeeded in winning the affections of a worthy young sister, and was married to her on the evening of that date,

Bought a team for which two of the brethren went security. He also involved bimself for farm machinery under the pretunee that he ·was going to farm. After this he managed to get into trouble with a sister in regard to rented hand and seed, wheat.—Pretended to be in deep distress. He then went to the livery stable in Carleton, and procured a team and longgy, under the pretense that he was going to arrange for seed, wheat or money to purchase with. Went to Bentrice, and torged a note for $240, on John Holsinger and C. Bradley, of Curleton. This note was left in the bands of two brethren in Bentrice as collateral security. Those two brethren then indersed for him in bank for $200. He has not been heard from since, neither the team or buggy. [This, no doubt, is the person, who stand all night with the writer last Sommer, and appeared to be very pious and zeulous in the Christian religion. He came here from Baldwin, Iowa, and represented himself is having property in Chicago. Shortly afterwards, we were informed that he had married at Baldwin, was admitted into the church there, but before leaving swindled a brother out of money, and conducted himself in a very unbecoming manner. I think the Brethren at Baldwin will recognize. the rogue described by Brother Holsinger, is: Peter Halburg. He was a futfor by trade Brethren and others will please keep a careful. look out for him. Dear Brethrens-

FEEL that it is good for us to commune is transpiring to the honor and glory of Godin | have repeatedly efficiated in ice water when afother parts of the world. Good tidings are though with rheimatism. I haptized an old: to take hold of it.

I will offer a few thoughts in consequence of a series of meetings that were held here lately. Brethren Ridenour and West were with us a short senson. They preached the everlasting gospel with such force that four persons were made to feel the weight of their sins and come out on the side of the Lord, the writer being one of the ransomed. We never witnessed such meetings as we had during their stay with us; long before the hour for worship, the house would be crowded to over flowing, so enger were the people to hear. Hithe brethren could have stayed longer I believe a very great work would have been done. However the brethren have cast bread upon the waters to be gathered not many days hence. If some brother or brethren could come here this Spring some time, I believe they could remea rich harvest to the honor and glory of God, as the people are pretty thoroughly awakened. This was the first meeting of the kind ever held in this community by the Brethren, and the second of the kind the writer ever attended, he having heard Brother John H. Moore the time he preached on Lamotte Prairie, Illinois. May the grace of God be with us all, is my prayer. New Lebanon, Montgomery Co., Ohio.

From Virden, Illinois.

N Saturday, March 22nd, quite a number of brethren and sisters from various churches, met in council with the brethren and sisters in Christian county. Illinois, formerly members of the Sugar Creek Church. Finding them all in love and union with each other, and with all the members of the Sugar Creek Church, it was thought good to organize them into a church, which was accordingly done; after which they held a choice for descon, the lot falling on Brother Thomas Clower, no doubt a worthy and furtiful brother. Brother Benjamin B. Whitmer was also ordained to the full ministry, and now has the oversight of this church, which they named Clear Creek Church, Their membership at present numbers forty-three. Brother Benjamin being their only minister, with two dencons as help. Their prospects are fair for a presperous future. and as their territory is large and Brother Benjamin their only minister, it is much desired by them that they be remembered by the Brethren, and often visited by other manisters who live in reach of them. Adjoining unnisters, plense don't forget this,

Done Brethren -

N Saturday, March 15th, met Brother Geo. W. Gish at the house of Brother Willnum Lehiman, in the Pike Creek Church, where the brethren and sisters met in church council. The charch had been visted, and the deacons reported to the meeting that union and direndship existed in the church. The 12th chapter of Riomans was read and remarks, were made. hath in German and English. The church then proceeded to elect a numster from among. Their number, which resulted in the election of Brother Frederick Shultz, who was duly installed into his office by G. W. Gish, in the English, and repeated in German by Brother D. Mast. Thus. clunch consists almost entirely of Germans. We may expect them to succeed well, as Germans generally work immoonersly together We hope and pray the good Lord will bless band sharks. You can do much better by seethem, especially Brother Shultz, and the dear ling the Brethren first. Dear Brethren:-

ME have distributed the tracts you sent us. and we think they are doing good with your paper. Both are read with much interest, and this is the result: two have been made willing to crone to the church.

Brethren from Bedford county were with us on the 16th of this month, and preached two sermons. They will be with us on the second Sunday in April. At that time we expect to have baptizing, and we hope more of our neighhors will come to the church. We believe a good work has beginn in the hearts of this people, and we pray that the Lord may carry it on, that the faith and order of the Brethren may be made known in this neighborhood as well as all over the land. Brethren, the harvest is plenty but the laborers are few. Pray the Lord to send laborers into the harvest. Souls are starving for the bread of life. O, Brethren, come and preach for us. O, Brethren, think how many places in old Virginia that there is no preaching by the Brethren.

Yours in Love,

Thomas C. Worth.

I HAVE concluded to commence a small papaper, and through it, try to enlighten the people here. Unr opposers in baptism have no right to oppose us, and in this way I can defend. the bord's rause. Two thousand copies like the one I sent you will cost about five dollars. No. 2 is also in press. It treats principally on infant baptism. The church here considers at lest that I juddish a monthly paper, for more good can be done that way than by publishing promphlets. Should any feel like obtaining subscribers in America, among the Danes and Norwegians, they can do so. In this way some good might be done among the Scandinavians. in America. They have been sadly neglected.

Our members all say they rejoice and are rappy. I shad soon start out to hold more meetings, and see the members about holding a Love-teast. Our united love to all the dear

JOINED THE CHURCH.

BY J. A. MUBRAY.

() H, what joyful news! How it thrills the heart! It makes the angels report and souts gloudy God. Jouned the church! Let us consider the meaning of on heading seriously. Desit stoudy mean to have our names entered upon the church-hook tor to be haptized? go Perceeting 5 to aftend to the external ordinances of the church? Not it means all this and much more. It means that you have heard the thousderings from Mount Sima; "Cinsed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the law to deflem." If means that Thou has beard the voice of Golsaying, "Awake thou that sleepest and acros from the dead and Thrist shall give thee light." It means that Thom wast brought to a readizing sense of thy condition before fied, and leaving restrict That. in that crouse, you would be forever ambone, and you found it necessary to dead "in trespasses and in sins," you now desire to east your lot with the people of God in order to be made alive to God through Jesus Christ. There you surrender your will entirely to the will of God, and, by an unwavering faith in God, your heart becomes changed from a love of sin to a love of God.

This change of heart implies a change of affection which are now set on things above. You become dead again; not dead in sin, but dead anto sin, that you should not live the rest of your days to the lust of men, but to the will of God. This means that you have repented and turned from sm to serve the living God. Here you made application to the church to be received by baptism, at which time, you solemuly promised before fied and witnesses, to renounce Satan with all his sinful and permicions ways; and to love and serve God to the hest of your ability the remainder of your days. Under those solemn obligations you joined the church.

Kind reader, did you ever consider the great responsibility you were brought under when you joined the church, aside from the solemn promises which you made? You assumed a position which involves very important consequences, Every member of society adds either to the salvantage or the disadvantage of it. Your influence will be felt either in favor of or against the church. This being true, how very important that we cast our influence in the proper direction. This we can do by being consistent with the order of the church which we have joined.

Do we not sometimes see persons who are members of the church act as though the church had joined them? They want the church to conform to them, instead of them conforming to the church. They seem to forget the meaning of joining the church. There is another class which we sometimes find in the church that feels perfectly satisfied with the church as long as the church lets them do as they please. They are willing to follow the fachions of the world themselves, and to lef others do the same, but just as soon as the church calls them to account, then they justify themselves by saym2. this is not any worse than what brother or sister A on B does. There is no one finds fault with them, and I am no worse than they are, Are you not indirectly charging the church; you joined the church, what one did you join? "The church of Christ," of course. Was it the always require a separation from the world? these prophetic words of based. "Yes, it did." How then can you belong to the fluence in favor of the world orthor than the (the greatest. church. Not only does the church of Chast. teach non-conformity to the world, but it teaches conformity to all the commands of the gospel. of Christ which every one assumes when he owns the church. The church of Christ is not a body. of alle or dead members, but of members who are alive to the can-e they have reponsed, who will make any necessary sacrifice for the advancement of the cause of Christ; for they know that whatever will be for the interest of the church will be for the individual interest of each the wi-dom which God las given him.

ANNUAL MEETING

COMETEME ago, I noticed an actube underthis head from the pen of Brother J. H. Moore, suggesting a plane for holding the mosts this world's history, and which will be brought probably at Stockport, Chester county, Euging, which would make it solf supporting. This advocating the praceable reign of Christ. Wherewas merely a suggestion or that direction, and programs of the cross hear sway, their has between 80 and 90 packing-rooms. Since I have noticed mothers some towards enduring before any planny to be observed, for they mais the institution was opened, 5, 085 teachers have coange your entire course of lite, lowing been the plan. I think it is full line to go a step (ver ally parity the mostly and enlighten the been employed and (0 80) scholars registered, further. I am strongly in favor of changing the arrangement for holding the meeting. Let the standing committee and delegates with their duties, stand as at present. But change the floor where the convention sits-give it such a shape that all can see and hear. Thousands' come for that purpose, and why not accommodate them? Not one Annual Meeting has been held in twenty years giving all present an opportunity to hear the proceedings. Well, say some, it is impossible to provide for thousands in that respect, and it would cost too much, it it were possible. No, it is possible; and the cost of it no hurden to the district holding it, if the proper plan is taken.

Now I will suggest a plan, and I hope others will help to provide the wanting features. First, let the larden of expense rest on those attending the meeting; which is umore trifle, if proporly divided. Erect a ticket office on the ground Each buy a ticket for one dollar, as a pass for his presence and conforts during the meeting. Suppose five thousand attend, don't that show whence the finds will come from to enrry the meeting through? And for each one altending only a trifle of the hurden. The price of the tacket might be increased or diminished, as thought proper. The floor of the audience room should be so arranged as to have the standing committee and delegates on a level (for spectators) the remotest sents being the highest. Where the standing committee and delegates are, fix up a sounding-board, to convey the sound, and thus all will be able to bear with satisfaction. Now I submit these as the main features of my plan, and I submit them to the consideration of the brethren. It is upen for suggestion and improvement.

A HYMN.

BY T. MULLIGAN.

IN the writings of the gospel. As ordinance you will find. And in the third of Matthew. That ordinance is enjou e 1: Enjoined, and all behevers. Come witness now the Son, Who came and was baptized. By his forernmer John.

Not at the river Jordan, But in the flowing stream. John the Baptist was baptizing. When he haptized the Lamb; Then Jesus Christ the Savior. Out at the water came To show that we must follow. And thus perform the same.

Those infants brought to Jesus, Were brought to have them blest; Then all the infinits, bales like these, Who die shall go to rest: For there none haptized, But those who did believe. And thus the bord of glory, Will no one else remive.

You've read the third of Matthew. Look for mother thing. Which says, none was haptized, But did repentance bring. If you believe in Jesus, Then be immersed like him: As long as you neglect it. To you it is sin.

This ordinance of Jesus, Dotle stand so firm and strong. There's nene can overrurn it. Though they've enderwored long. For Jesus and his language. Will stand for evermore, When anti-christian powers, Will sink to rise no more.

I WANT TO DO RIGHT,

RV T. P. LOGHR.

HHIS was my motto from my child hood, because in the reading of the Bible I saw whoever did right was are proved of God, and enjoyed his favor. and whoever did wrong, met with the the reverse. Now then, if we want to do right, we must always take God at his word, without any if's or and's; as in the instance of Noah louilding an ark. and Abraham leaving his father's house aml his kindred, or offering his son Isaac as a lornt offering. On the other hand, where wrong was done, chastisement followed as a consequence; or in the instance of Rebeccu causing her son Jacob to dissendile, the consequence was, she he his mother. Desides the dread and land practice under the despicable appel fear he suffered to meet his brother Then again, the wickedness practiced by the sons of Jacob, and the jurie and spotless life of their brother Joseph, on, the other hand, who was exhalted to be a miler and governor in Egypt for the salvation of many thousand people. Whereas, his brethren, in his presence, repronehed themselves bitterly with conscious guiltmanhood, the motto, "I want to do right," Christian zeal.

denses, Bohemian Brethren, and various other names who taught the dectrine of peace, and were, therefore, persecuted; but where are they found? Do we find them in the pilgrim fathers that fled from England to America to be at lib erty toworship God without molestation: Alas! the fundamental principles of the gospel-love and good will to men was tacking, for we see them very soon persecute the unassuming, peace-loving Quaker.

Where, then, shall I go to find that people—that church—of which it is said. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against?" Wherever I go, the gates of heH stand ajar. At the entrance of every church in Christendom, all admit, and not only admit, but teach and practice retaliation—brother going to law with brother, one Christian nation going to war with an other. Their Christian preachers serve as chaplains to encourage the soldiers to kill their enemies, and ask God's blessing upon it. Oh shame. where is thy blush?

I turn myself to reading history and everything that might give me a clue to that church that believes and takes Godat his word. Thomas Dick tells us of such a people that lived and were hid for 130 years in the Alleghany Monntains; but they were found by the monks and scattered and killed; though their number was 18,000 souls, they did not fight.

Ah me! where shall I go now? I find Buck's Theological Dictionary. I there find among the many name! religious, a people organized themselves into a body who teach and practice the pure doc trine of the cross. But lines and impriscomment, and persecution from country to country is what they get at the hands of the Christians who had themselves escaped persecution by the "mother of harlots." They come to America, here Buck loses them at Ephrata, Pa., under the name of Tunkers. So that church is lost again in the wilderness, and for more than a century and a half they were careful not to make their non-resistant, nonswearing, non-conforming principles for which they had suffered so much for 1,260 years by the dragon that leven cast a fleed after that woman, which represents the true church of Christ. But that flood (false doctrine) did not imm date nor swallow her—she stands tooday never got to see her son afterward, nor in all her primitive parity of doctrine lation Dindords, and is now at this very day attacked by one that lacks but dittle to till the bill of a Goliah, he is going to expunge her name from the pubdie records of Christianity; but it is so, det her name be wiped from the face of the earth; her principles stand fast, and dierself upon the Rock,

Oh God! our souls go out in prayer and heart-felt desire, that thou wouldst revive the parched feelings for a living Christianity, for a soul-enjoying, a soulreviving feast of searching after, and receiving of the Spirit's divine influence; that men to-day may cast off that prejudice with which Satan has fast bound them; and be unshackled from every detering hindrance, to a free and soulprogressing and God-fearing Christian ity, that men may thus be enabled to serve God with a full jourpose of heart, and thus glorify God their Father, and honor their dear Redeemer, and be no longer a stumbling block, but a grand and glorious success through the instrumentality of a free and truly Christian spirit. Surely if ever there was a time when Christians should unite to work against the hosts of sin, it is now! and now more than ever do the different professed ministers of Christ, to day array themselves against each other. Certain ly, brethren, "these things anglit not so to be;" and the spirit thus manifested is christendom. RUNDEWENG THE PAST.

We have it to say that we have had our regular religious services as usual. Be sides those we had a very enjoyalde, so ries of meetings scattered to all the ap pointments in the congregation. The preaching was done by our well-belov ed Brother Jacob Holsopple, of Cambria county, Pa., whom we can recommend to all the churches as an able minister of Christ in all the doctrine of our Traceruity, and one who practices what he presclies. We repaire that the church has many such quiet, unostentations men who stand up for the true old plain order of dress among the brethien. There is all the more need of this to day, since there is so much semi-infidelity energing mae the Iristherhood. We hope the brethren everywhere are faithfully one the Lord's watch-tower, and although their warnings are unheeded by some, and derided by others, yet may the Lord's cause be maintained and watched over with a holy zeal.

We also had calls by Brother C. line ler, of Blair Co., Ph., and Brother J. D. Prestic, of Lingamore, Md., both plain brothren, and preaching the whole doc trine. May the Lord Idess them, and recomplish great good by their ministranims in their respective fields of labor for Clarat.

By application the church was admonished to more liberality to the necessities of the church that the cause of Christ be not hindered or in want. The Lord's cause ought to be remembered first, and our spending ought to be according to his will. Wisdom in giving is necessary, and O that we all had wisdom in giving and receiving. A warrag in the Latheran Observer, of Feb. 14, 1877, offers the following argument against teet-washing. He says:

"Only the smaller and more illiterate seets practice feet-wastung as a divine ordunatee; and that sensitive and cultured Christian women, could not be induced to imenver their feet for a public washring in contiday, with the constraints of our accelental customs, were they not under the powerful inthrence of a raisguided conscience."

That is an honest confession, and is about as good an apology as the proud, worldly cultured un offer. These "sensitive and cultured Christian women " are just a little lat too period to improver their feet. It was not so with the Primitive Christians; not so with the apostles. and those who dal the "all things" commanded by the Master. > At Cape Herdopen we saw about a dozen sailing-ships lying at anchor within the breakwater which the U.S. government has creeted there for want of a good harbor. They were freighting vessels awaiting orders, and ready to sul wherever trade could be found. The cape is a law ridge of laure sand making out into the mouth of the bay, with a light-house on its point, and some other buildings scattered about. Unper May, the celclimited bathing place, is just twelve and a half-miles distant, to the northeast, and the space between constitutes the month of the Delaware Bay. Two pilot-hoats were ruling off the light-house at Cape henlopen, and into one of these the pilot who had thus for directed our ship's course was transferred by means of a yawl. Here we witnessed for the first time the perilons descent by a ladder let down the side of our ship into the yawl, which toesed and dameed on the waves fifteen feet below. The pilot, after descending the ladder, witched his opportunity, and leaped, at the apyawl, serzed its rindder our, and guided it straight away to the little sailer awaiting him.

Our parting from the pilot was our entrance into the Allautic Ocean. It occurred at 4 P. M. Before night closed in, the water had become our horizon on every side, the ship seeming to be in the hollow of a vast basin; the sky, which was bright in the morning, had become overcast with gray clouds; and we retired to our berths not knowing what to expect, but knowing that in this blustering month of March toul, weather was more to be looked for than fair.

On Friday morning I arose early, ascended to the deck, found all of our sails set, a high breeze blowing from the north-west, and our bow set to the east. While standing near the aft pilothouse tour slop has two pilot-houses-one for-And are at their wits' end, ward for fair weather, and mie aft for storms) I Pierethevery ando the Lord mathem trianide, received my first taste of salt water. The waves were not rolling, but boil ing; and every one, after swelling up to a high point like the jeak of an isolated hill, crowned. itself with a cape of white foam, and then subsided. I had expected to see some of the "rolling. billows" of which I have read so often, but H have seen not one. The waves do not rise in long ridges, and roll along at regular intervals; lost they rise and fall as if they were upheaved by a force beneath them, and it is only their general inclination in one direction which seems to the eye as if caused by the wind. They ree, too, in endless variety of size and shape. As you look over them from your high perch on the deck, they appear like a continued succession of bills and knobs and proks in a range of meantains, without a single raige of long and smooth outline in view. gratulations of the Captain and a passenger opposite me, on my freedom from sickness thus far, but I had taken only a sip or two of my coffee, when my seat was also undevacant, and I retired with as much dignity as I could to the deck. During the remainder of Friday, and all of Saturday, I was sick, sick, sick. I didn't say "O my!" nor did I hear anybody else say it, This expression seems to have passed out of date since Mark Twain went abroad. Our company said nothing at all. No language was adequate to the occasion. A sudden paleness, a husty retreat foward the bulwarks, were the only signs of woo by which we could distinguish each other's symptoms. By Sunday morning I was relieved of my sea sickness, but I was completely worn ont. The breeze of Friday had stendily increased until it had become a heavy gale. The ship lind rected to and fro like a drunken man, and all the passengers had been lossed about without mercy. I had skinned one of my sluns, nearly broke two of my ribs, was fortured with a gum holl, was as limber as a dish-rag, and would have sold myself very cheap. I felt, indeed, that I would not be worth picking up in the street. But I was new able to cat a little breakfast, and from that time my symptoms improved. All day Sunday we were in a storm. The wind ldew fortunsly; rain and hall and snow fell alternalely; the tops of high waves broke over the vessel and delinged some part of its deck every few minutes; one of our life-boats, perched four feet, above the deck on strong iron supports, had been dushed to pieces by one of them; and I saw another burst in the door and window of the rear pilot house, and flood it with water. As a number of us sat in the companion way gazing with awe upon this terrific scene, I took from the lup of one of the ladies her Episempal proper-book, and turning to the 107th Psulm, read aloud to the company the following passage: "They that go down to the sea in stops,

That do hususess in great waters, These see the works of the Lord And his wonders in the deep, For he commondeth and raiseth up the stormy Which lifteth up the waves thereof, They mount up to the longers, They goolew is again; for the depth a Their soul is melted because of froutde, They real to and tro, And stagger like adjunction man,

It struck us all as an exact description of the scene before our eyes, and it illustrates the wonderful lidelity to mature which is every-where found in the Bible.

I asked the caption the next morning, how high he supposed the highest waves were on Similar, and was surprised at his statement that they were at least forly feet, and that he lind never seen waves roll higher. He had been compelled to form out of his comise a little, and run somewhat before the gale, in order to prevent the waves from dishing too squarely against the side of the vessel; and be remarked that very lew ships have strength enough to hold as near to the wind in such a storm as ours did. It was not matil I heard these and similar remarks, that I realized how severe the stornchad been. I had watched the scene with the deepest interest and even with delight, 1 had bound a strange, wild pleasure, in seeing the wayes dash over the vessel and seeing the vessel horself at one moment lift her lecward halwarks thirty leet above the wider, and in another lean over until she dipped them beneath the foaming wase. The only landrance to my enjoyment was the difficulty of either walking, standing, sitting, or lying down. In my berth, whether dry or night, I was folled about and bumped against the back, and lamped against the front, with arms fired from holding on, and knees sore from bracing them against the side-board sail to keep me from rolling on the ibor. Sitting was worse than trying to propyourself on a one-begged stool. And as for standing, if you wish to realize it on band, try to stand on a seesaw, close to the tence, when two lively boys are riding on the ends. It was not until Thesday morning, the sixth day out, that I got my son legs on, completely rigged. When ${f I}$ went on deck that morning, the breeze was still a soft one, and the waves pitching high in the air: but the wind was more astern, and the ship was rocking instead of rolling. I found that Found widk like a sailor, so I telt not a little proud of it until I found that all the other passingers could do the same.

OUR BETTER HOME.

BY M. CHEES.

IOW sweet do these words sound to the weary pilgrim as he travels along this thorny road. A better home beyond, sh' beyoud what? beyond the storms of this life and the river of death. How sweet to reflect on that home, when tempted and tried on every this evening. Remained at home with the famhand by the evil one, when sorrows encompless us, when in deep affliction. We can then look by faith to Jesus, who has told use that in his Father's house are many mansions, and that he has gone to prepare one for each and every one that will follow his blessed teachings while here [Lord's day morning once more open our view, on earth, and he has told as that he will come again and receive as to himself where we wall reign with him and sing rongs of prinses for-

BY way of church news I am happy in saying that here, in the Indian Creek congreganon, the Master's cause is prospering, both by necessions and more practical piety among the members. We have just passed through another special season of divine grace, another rich "gale of mercy," which causes the truly devoted Christian heart to be litted entirely always the ordinary affairs of human life, and which egaldes the immortal bungerings of the soul to enjoy a sweet foretaste of that unalloyed idiss ethat eye Lath not seen nor ear heard." We emoved a series of meetings held by our home munster, and with the angels of God we are trying to rejoice over the adoption of some more precious sonls into God's family. Seven, during our meetings, have become willing to follow the sympathizing desus. Dear young fellow-christians, will we not try now, by divine aid, to excel in our conduct, and deportment? Let us watch and guard the avenues to our hearts that we may never again become entangled with the yoke of bondage. Let as refram tron land laughter and foodish talking, and lef ustry by a threek and quiet spivit, and cheerful obedience to Christian Inties, to show that we have been with Jesus, and learned of him. I know the power of good example and sincere Claislian deportment. The said elders. with Brother Daniel Mist, made some very touching and appropriate remarks, which brought the whole congregation to tears. In the evening we had preaching by the elders. Next morning Brother Gish departed for home, where he had left his daughter suffering with lung tever. Brother Lyon remained with us over Sunday, and preached twice on that day. It was a short but happy time for us to have such noble winds of advice from the brethren. The latter are too well known to the brotherhood at large, as to render it necessary for me to allude more particularly to their emment capacities and prominence as spiritual speakers, It is ever a glorious time to see the brethren in our midst, and the parting hour is drewled by every one,

Preaching in Cities.

11 OOM (W'S proposition is certainly a move in the right direction. I have often wondered why the Brethren preach so little in the cities. It is true, I suppose, the faith of the gospel as believed, preached, and practiced by the Brethren is more readily received by country people; but that does not excuse us from preaching in the cities. The "Teach all nations" and the "Preach the Go-pel to every creature," include the cities as well as the countries.

I firmly believe that there are some in every city that would gladly accept the faith and practice of the Brethren, if they only had a knowledge of such a church. Not long since, the writer overheard a religious conversation between two old gentlemen in the city of Xenin, Illinois, ta locality where there are no Brethreach. I soon learned from the raw of their conversation that neither one professed religion. One made the remark that he once thought he would join the Campbellite Church. 'But', said he, "low could I observe all the commandments tought in the Bible, for they don't do it."

dust so there may be many in every city in the union that would gladly receive the gospel if it were preached to them in primitive parity. By so doing we could clear our skirts-they could not come up in the day of judgment and accuse us, saying, that we did not invite them, that we did not offer them the free means of grace in its simplicity. Count me good for one dollar. Д. Р. Хиник.

Dear Brethren:-

Fi left Wisconsin February 10th, and arrived here the 21st. When we left Wisconsin it was cold and wintrish, but when we arrived here it seemed like Summer-things were as forward here as they are in Wisconsin in June. The climate, health and soil are good, Louid sells at from $20 to $100 per acre. Some have lived too fast and are compelled to sell.

So far as I have ascertained there are no Brethren here. Your paper is a welcome visitor. I give it to my neighbors when we have read it. The people know nothing about our doctrine. They say they have never met any of our members. This is too nice a country for none of our brethren to share. All kind of truit does well-peach trees are now in bloom.

ICY JOHN ZOOK,

STMBER DI.

All ARCH 3rd. We again met for public wor-₩ ship; and as Brother Eshelman had been requested to preach on the "Female covering, while praying or prophesying," he therefore introduced to his audience I Cor. 11: 1-16, upon which he pertmently presented the following points:

I. Unan imity of the amlience on the subject.

1. The bennates all had their heads covered with cases, bats or leannets,-this was evidence on the part of females, testifying in favor of their part of the subject in time of worship.

2. The male portion and their heads uncovered,—had their hats off—evidence of their acceptance of the apostle's instructions to the church at Corinth.

11. Hebrew enstones-covering their heads with veils at time of marriage, a token of submission to their husbands. Gen. 21: 65, &c.submissive covering.

111. Prover covering.

I. An artificial covering, --proven not the bour, as referred to by Paul in the 5th and 6th verses in the above maned chapter,

A head dress to be put on as a special covering in time of prayer or prophecy, and is at the wearer's control.

3. The above facts clearly proven beyond snevessful contradiction by supplying the word lair for covered in the 5th and 6th verses. of said chapter, i.e., as it would thus prove alsurdities. If covering mean hair in the first thirteen verses of said chapter, then as a matter of course, when the definition hair is used instead of covering it ought to make sense, but it does not, -hence the bair is not meant, by the apasibe.

4V. In Memory of J. R. Wagner.

BY J. F. EIKENBERRY.

BROTHER J. R. Wagner, Clarksville, Iowa, of the Cald Water Clarksville 17th, 1879. He was born in Huntingdon County, Indiana, where his parents, brothers and sisters are now living, in the year 1845, and was at the time of his death, 33 years and sixteen days old.

When a youth he desired a thorough education, and sought to obtain the coveted prize at Hillsdale College, Muchigan. When he left said school be only lacked one term of graduation. After leaving college he attended Normal school one term in Minneapolis, Minnesotiu

He then came to Nora Springs, where, soon after, he united with the church, in which he held his membership until death,

In October, 1873, he was employed as principal in the Charksville schools, which position he held until June, 1874, when he removed to Greene, and took charge of the schools of that place. He also became a partner and editor of "The Press," published at Greene. But about two years ago be disposed of his interest in the paper, and gave his whole attention to teaching. In March, 1878, he was again employed as principal of Charksville school, which position he held at the time of his death.

As a man and a citizen los was far above, the average in his daily walk and conversation. He was an exemplary character, worthy the emulation of all our young men. As a Christian he was strong in the faith and doctrine of the Brethren, and worthy of imitation, both by old and young. His great aim seemed to be to do right, and was always ready to receive instructions from others as well as give.

In whatever lusines he was engaged, he was the same energetic man, doing with all his might that which he found to do. His dispusition was such, that wherever known, he made warm friends, and no man in this community laid more than he, and no man could have been taken from our mulst whose death was so keens ly felt by the entire community, and whose loss is more sincerely montried and regretted than that of Brother Wagner. The announces ment of his death was a shock to all.

The funeral took place at the M. E. Church, in Charlesville, the place of his resulence, on Wednesday, the 19th, at 10 o'clock A, M. The writer addressed the large congregation that was imultendance, from (Peter 1: 24, 25. The firmeral is said to have been the largest ever witnessed in the town every inch of room in the church was full, and many could not gain entrance. It was the most solemn occusion that I ever witnessed. There was hardly a dry eye in the andrence. Many wept like children, while his pupils gave full went to the great grief at the bass of their teacher. At the request of the decease Ulis venains were deposited in the Brethren's cemetry, two miles south of threme.

Thus has passed away one whose memory will long be remembered; and especially (hose of his mea and dear relatives, father and mother, brothers and sisters, who live in Andrana, and did not have the opportunity to after I his

But, let me say to his dear hereaved wife and child, parents, brothers and sisters. Though it was hard to part with one so useful, and, infelligent, yet he loid to leave this world in the prime of life. Fruly we have all great cause to mourn the loss of a dear friend, and we truly sympathize with you in your bereavements; but you need not mourn as those that have no hope, as we believe your great loss is his efernal gam. Then, dear triends, brethren and sisters, let us all cheer up, trust in God and his word, live taithful in our calling, an feventnally we will all obtain the grown of evertisting glory.

Brother Wagner's disease was said to be remittent lever, accompanied by great nervous and mental prostration brought on by overwork and anymy.

Mrs. Wagner will visit her busband's parents for a time.

A Serious Accident.

T the Maxion County, Illimas, poor-house, February 12th, 1879, Tempa Maulton, a blind si-ter, about sixty-five years of age, met with a serious and safal accident. By some means her clothing careful fire from a stove. and before any one came to her aid she was so seriously barned that after four days expressive sufermy she dool. Though she was blind and her suffering intense, yet she bore it all patiently. Two Baptists and one Motholist have been re-

She spoke of the great suffering the Savior had to endure. She gave direction how she wished to be dressed, and where buried.

The history of this sister is an eventful one. Herchildren showed but little respect for her. especially after she lost her sight; and they had possession of her property. Her son, where she had her home, one day took her with the impression on her mind that he was taking her to her brothers; but to her sorrow when she was unloaded, she found herself at the county poor-house, where she became very much dissatisfied, not only about her present state, but also about her future welfare. In the meantime the Brethren preached at the poor-house, when she desired to be received into the church, which was done according to order. The Brethren then (knowing the order of the Brothren to be not to let our members become a county charge) kept her time about for five or six months, when she became dissatisfied and concluded she was burdensome, and desired to be taken to the poor-house; and when she could unt be persuaded otherwise, she was takm until the time of her death, when the Brethren took charge of her, and larried her respectfully in Christian order.

C. MOOMAW'S article on Harshey's 17. proposition, P. C at P., of April 1st, No. 13, page 197, gives rise to the following:

Westrougly advocate Brother Moomaw's remarks; and we do feel justified in asking all the churches in our fraternity to meet (prior to our forth coming A. M+in solemnity, prayer and fasting, that the name of God may be gloritied, and that a union of faith and doctrine may prevail; that all may speak the same thing, helieve the same thing, and practice the same thing.

Now I submit the above to the editors of the B. At W. and P. C at P., hoping they will be interested enough to consider the matter as worthy of our every notice; and if sustained by the brotherhood general, would be a great and shining light to the world.

Missionary Work.

130 the brethren and sisters of the Southern District of Illinois, I would say that have been holding meetings through the Fall and Winter as time and health, would permit, but mostly out in the highways and fiedges where the brethren had never preached. And it was easy to see in some places, the thorns the lasts of the flesh, the lasts of the eye, and the prade of life had spraing up before the seed was sown. Nevertheless we tried to scatter the good send among the rocks and thorus, lioping that the good spirit would yet press the seed into good ground, that it might bring front unto lite eternal. To Travellers.

DY special arrangement with the railroad authorities, I am cambled to birnish cheap transportation to traveller. Those who are contemplating removal or business or pleasure trips, will do well to write, asking rates from point to point. All passengers go on first class fast express trains, and a very considerable saying made. The arrangement was effected with especial reference to the Brethren. Write and ask about it. E was old and poor and a stranger In the great metropolis, A she bent his footsfeps thitherward, To the stately edifice. Outside he inquires, "what church is this?" "Church of Christ," he loars them say: "Ah! just the place I am looking for,

I trust he is in to-day." He passed through the spacious columned door And up the corpeted aisles. And as he passed, on many a face,

He saw surprise and smile. From pew to pew, up one entire side, And then neross the broad front space, From pew to pew, down the other side, He walked with the same slow pace.

Not a friendly voice had bid him sit To listen to gospel truth; Not a sign of deference had been paid To the aged one by youth: No door was opened by generous land, The pews were paid for, reided: And he was a stranger, old and poor, Not a heart to lum relented.

He pansed outside a moment to tlank, Then again passed into the street. Ep to his shoulder litted a stone That by in the dost at his feet: And bore it up the broad, grand idsle, In front of the ranks of news, Choosing a place to see and to hear. He prade a seat for loss use,

Calmby setting upon the huge stone, Folding his hands on his knees, Slowly reviewing the worshipers, A great confusion be sees, Many a cheek is crimson'd with shaue, Some whisper together low, And wish they had been more courteous To the strangers old and poor

THE CARELESS TONGUE.

BY W. S. NEWORLE.

"Death and life are in the power of the tongue and they find love it shall out the fruit thereod. Prov. 18: 21

THERE is nothing more common than talking. It is a means used to exchange thought or convey ideas. W_{P} have different methods of talking; some use their fingers; others, their tongue. Nothing is more common, and more carelessly used than words. We talk every where and are constantly using words without stopping to consider their importance, or effect. Shall we condemn talking, (the use of words,) because in is abused? Verily not. Talking is essentially necessary. "By thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned." Matt. 12: 3. Death and life are in the power of the tongue, and if we love life, we will choice the fruit of it. "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners, spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, both in these last days specken unto us by his Son," Mark the language, "at sundry times," not at times when not needed or fee more talk sales, but when he spoke he meant something "In divers meaners" -that is he chose different ways to convey unto the people what he wanted them to know; and thing. "And there came a youce out eth." Luke 6; 45.

of the cloud saying, "this is my beloved. Son, hear him." Luke 9: 35.

Life is generally what we make it. and is to be measured, therefore, by our thoughts and actions rather than the length of time consumed. What we say goes very far toward determining the nature of our lives. The tongue properly used becomes a source of enjoyment to ourselves, and all with whom we may meet, except those who oppose Christ Ill used, it becomes a curse to us, and all that may chance to fall under its influence, Notwithstanding the many sharperebukes we receive and the warn ings in God's Word, yet we will talk and that imadvisedly. The apostle says. meither foolish talking nor jesting which are not convenient." Eph. 5:4. Our Master tells us to speak to the one concerned. How much trouble we would avoid if we would always remember this. and go directly to the one concerned. I hope that the brethren retain enough of the love of God, if their brother trespass. to go and tell him his fault between you and him alone, and follow the golden rale, "do inito others as we would have them do unto us." Gossip sometimes ruins characters, and death is the final result. There is a time to keep silence and a time to speak. Eccl. 3: 7. It is not always best to speak too soon. It is the part of wisdom neither to appland or condemn too soon. We sometimes the body would destroy the whole syscommit ourselves by speaking too soon, tem, what then must be done? Anoth and being in possession of a false, pride frequently obliges us to maintain our mistakes, even after our judgment, condemns them. When it comes to giving up what we once advocated, although the truth may be staring as in the face, we are so afraid of spoiling somebody (of course we can't be spoiled) and think it hest not to acknowledge or subagit as the case may be. Hence, God is not glorified and we lose the fruits of life. "A fool's voice is known by a multitude of words," Eeel, 7d 3,

It is the part of wisdom not to talk too much. If we have nothing to say, letter remain silent, "Every prudent man dealeth with knowledge, but a fool layeth open his felly". Prov. 13: 16. For by prindence a man so governs himsell' and regulates his actions as to avoid impending evils, and to obtain that good which is suitable to his necessities. So it is the effect of folly not to foresee evils to prevent them and to regulate matters so we can obtain that which is good.

Solomon tells ins, "He that walketh with wisemen, shall be wise, but a companion of fools shall be destroyed." Prov. 13; 20. Solomon would teach as that a man's life is governed very much by the company he keeps, in as much as like begets like. If we are not clothed with wisdom, a man's conversation will be similar to that of his comrades, so if we seek wise counsel, he will speak words of wisdom; but if he idles his time away, listening to foolish talking, can we expect any thing else but that his month will be filled with folly? It is not lost to comise with foolish or thoughtless persons. We should not tell thoughtless persons important matters We frequently get into trouble in this way. Speak, therefore, to the wise about s rions matters, but toward the foolish (while you treat all courteously) reserve your confidence, "A good man our of the good treasure of his hear, bringeth forth that which is good, and an evil man, out of the evil treasme of his heart bring. the list means he made use of, was his ofth forth that which is evil; for of the and make the heart his mouth speak and all alumdance of the heart his mouth speak

"For as the body is one, and has many memhers, and all the members of that one budy, being many, are one body; so also is Christ. For by one sparit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jew or Gentile, whether we be bond or free; and have all been made to drink into one Spirit," I Cor. 12: 12, 13.

LIERE we have the church referred to as being the body of Christ. composed of members, as our temporal bodies are. These members are separate and distinct, having different names to distinguish them; yet it requires all of them combined to form the holy. In the body of Christ, as in the temporal body, there are functions to perform. Some of the functions require the labor of one; some, two or more members; and finally all are brought into requisition. The health of each member depends up Her motherhood contributed nothing to on the manner in which it performs its His Divinity, but she had it in keeping functions. This, then, is a point to which the same as if the supernatural had heen we call your attention; "For if one member suffers, all suffer with it; if one receives honor, all rejoice" with it. If a member of our temporal bodies receives an injury by disobeying the laws of originally much the human. The $\Gamma_{\rm h}$ health, how all the members of the body suffer with it, how we nurse and try to creature. "The Word was made flesh," restore that member to health again; but and this was the offspring of the virgin if it is so ladly lacerated that it cannot be restored, and if left connected with er painful operation takes place—the member is amputated—cut off from the lady, then what is the result? The body has lost a member and is crippled, deform ed, maimed.—its place is vacant, its loss is remembered with sorrow.

So with the body (the church) of Christ; if any of its members have be come afflicted with sin bow, sarely the entire body feels the affliction; with what sympathy should we try to restore that member. But if it is so badly laccrated with sin that it cannot be restor ed, and, if left with the body (the church), would destroy it, with what regret and pain is the member severed from the body. What a mark of deformity it displays to the eyes of those who suffer such a loss! The body, deformed, is in plain view of the world, the Devil knows it and rejoices. Then, in view of these facts, how careful we should be, for if we bring affliction upon ourselves, we, at the same time, bring affliction upon all the faithful members of the church.

We should avoid all doctrine that is not in harmony with the teachings of the gospel, that there the no schism in the looly," "be not innequally yoked with unbelievers," but, "baying your conversation honest among the Gentiles; that, whereas they speak against you as evil doers, they may, by your good works which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation, submit yourself to every ordinance of man for the Ler Ps sake " That is, obey the civil laws of the country is which you live, not for the jurpose of bestewing honor upon the rulers or yourself, but for the Lord's sake, that no reproach may come aponthe lody, "Study to show thy self approx ed unto God," that all the members of the body may rejoice. "Wherefore gird H is well with her "Suffer little chilup the loins of your mind, be soler and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of desus Cirist, as educationt children, not posed of such literally; and those only fashioning yourselves according to the former lasts of your ignorance, so be we holy in all manner of conversation; hecause it is written, be we holy, for I am

DEUS-HOMO.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

THE fragment on the Trinity of the Godhead," in No. 14. I heg leave to supplement. The Divine Father has as real Paternity to the humanity of Je sus, as Mary has maternity. Had it not been for the Divine impregnation, Mary would have had no Son to bear. The relation of Fatherhood is as direct and vital as that of motherhood. The life of God was the quickening principle of the human germ, and the sustaining hower of its development both pre-natal and post-natal. God was the Father of Je. sus in His dual constitution. Therefore Mary is the mother of Eumannel, and not only of a human Son, "She brought forth a Son, and called His name Josus, who was "God munified in the flesh," imparted by a human father. In this souse she was the mother of God, What she hore in the human, and by the buman, was as truly God as that which created assumed the limitations of the mother.

The Trinity is more than a distinction of office. It is Tri-personality, Fath. er and Son are personal relations, the basis of separate functions. Not only is the Father greater than His human gen. eration in the Incarnation, but superior to the eternal generation. Inferiority of relation, or official position, does not imply inferiority of nature. The lower in office may be the higher in quality, There was a Trinity prior to the assump tion of humanity, and consequently a Son. That Deity is a unit is a fundamental truth. But if the Tri-unity is not a Tri-personality, then Fatherhood and Sonship are fictions, because there would be no opportunity in the Divine constitution for such a relation.

Brother Longanecker is such a magnanimous, noble-hearted christian, that I feel confident be has the perspicacity to perceive the logic of these remarks. and the integrity to appropriate it. I'm reserved surrender to the truth clarifies the judment. John 5: 80,

ANNUAL MEETING PLAN.

A plan by which Annual Meeting and dineinish the crowd of those attend impit, maintain batter order, and defray all of its expenses. Arean Bestman.

IIIIE above items are matters of importance to the welfare and progress of Annual Meetings. I have observed that while the brothren are eat ing, or attending to business of the meet ing, a mixed crowd, nor brethren, on the outside, interfere much with the harmony and progress of the inveting. The crowd is made up of wild and roving men from asurrounding circle of perhaps twenty miles. They hear of free hourding and growd there to get it.

The plan is this: Let Annual Meeting be supplied with, five thousand coupon tickets. Let them be headed with the words, Annual Meeting, 1880, let the word meal be inserted undermeath teu times, and each term to be easily separated from the ticket, after the usual

Let the one who sells the coupons panch each one, which alone will make them valid. Let each attendant lany a coupon for $1,00, this will entitle the holder to ten meals. Let those who have charge of the tables take up a ticket at each meal, (of course each holder can dispose of his tickets as he pleases). The purchaser can collect at the close of the meeting 10 cents for each ticket which his coupon yet contains.

If I can pay $20 to get to Annual Meeting, I can pay $1.00 for my meals. If our alistrict can raise $40,00 for two delegates, it can raise $2.00 more for their meals.

These tickets should be purchased immediately upon arrival at Annual Meet-

THE CHILDREN.

WHEN the lessons and tasks are all ended. And the school for the day is dismissed And the little ones gather around me, To bid me good-night and be kissed; Oh, the little white arms that encircle My neck in a tender embrace! In, the smiles that are haloes of heaven, Shedding sunshine of love in my face! And when they are gone I sit drenoing Of my childhood too levely to last; It love that my heart will remember, When it wakes to the pulse of the past, Ere the world and its wickedness made me A partner of sorrow and sin; When the glory of God was about me, And the glory of gladness within,

Oh! my heart grows weak as a woman's, And the fountains of feeling will flow, When I think of the paths steep and stony, Where the feet of the dear ones must go: If the mountains of sin langing der Them, Of the tempest of fate blowing wild? Oh! there is nothing on earth half so holy. As the innocent heart of a child!

They are ideds of hearts and of households; They are angels of God in disguise; His simlight still sleeps in their tresses. His glory still gleams in their eyes; Oh! those trum's from home and from heaven They have made me more manly and mild! And I know how Jesus could liken, The kingdom of God to a child

I ask not a life of the dear ones, All radiant as others have done, But that life may have just enough shadow To temper the glare of the sing. I would pray God to guard them from evil, But my prayer would bound lack to myself; Ald a seraph may pray for a sinner. But a sinner must pray for hitaself.

The twig is so easily bended, I have banished the rule and the rod; I have taught them the goodness of knowledge They have taught me the goodness of God; My heart is a dangeon of darkness. Where I shut them from breaking a rule; My frown is sufficient correction: My love is the law of the school.

I shall leave the old house in the Autumn To traverse its threshold no more: Ald! how I shall sigh for the dear ones. That meet me cacle morn at the door! I shall miss the "good nights" and the kisses, And the gash of their innocent glee, The group on the green, and the flowers That are brought every morning to me

I shall miss them at mern and at evening, Their song in the school and the street: I shall miss the low hum of their voice. And the tramp of their delicate feet. When the lessons and tasks are all ended And death says, "The school is dismissed!" May the little ones gather around me, To bid me good-night and be kissed.

There is much gained by reading and studying the word of God. The Chris tian's hope of eternal life is based upon their obedience to the mandates of heaven, and while ignorant of the law of God it is not probable that they will obey its requirements nor will they know that this word testifies so plainly of Christ. The New Testament is the embodiment of Christ's perfect law to man and by dwelling upon the facts therein contained, the nature of its Author is imbibed and picty towards God, and zeal for his cause is manifested. The disciple of Christ will become more Christ like, and will live more consistent—will shine as lights in the world, constraining others to accept the doctrine and live. A command by one of the apostles dictated by the Holy Spirit given to a preacher of the gospet, was to "shew thyself approved of God, a workman that needeth uet to be ashamed, rightly dividing the wordof truth." This was given that all might be equipped with the armor of God, and by patient practice become skillful in handling the sword of the spirit, and continually manifest a zeal according to knowledge. It is right to be zealously affected always in a good cause, and a good canse makes a brave beart.

As a stimulus to an attainment of the virtnes and perfections of Christian character; it is proper that the friends of Jesus should know what their Lord doeth. and how can this be as retained in any better way than by meditating upon that word that became flesh and dwelt among men in the person of Christ on earth? And while he was here in the flesh he gave unto man a perfect rule of life. A knowledge of this rule obtainad, it is non-burry to restroy it to prometice, which will insure to the saint a reward in the future state. A belief in the existence of God and that he is a rewarder of all those who diligently seek him, is a fundamental truth, and upon this principle is based all spiritual progress, though the soul properly instruct ed will not rest satisfied here, but will eagerly strive to advance in the knowledge and practice of divine things; neither will we be satisfied till we awake in the likeness of our blessed. Redeemer in his glorified state, who being the brightpress image of his person, to enjoy the fulness of divinity.

I held some meetings in a new place, and haptized two. One of them a leading and influential sister, which has caused wonderful uneasiness among the Campbellites and Baptists."

A MINISTER, who had fallen into the had habit of grambling very much about the way his members treated him was thus interrupted:

- "Did they ever spat in your face?"
- " No; they haven't come to that."
- "Did they ever smite you?"
- " No."
- "Did they ever crown you with thorus?"

This last question was too much for the preacher. He ever after quit his grumbling.

Tur Brethren in Southern Indiam are going into missionary work in good carnest. They linve appointed two men to take the field, and others, to raise the incressary means, to defray, the expenses of the work. We hope the churches in Indiana will respond liberally towards supporting the mission. The Gosquel must be prenched, and it is the duty of the church to see that it is done. The children were attentive; took part in singing, and frequently, with the Bible in hand, would turn to and read the passages as they were named by the preacher. Their zeal for the truth inspired their parents and made them feel good. We have seen parents sit and weep for joy in these little meetings, and at the close would say, "Oh! how much better off we would be if we could have attended such meetings when we were children."

Parents should not be afraid to have their children taught the Bible doctrine while young Plant the good seed in their tender hearts and let it take deep and lasting root, and then they will know and understand their duty.

We need more preaching adapted to the needs of the young. Much of our preaching is hard to be understood even by the aged and well informed, and therefore is no food to young minds. The food is placed so high that most of the lambs cannot reach it, and in too many instances preaching is of no interest to them. Let preachers learn to preach and talk so that even children can understand them and then older people will be more edition. We want more of this plain preaching that can be easily understood In this connection a little incident will be impressive: A learned clergyman once wrote an able sermon which he intended to deliver before his congregation the next Sunday. Calling the lared girl into his studio he read it to her, asking her it she could understand it. She replied that she could not. He then rewrote it, endeavoring to make it plainer. The second time he called for his servant girl. After distening to the reading carefully she said, " Mr., please plain a little more." He did so, but felt very much mortified, thinking his sermon would disgust the congregation. The next Sunday, after the sermon was delivered, the hearers pronounced at the most impressive sermon that man ever preached. It was so plain and simple that the people could understand it. That preacher learned a lesson, and some other preachers can learn a lesson if they will quit their declaiming, come down to plain speech and tell things so simple that even children can understand them. Place the food down so low that the lambs can reach it, then those that are larger can get if roo. It will not hurt the old sheep to stoop down a little.

Those who have never aftended these meet mgs think it would look strange to see the cluldren occupying front seats, and the parents sitting farther leads. It is the most pleasant sight you ever saw. Just magine seventy-five children occupying front seats and then all Spangeon the seats on either side and in the rear filled 7, (matter) with happy parents. repairs. The object is to make the school pleasant home for all who may attend it

The school will open sometime in the Fall and is to be provided with an excellent corps of teachers. The faculty is being selected with great care, and will consist of none but experenced educators, who are capable of imparting ample instructions in anything from the common school branches to a thorough knowledge of the sciences and classies.

Preparations are being made to accommodate from two hundred to three hundred pupils, one hundred and fifty of whom can be furnished with rooms in the buildings, and the rest will be accommodated with hoarding in the town Prospects for a large patronage are good. It is thought there will be almost enough home patronage to support the institution. Being one of the oldest schools in the State gives it a nide reputation. We suggest that all who think of attending the school write Brother Stein for circular. That will enable him to make prep. arations to accommodate all who may attend, Parents will find this an excellent place to send their children. The church is large, and under excellent discipline, and therefore young people will be well cared for religiously. It should also be remembered that all who attend this school must dress plainly — fashionable attire and costly array will not be allowed on either teachers or juipils. All the teachers will be required to dress in the order of the church, They willingly consent to this regulation, knowing that it will enable them to maintain better discipline in the school.

About one year ago Brother M. S. Newcomer conceived the idea of purchasing the institution and turning it into a Brethren's school He received but little encouragement at first, lint as time passed the interest increased, so he finally purchased it, paid for it himself, and was liberal hearted enough to turn a half interest of it over to Brother Stem, who is to have charge of the school. These brethren do not themselves solicit donations, yet they are receiving aid far beyond their expectations. Not only members, but many outsiders are donating liberally, They still need some donations to defray the expenses of the improvements they are making: hence all who feel to help the institution along can have a chance of doing so. The enterprise is on an excellent footing, with the best of prospects before it.

The following we clip from the Mt. Morris

The school will, of comise, be conducted in the interests of the German Baptist Fluirch, but there will be room for all whether in the charch or out to acquire a good elnearron within its widls. Under this armagement the school is bound to flourists."

We pullish the above, hoping it will be satisfactory to all who are making inquiries about the institution. Number 18 of the Children of Work will contain a beautiful engraving of the landings. Those wishing to see the picture, and description of the buildings will send for that number of the Children at Work

A LARGE COLONY.

THE Chronicle published at Abilene, lyangas says: "Probably the largest colony that ever located in our county arrived during the past week. They are worthy men of means who pay cash for what they get and are able to get all they need. They are able to pay down for their farms and make all needed improvements. They are honest, steady, hardworking people, and they cannot fail to coin money in our glorious young State."

The BRETHREN AT WORK circulates well among the River Brethren, and we would like if some brother in Kansas would make a special effort to introduce it among the English reading part of this colony. By proper treatment they may be induced to unite with our people in all the libbe requirements.

as a request for us to copy from the Primthe Christian the article "Balancing Accounts," by C. H. Balsbaugh. The writer then proceeds to recommend a careful reading of the article. We would like to copy Brother Balsbaugh's arnele, but as we have all the original copy we can possibly find room for, we must decline for

No. 3 is a letter from Lima, Allen County, thio, but the writer fails to give his name, and for that reason the letter cannot be published. Wnters should always give their names, that we may know who they are. The letter is designed to expose an impostor, who claims to have been haptized by Moses Miller of Pennsylvania. He professes to be a physician of rare skill, and is traveling over the country swinaling the people. Our readers want to keep a sharp book out for impostors and swindlers. It plost to have nothing to do with traveling ductors. As a general thing, it a man is a good physician, he will find all the work he can do at home where he is known, and if he must travel to get practice you may rest assured that he is a quock. It you are sick, and need medical aid, call on some responsible physician that you can rely on. Just as long as people are simple enough to patronize traveling ductors, of whose reputation, they know nothing, just that long they may expect to be swindled.

near Cerro Gordo, Illinois. The article contains. some good thoughts, and if the writer will practice consideraldy he may be able to prepare some good articles. This article contains no head. Every article should have an appropriate head. or else the editors must be at the trouble of studying up one. Our young brother, or sister, as the case may be, should not become discouraged just because his first article is rejected. That is something we all have to get used to. Persons who are not accustomed to write for the press will find it to their advantage first to write their articles on a slate, and atterwards copy them onto paper. Take great pains with them, for thousands will read what you have written, and it is well for the good of the cause that you write the exact truth.

No 14 This is a letter from some plucky boy, who has been defending true immersion against another how which cheves in sprinkling. The arguments are annusing, but indicate argumentative wit. The hoy lives in the mission field in Wisconsin, and from the tone of the letter we would judge that the people are pretty well stirred up about what the Brethren preached while among them. We suggest to this boy, as well as all other lays, the propriety of readmy the Bible through, and after that read the New Testament through tode each year. Carry a Testament in your pocket, and spend your lasure moments, committing chapters to memmy. With proper culture this boy may become agood writer.

No. 14 is in reply to a query, asking how long it took. Noah to build the ark. The writer of this article thinks Noah went to work immediately after receiving the command, and builded the ark and preached at favorable opportunities. Noah being a preacher of righteousness would indicate that he was a man who obeyed God, hence went to work as soon as he received the command. The article is rather long, and would be difficult to print without rewriting, and condensing. Articles in answer to queries should be short, and to the point. Do not reply to some body's article, but give your views the best you know how, and do not fail to boil them down well.

No. 15 is a selected article of considerable length, entitled "Why I Left the M. E. Church and Joined the Dunkers." This article has been published repeatedly in the Brethren's papers; first, in the Gospel Visitor, and afterwards in the Companion. We would like to give it CUMBER 7. Headed, A Few Thoughts, and place were we not so crowded with original matter. However, we will preserve the article, and may find room for it sometime in the future.

> No. 16. The writer quotes Matt, 13: 47 and comments on it: "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind." We make the following extract from the article:

> "A practical listerman does not withhold has net from the sea, when the probability is, he might gather some worthless ones. It this should inthicace the Isherman To fold his net, would it not be a dry fislong? And just so it would be with the charch it she withhold her ministered force in the sense of activity and zeid for fisling into the kingdominel were and women, for lear of "gathering of every kind." I have known localities where the torrosters were probabiled of heiding a series of incernings for the above reason, for tem of "gathering of every kind." Now days a few striplings, David-like, have gone out with slung and stone to slay the gehalfe of sin, and we hear it who spered they are gathering into the church "of every kind." Thus is the prince cause why we do not number northens instead of thousands. I am not in Jayor at excitement, but, livethren, if you see where 'you care get some good souls into the church by preach ling the and brinistone don't stand back for fear you may gather into the church " of every kind."

We think the writer applies the import of the parable too loosely. The Savior, which presenting this parable, was not talking of getting peoide into the church, but was speaking of the consequences as summed up at the end of the world. As the net is handled by fallible. men, mistakes will likely occur, and some badpeople will get into the church, but these the angels will come and gather out at the end of the world. Ministers should preach the gropel builtes(ly) warm sinners to flee the wrath to come, and see that they bring forth fruits metefor repentance. You need not be alread of getting too many into the church it they are fully. converted. Three thousand turned to the Lord on the day of Pentecost and no one thought they were coming to the church too fast. Each minister should do his best to gather more but good fish, for that is the kind, the Lord wants but do not fear to build up a church because No. 12 was written by a young member living | there may chance to be one unfaithful member in it. Let us do all we can, and the best we can and the hord will idess us in the work, but it possible keep the church pure.

No. 47. A printing other is the place where all extremes meet, and we occasionally get hold of some currons things, some of which are real amusing. The following is an extract from an article which came to the office soon after the puldislang of Ray's speech about kissing the women. It was written by a Frenchman, and we call it a l'rench cure for the blues:

wither kissing ordinance his now the point of assault. I do not wish to interfere in the least with the sagarous debaters; but it strikes me that Brother Ray lays so much stress on that and mance simply because it does not enjoye the kissing of 'both sides of the house' by the otherdaig or presiding elder, or preacher, as the case may be. Ali Brother Bay, I see what you are driving at to-laive that ordinance anounded in your sense; purific Tubkers, be elevated to the number. There and there to monopolize all the kissing of that fother side of the house, elect the for all that, I doubt not, but you would be perfectly willing to perform such duties of holiness; not forcibly, olcino, has konnel, hebra, no egis a sa deed aad eel, spicitud layer towards that other side of the house, at course! But then just think of it, Brother Ray. there are somminy of us, induced with that fairdend spiritual love, not only for ordinance's sake and what, Lask von, is to become of us, if you, and lait you alone, should secure ALL the lasses of 'that other side of the loose ?

Lancyery anxious to hear further from two as enquent debuters as Brethren Stemand Hay, but Le earchil, Brother Ray you may, and I hope you shall, one out of it a Tunker to all interestand purposeand it you are a increed man, your wife, at rome day, may become a member of what effect side or , side of the was I when she was rading in a the house,' and then, if the kissing ordinance were amended, in your sense, you might find it convenient, on certain occasions, to look in the opposite direction, and cover your ears with your hands, feeling convinced, to the bottom of your heart, that the kissing of the 'other side of the house' is an shominable nuisance, and the amendment creating t, ought to be repealed at once; or that such amendment should be ninended again, providing, that the kissing of the 'other side of the house' by this side of the house, its representatives, or presiding officers, should take place, with a tbackward movement,' so that lips from both sides of the house could never meet at all."

This will suffice for this week, and other ar ticles will be noticed as we come to them.

ON THE WAY TO PALESTINE

(F) to the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement.) NUMBER II.

(Concluded from last week.)

MOR the first time since the rough weather had set in, I walked forward to the forecastle. The water was now a deep indigo blue, with the same intermingling of green and purple which I had seen before. I leaned against the bulwarks, and gazed upon the waves as they parted before the sharp prow of the ship, and as the vessel rose and fell, bringing me now within ten feet of the water, and in another instant litting me thirty feet above it, I was again reminded of the see-saw; but now I was out on the end of the plank, and a telt like a boy again, saying,

Now we go up, up, up, Now we go down, down, down,

And when I did go up, if my eye was on the water hencath, I felt as if I were hidding the waves farewell, and were about to mount away to the clouds; or if my eye was on the horizon. it would expand as 1 arose, bringing wave beyond wave into view, until it would seem as if I were about to see to the ends of the earth.

During all the raging of the storm I had a complete sense of safety, and such was the prevailing feeling among the passengers. Though the vessel rolled and tossed, and mountainous waves were continually breaking against her iron sides, and often flooded her decks, and even dashing their spray high up against her sails, she neither grouned, or sighed, or quiresud. There was none of that creaking and moaning of the ship's tumbers, about which the vayagers in wooden vessels have so much to say; there was no disagreeable sound, except when the stern of the vessel would rise high as a passing wave sank low, and the propeller, momentarily left out of the water, would whirl with producjour velocity, semling a fremor through the ship, and startling us with its fearful rattle All else was so solid, and all the officers and men were so quiet, orderly and respectful both to us and to one another, that it appeared almost impossible for us to be hurmed by wind and water. Commend me forever to Captain Harris and his crew, and the good ship Pennsylvania.

The most surprising thing about the mechanism of these from steamships is the steadineswith which their vast machinery is kept in position. The boilers of the Pennsylvania are 17 feet long and 12 feet in diameter; and there are three of them. It has two engines - one of them a feet in dismeter and the other 71 teet, while each has a piston-stroke of four feet. The propeller shaft, running back from these to the stern of the vessel-about 100 feet-is of solid iron, about 20 inches in diameter. The weight of all this machinery is enormous, and the massive engines stand apright above the water-line; yet amid the rolling and tossing of the vessel in the roughest weather, there is no more disturbance of the position or working of any of the joints than in a common flouring mill on the solid ground.

We were saddened on Monday morning to bearn that during the previous night a steerage passenger had jumped overhourd and been lost. He was an Irishumn, and professed to have been a school-teacher in Pottsville, Pa. He was intoxicated when he came on board, and continued so. He attracted my attention the second day out, by approaching me on the deck and begging me to drink with him. I told him that we had both drunk enough for one day, and that he had better not drink any more, or the Captain would lock him up in a dark place. After he was lost, the ship's doctor told me that he had locked lam up twice to keep him from harm. He arose about one o'clock at night, went on deck, and leaged over the windward heavy gale. He was seen by the watch, the ship was stopped, and an effort was made to see him; but the sea was too rough to launch a boat in search of him; so we passed on, carrying with us another warning for those who tamper with wine.

Since the storm subsided we have had delightful March weather. The ship's piano, the Captain's flute, and several indifferent voices, have been taxed to entertain us; pleasant conversation usually keeps us at the table till after the waiters have removed the cloth; lively walks on the deck in the cool, bracing air give us exercise; and faking it all in all, we were beginning to feel very much at home when the near approuch of land begun to excite a new imputience.

On Sunday morning, the 16th, the date of this letter, we came in sight of land about 10 o'clock. The first point in view was a high mountain peak, said to be a maked rock projecting into the sea with deep water to its very base. After this a long ridge of mountain coast gradnally came into view, and we found ourselves running parallel to the southern coast of Ireland, but seeing it at a very dim distance.

If any of my friends are willing to do me a favor without expecting a like one in return, let them write me a letter directed to Jerusalem, care of the American Consul. This will be my address till the first of May at least,

THE famine in Upper Egypt causes terrible suffering. In some vallages the people, anked like wild beasts, dig for roots. In one town winner and children fought over scraps of bread. The inland villages are said to be starving.

FROM the Gospel Preacher we learn that work has again been resumed on the College building at Ashhand. Brother Ruoje loss also sold out his interest in that paper. Brother Busher is at his post again. May be be blessed with good health.

INVSMORIAS several critiques have been received at this office on the article written by S. J. Harrison, headed, "Sprinkling and Pouring put to the lest," published in No. 5 of the Bretteres at Work, we now publicly call on all who have a criticism on it to send it to Brother II, at this office, as he purposes answering all the objections which may be made against the proof that immersion is the only mode of laptism that can be performed in obedience to the language of the formula contained in the commission.

You May Think Strange.

BY JAMES M. HILBERT.

TUME and again have we been called on, here I in Tennessee, to assist in the missionary work, which is being carried on, more or less, throughout the entire Brotherhood; and knowing that we have assisted but very little, if any. in the great work, I deem it necessary to write concerning this matter lest you may think strange of not receiving liberally from our distriet. Perhaps no district in the Brotherhood is situated just as we are; entirely cheed in, having no line of communication with any other district of Brethren, with which to work as co-laborers, and in the Annual Meeting, and also through the papers, published by brothren wheare sounding on the glad fidings from charelete church, and even in the regions beyoud. These papers are welcome visitors to many of our fire-des, telling of the glorious work going on, gathering many souls into the fold of Christ; and showing that we have all drank from the same fountain-head, and led by the same Spirit. May the day soon come when the church will form one unbroken line going torkly to comquest and to victory in the missionary work as far as the gospel will allow, into all

Knowledge and seal should go together in this great work; knowledge without zeid will accomplish but very little; so zeal without knowledge will make shipwreck of the whole neither. Let us all avoid the two extremes in this work. We should not be still in our holing place till the world, which is starving on Food, Should deag us out and set us to work. Neither should, we he like the swollen stream that comes sweeping down the libiside, ninking leavoe in the valley. But we should come torth so the water free from the fountion head, moving on with the current, filling the world with good. Perhaps it is thought that we are laidy concerning the great work before its. I have no doubt but that we, as a district, lack zeal in this work; but I am happy to say that we leave bretheen whicare willing to spend and be spent. who make great sagrifices towards spreading the gospel. Now larethren, on account of our present condition, do not think strange because we have not responded to the many calls for help. attention was called to the fact that Christ came down from heaven, that he ascended up to heaven,—"I am from above," all bear the mind upward in heaven, no reference is had to the rotundity of the earth, as this terrestrial ball is but a part of God's vast creation.

2. Those who come out upon the Lord's side, and follow the good Shepherd whitherso. ever he goeth, - "Observing all things whatsoever he has commanded them."

3. Those who enjoy heavenly places in Christ Jesus,"-are always found "assembling themselves together" in the house of the Lord 4. Those who "set their affections on heaven and heavenly things.

5. Those who are daily fitting, qualifying and preparing themselves, "growing in grace," going on to perfection," becoming more "hely" sanctifying the Lord God vi their learns," he, ing not conformed to this world." but as heaven is a peculiar place, so is heaven's somety, heaven's peade, a "peculiar people, a royal priesthood, a buly nation. "zealous of good works."

IV. Heaven's ideasures and beauties.

There will be unfading beauties and unending pleasures to be enjoyed by those who shall he counted worthy to enter into the joys of their Lord. The glorious anticipation of enjoying a place tree from sin, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are forever at rest, should stimulate the asjorations of every soud to press onward and upward, to win the prize and receive a crown of everlasting life. O what joys are set before not-what knowledge "to know that we are known," to ow no longer "through a glass darkly," but see the "Goden City." the "Crystal River" that shall make glad the city of God, to hehold the large baster of the Son of God, who shall be the light of that city; the mexpressible pleasure of being with our best friend Jesus, who died to our surs, a heaven of love, no pretending love there; but lave whose beams and smiles will be planted on every counter macre! And oh the sweet and melodious musie that will be there, when the great throng of heaven's hosts shall unite with the Lord's gathered sheaves, having palms of victory in their hands, and crowns of glory upon their heads, and with the harps of God, praising the Lord! What a soul-cheering, soul-during season that will be!

The pleasures and beauties of this life in this wicked and troublesome world are all transitory-soon fade and pass away, and when meditating and musing upon beaven's joys and glery, I am made to wonder in my heart how any's oil can be so hard, so cold, so wicked, as to stay away from Jesus and his service, and by their actions say, I will not go to heaven, O may all who read these words be able to sing in sporit and truth with a full realization of the same, the beavenly son $\underline{\sigma}$,

LEFT home on the 27th of March to engage as a profracted meeting in the vicinity of Engleville, Il mrison County, Missouri, I dol the first preaching here by the Brethren. I had been here on the 8th and 9th of March. Tried to preach three discourses, one on trine buptism; had crowded house, and I suppose half as many outside. As the Campbellites, Baptists and Methodists were then having meetings, I could not get the house any longer at that time. So I returned on the 27th of March, and continued until April 2nd. Had densely crowded house and good order, as this appeared to be new doctrine and strange things They attended regular and gave diligent aftention trowhat this habbler had to say. After about four or five discourses a man of standing and influence came to me and said, "Brother Sell you are the man to preach here, your does true is all right, no man can object to it." and many similar expressions by others.

The result of the meeting was, two came ARCH 4 Brother Eshelman presented torward and were haptized. This orcarred at the water, where a delightful scene took place. Many tears were shed, and I heard, as Ladministered the ordinance of trine bap-6-m screams and crying. Seeing the effect and the desire for preaching, I left an appointment for the second Sunday in April.

I will here say that those two accepted the gardel order as held by the Brethren without any reserve. When I approached the covering of the head, I remarked, I suppose here we differ, to which she replied, "No. 1 think not." As she acknowledged a covering aside from the huir, as a matter of course, it did not take much to get her to accept the cap as a uniform povering.

Northern and Central Indiana at Aulmrn Station. Western Michigan at Auburn Station. Eastern Michigan at Deshler, on the Dayton and Michigan R. R. Wostern, X. W., and Northern Ohio at Defiance, Deshler, Festoria, and Tiffin. Those living in Crawford, Wyandet, Hardin, Ashland and Wayne Counties at Mansfield, Ohio. Those in Ibdines County at Mt Vernon. Those in N. Eastern and Eastern Obio at Pittsburg, Pa. Kansas, Missouri and Western Illinois take the Ohio & Mississippi R. R. at St. Louis, Missouri. Those in Southern Illinois and Indiana get to the O & M. & M. Cin. R. R. at the nearest point to you; and also S. Western, and Southem (thio at Cincinnati, Loveland, Maurertown or Chilheuthe, Ohio.

Thave now given the points at which you can get to the roads which belong to the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., and will say that none need make any arrangements for half fare only to the nearest point on the roads named. The balance will be and have been made on the Baltimore & Omo roads. And I will further say that none can get to the place of meeting without getting on the Baltimore & Ohio B. II, for Broadway Station is on their road. So it will be the best and cheapest for all to get on their road as soon as they can. If the members will let me know about how many are going I will have a special train run from Chicago and St. Louis, a. c., if there will be enough to justily the company to do it. Say leave Chicago on Thursday and also St. Louis, and get to place of desimation on Saturday. And once on their road at Chicago and all points East, of that do dungeral cars to place of meeting if a special train is run and only at Harper's Ferry our regular trains and also on the Ohne & Mississip pt R. EFT home March 21st for the field of la-🚹 bor; met Brother John W. Mctzger at Indianapolis; took train in the evening for Crothersville, Jackson County; arrived at 10 o'clock P. M.; was met by the brethren at the station, who conducted us to their homes, where we enjoyed their hospitality. Commenced meeting on the evening of the 22nd, and comtinued antil the evening of the 20th. During our meetings there were ten received into the thurch by baptism, and others seemingly were convinced of their duty. We hope they will become obedient to the gospel of Christ. The members seem to enjoy themselves, very much with their new relationship in the church.

In all of our meetings in Jackson County we have received eighteen members by baptism; thirteen were members of ather denominations; five made no profession; those from other denominations were members of the Baptist, Camphellite and Methodist fraternities.

Hope they will be faithful and adorn the doctrine of their profession by a godly walk and a chaste conversation. May the Lord guide them with his holy spirit through life, is our prayer. Brethren, remember them, as they are without a minister, and, seventy-five, miles from any organized church. Arrived home on the evening of the 31st; found all well. Thanks to the Lord over our families and us.

AOD has given us a beautiful day once more. T How I enjoy sunshine after storms.

In taking a retrospective view of the past I can see wherm I might have made life a little different, had I had the experience of years, but on the whole I have done very well. When we think of the days that are past and gone, it seems but a dream. Year after year rolls away, and we are hastening to our long home. O how screful we should be and not idle away our time. Yes, those moments, that, in childhood's days, are so often spent in vain. One by one they are passing away. Young friends, don't think because you are young and in the prime of life that your life is long, for the Lord may call you away in your youth without live minutes warning. How sad to think of it if you have not followed his foodsteps.

I went to meeting last Sabbath, and we had a splendid meeting. The Brethren have no meeting-house here, but they have preaching, all the same, in a school-house. There is but one minister in this county. I think he preaches the true gospel more than I ever heard it preached by others. I am no member yet, but I can't help but feel as though I was a sister. I think I shall become a member of it after while I know I ought not put it oil, but I want to be I making you to visit the Covington Church, I sure and know what I am doing this time, and not pain the wrong church again. I think the Brethren Church is the true church of God.

1. A previous announcement is made. 2. The assembling of brethren and sisters, young and old, and all who feel interested in such meetings.

3. Singing of church hymns, and some one selects a chapter. A Testament is furnished for every one present. The entire chapter is read, and as they read, questions are asked, and answered to the satisfaction of all present, After reading, the meeting is closed by singing and prayer, which is insisted by the older upon the younger members to lead in the same.

From North Liberty, Indiana,

Dear Brethrenz

MONG the things of the past is our yearly visit. We had our council meeting the 29th just., at which the visit was reported. Only a few missteps were found, which were readily adjusted and union established. One made the good confession and was baptized into Christ, making twenty (including one rechained) within the last year,

Murch 30th. Re-organized our Sundayschool. Will make arrangements at our next school to procure reading matter for gratuitous distribution.

From D. E. Brubaker,

HEARTILY congratulate the Brethren of Northern Illinois in their good fortune in securing such a good man as Brother Stein to live among them, and I was more than pleased when I saw it announced in the BRETHRES AT Work that the members had purchased the Mt. Morris Seminary. (I am pretty well nequainted with that institution, having lived near there five years). I almost wish now that I were young again. I certainly would go to that school. District Meeting in Indiana.

S PONY Creek Church was the place of holding the Southern District Meeting of In-W.E. had a series of incetings at the Green's dia of Morting opened by singing. Prayer by vitte school-house, conducted by our Hiel Hamilton. Reading Acts 15 by Elder the divine spirit inte all truth while we live. Elder, D. E. Brababer, commencing on Sin- Licob Bre. The committee to receive the busand when time shall be with us not more, save day evening, March 2nd. That nine meetings areas was their announced by blifer John H. in succession. Six souls came over on the Caylor. Eller Will Bamilton was elected Lord's side. Many good impressions were | Moderator, Jacob Rife Reading Clerk, David Bowman Recording Clerk. Five queries were then presented.

No. 1. What means can this meeting adopt to get the churches to pay their quoto towards defraying the expenses of the Brethren that were on the missionary work in Southern Indiana?

Ans. We agree to send Brethren to the churches to urge them to pay and assist in that work.

No. 2. Have churches a right to employ police force to protect them at communion meetings, or any other meeting?

Aus. Only in extreme cases. (This query goes to Annual Meeting, the only query sent from this district).

No. 3. Would it not be letter to close our communion meetings at night after our comminimi services are over?

Ans, heave the matter optional with the churches.

No. 4. Would it not be better for the brothren, where the communion is held, to say who should administer the communion?

Ans. We will make no change.

No. 5. A minister being called to the poorhouse to haptize a pauper, the poor-house heing in the territory of another elder; has be a right to baptize the pauper without asking the elder where the pumper lives?

Ans. The has a right to do so, and the church where the poor lives should Take care of the pear members.

The meeting then precived the missionary report. Elder Jacob Rife gave a very interesting account of their labors in the sonth, and of their eries for the bread of life. They then elected Elder B. H. Miller to represent them in Annual Meeting. Then Brother Isaac Crips and Lowis Kinsey to till the missionary to blan Southern Indiana for another year, and have brethren to visit the home churches, and a ollest money to defray the expenses of the southern intesion. These brothron are R. H. Miller, G. W. Studebuker, Isaac Billhumer, John W. Metzger, and Jacob Rife. The preeting was then closed after some preliminary business. It was a very pleasant meeting, and the best of feeling prevailed. Thanks letterfool.

Dear Brethren:-

April 9, 1879.

MHE Brethren have two good meeting-how es I in which regular meetings are held; the one is 18x61, with busement story, body for halding hove-leasts in. It is on the road running south from Lawrence to Willow Springs. eight miles from Lawrence. The other is 30s. 40, ralled the Brumbaugh Meeting-house.

This church it present bumbers between 175 and 200 members. The Brethren held. during Waiter and Spring, three series of meetings; the bit one was held at the Brethren's large meeting-house. The word was look forth by Brethren George Meyers, Jesse Studebaker and Neah Henricks, (the last named) lives in Lawrence at present), assisted by our home numisters. The results of the last mosting were, six haptized and two reclaimed. The members were built mean their buly faith and others were convinced, but are still standing outside the household of both. Yesterday was our yearly connect meeting. Matters were disposed of to the satisfaction of all present. But one query to send to D. M.

To-day our regular naceting at the meetinghouse. Subject, "The good Samarami," Justis! Christ being our good Samaritan if we will but do his will. He is willing to built up all our wounds, pouring in oil; and if we but bean his will, and do not practice it, it will avail us nothing. Heethren and sisters, let us all strive for more earnest work in the vineyard of the our light shine in all our transactions, Do. dl. the good we can and as little evil as possible, AL, is the prayer of your unworthy brother,

JOHN A. STUDFRAKER,

William Springs, Konsors, April 6, 1879.

P. S. Any of the brethren wishing to locate in Southern Kansas in Elk County, will do well to correspond with the writer.

Door Brethren:-O san additions by baptism and one reclaimed, and a good belling, except some United. twenty-fire cents in his packet to give the undifference, Weiphotterne . . . D. Backbook elser, and some channed to be sanctified, and [ many other things equally ridiculous. I tried to expose error and present the truth, and it is said some got cross about it. I cannot help that; wo is to me if I do not preach the gospel in all its power. There was a Brother Flora and wife baptized near here. He is a brother of Brother John Flora, of Virginia, and he had preached for that fraternity for ten years. He gave me a very interesting history of that part of his life; he had baptized only four, and feels glad that no more had been led by him. He says it is no use to abuse the old Brethren, or think of heaven without coming to the geneeral principles taught by them. There are a few left here yet. Their only hopes are in the Peopressive Christian. What a pity that the Brethren will go to such extremes that there is hope, by them, of division.
